PREFACE

THIS book aims at doing for the latter half of the seventeenth century, in the way of illustration of Oxford life and ways, what is done for the latter half of the eighteenth century in Mrs. Evans' Letters of Radcliffe and James. In the Prefatory Note to that book (p. xxii) I stated that I had been put on the track of what promised to be an interesting correspondence; how interesting it was to turn out I had at the time little idea.

In 1885 Sir Henry Maxwell Lyte, who was then engaged on his History of the University, took occasion of a visit to Oxford to inspect the Diary of Thomas Crosfield in the College Library, and in course of conversation he told me that he was at work for the Historical Manuscripts Commission on a collection of family papers which contained much information on the University life of the time. I understood that till the Commission had done with them no access to them could be obtained, but that he would be very happy to put me in the way of inspecting them afterwards. He added that he proposed to print everything of interest that he found in them.

In 1890, in the seventh part of the Appendix to the Twelfth Report of the Commission, appeared the Calendar of the Manuscripts of S. H. le Fleming, Esq., of Rydal Hall. The glimpses in the Calendar of what I hoped to discover made me anxious to get to closer quarters with the collection, and with the kind co-operation of Sir Henry Maxwell Lyte I was enabled to obtain the consent of Mr. le Fleming to my inspection of the documents at the Public Record Office in London. I spent three foggy weeks of the following Christmas holidays in the Record Office, examining, transcribing, and acquainting myself, so far as time allowed, with the contents of the collection. Through Sir Henry Maxwell Lyte's kindness, for which I can never be too thankful, I was granted exceptional facilities for my work.

It soon became clear to me that the collection contained a great deal which was of value for the history of Oxford life and manners, and that occasional visits to London would not suffice to extract from it all of this kind that it was desirable to publish. I therefore applied to Mr. le Fleming for leave to have the boxes containing it transferred to Oxford, where in the College muniment room they would be as safe as in the Record Office from the dangers incident to everything human. Neither he nor I anticipated that it would be thirteen years before the first instalment could be published. His patience and forbearance alone has allowed me to advance so far in my undertaking.

From then till now nearly all my leisure has been applied to the work of selection, transcription, and annotation. A busy life has left all too little leisure for the purpose. While I held the office of Vice-Chancellor the work had to be entirely suspended. I have had to try the patience of Mr. le Fleming, of those who have helped me, of the committee and of the members of the Oxford Historical Society, and to all of them I wish to render my hearty thanks.

I soon found that Sir Henry Maxwell Lyte had underestimated the importance of the collection. So far from finding everything that was of interest printed, every shaft driven down into the uncalendared documents revealed more that seemed worth bringing to light, and I soon found that I could not satisfy myself, at all events, without going afresh through all the documents. They possessed of course a special interest to me, as a student of the history of the College and the University; and the valuable work of the Commission would have been rendered impossible if every specialist had a claim to have everything printed which was of interest to him; but those who are interested in what this book contains may like to know that of the documents contained in this volume over forty per cent. are not mentioned or referred to in any way in the calendar; and of the rest not ten per cent. can be regarded for the purposes of this book as adequately described. This does not in any way diminish my obligation to those into whose preliminary labours I entered, nor take away from the interest of the calendar as a contribution to the political history of the period. I should never have been able to undertake my task at all, but for the excellent way in which the papers had been arranged by Sir Henry Maxwell Lyte, and my work has throughout been constantly lightened by the opportunity of referring to the calendar as an index to the collection.

In selecting from the six thousand documents of which the collection consists, I have been guided by the endeavour to include in this book only those which throw some light upon the life and ways of University men. I am only conscious of having gone outside of this scope in one instance. The temptation was too great to allow me to exclude two documents<sup>1</sup> which seem to shew, as existing in the reign of Charles II, a state of private war for which I know of no parallels later than in the Paston Letters at the time of the Wars of the Roses. I have, however, included not a few matters depending upon relations between University men which began at Oxford and went on into or through their after life, anything throwing light upon the earlier education of those who afterwards came up to the University, and illustrations of tastes or habits which were likely to have been formed or developed during residence there.

In illustrating the documents selected I have given myself greater freedom. When a document has been finally selected for publication I have not thought myself precluded from illustrating it in any way which might interest my readers, or enable them to put themselves in the position of the person writing or addressed. In this respect I perhaps ought to apologise for printing the whole list of the Knights of the Royal Oak<sup>2</sup>, but being set in pursuit of it by a reference in one of the letters<sup>3</sup>, and having been baffled for years in discovering it, I was anxious to shorten the labour of those who might be occupied in the same search. I might perhaps also plead in justification the example of Thomas Hearne in the heterogeneous but very interesting appendices to his publications.

The Flemings whose relations with Oxford form the subject of the book group themselves round the Daniel Fleming whose care in preserving every document addressed to him, and copies of most of those addressed by him to other persons, has left to posterity the exceptionally interesting collection which Sir Henry Maxwell Lyte has arranged. He was born at Conistone in Lancashire on the 24th or 25th of July, 1633, entered Queen's College as a commoner 20 July, 1650; went out of residence 13 July, 1652; resumed his caution-money in the following January; married, 27 August, 1655, Barbara, eldest daughter of Sir Henry Fletcher, Bart., of Hutton in Cumberland, whom he had first seen at Oxford, and by whom he had fifteen children; was knighted at Windsor by King Charles II, 15 May, 1681, and died 25 Mar. 1701.

D. F., as I have found it convenient to call him to distinguish him from other members of his family, has given us in the autobiographic sketch which forms No. I of the documents in this volume but few details of his education, and I have not yet had access to the three small notebooks mentioned in the first volume of the Calendar as containing copies of verses and letters written by him in his youth<sup>1</sup>. The fourteen letters addressed to him at Oxford (II–XV), and the few items at the beginning of the accounts in XXIV, are all the documents contemporary with his Oxford life contained in the collection arranged for the purposes of the Commission.

In the library at Rydal is a duodecimo manuscript book 'Index perbreva rerum summarum quæ collectæ fuêre Oxôn, per me D: F. A: D. 1652.' It is a commonplace book, arranged alphabetically, with <sup>9</sup> The famous treatise Religio Medici by Sir Thomas Browne (1605-82), physician and author, was probably written in 1635, while the author was established as a physician at Shipden Hall, near Halifax, before he moved to Norwich. The manuscript was passed about among his private friends, and more or less inaccurately transcribed, till in 1642 two surreptitious editions were published by Andrew Crooke. In 1643 appeared the first authorised edition, and thirty other editions were published between then and 1881. It was translated into Latin, Duteh, French, German, and perhaps Italian (though no copy of the last has been discovered). See D. N. B., s.v.

It is doubtful how long he continued to make entries in the book. The latest date of reference to a periodical is 1658.

The first book in the list is—

The Second Edition Corrected and Augmented, and three usefull Indexes added. Cicero de Oratore, Nescire quid antea quam natus sis acciderit, Id semper est esse Puerum. It is in the Rydal Library with D. F.'s name on the title-page. It is a very curious book. The Chapters on the Popes are headed Good Bishops, Tollerable Arch-Bishops, Patriarchs, Usurping Nimrods, Luxurious Sodomites, Ægyptian Magitians, Devouring Abaddons, Incurable Babylonians. It is divided into three parts by title-pages, but the sequence of pagination is not interrupted.

The first part ends with a colophon, So much for Ecclesiasticall History in Generall.

The second title-page is Of Politicall History in Generall Deduced from Nimrod according to the foure Monarchies, by a continued Line

The Third Title is, Of the History of Successions In States, Countries, or Families. I do not propose to draw out the results which his correspondence shews D. F. to have derived from his Oxford life. A very varied taste for literature of all sorts, and a permanent attachment to several of the friends he made among his contemporaries are sufficiently obvious. My desire is to give my readers the opportunity of drawing out these results for themselves.

He certainly owed his wife to his residence at Oxford<sup>1</sup>, and it is interesting nowadays to observe that a Cumberland baronet's daughter, even in the troublous times of the middle of the seventeenth century, carried away with her from Oxford evidence that some of her time there had been spent in working at music, and was sufficiently proficient to interest in her further work at it an academic musician of considerable distinction<sup>2</sup>.

When D. F. entered the University Langbaine was Provost. Langbaine's friendship with Christopher Dudley, D. F.'s uncle by marriage, is illustrated in the Supplement<sup>3</sup>. Thomas Smith<sup>4</sup> was his Tutor. He was to be his lifelong friend, and eventually the husband of his wife's mother<sup>5</sup>, Dean and Bishop of Carlisle. Among those he found in the College as undergraduates senior to himself were Christopher Musgrave<sup>6</sup>, Timothy Halton<sup>7</sup>, Dick<sup>8</sup> and Thomas Lamplugh<sup>9</sup>, William Wilson<sup>10</sup>, Edward Norryes<sup>11</sup>, and Clement Ellis<sup>12</sup>. Allan Prickett<sup>13</sup> entered the same day and was soon followed by Joseph Williamson<sup>14</sup>. Others who joined the College during the next two years were Thomas Cartwright<sup>1</sup>, Sir George Fletcher<sup>2</sup>, and Christopher Crakenthorp<sup>3</sup>. Barlow<sup>4</sup> was at this time a Fellow, and another Thomas Lamplugh<sup>5</sup>, as Halton<sup>6</sup>, Ellis<sup>7</sup>, and Williamson<sup>8</sup> were soon to be.

D. F.'s connexion with the College was not likely to be interrupted by the termination of his residence. There was a continual current flowing between the counties and the College. The Index shows that about one hundred and fifty persons mentioned in this volume were members of the College, and those mentioned are not all with whom he had relations of one kind or another.

His father died 24 May, 1653, and at nineteen he found himself head of his family. His first business was to clear the estate, which was in the hands of the Committee for Compounding<sup>9</sup>. Family disputes also had attended his father's succession to Rydal on the death of a cousin in 1649<sup>10</sup>, and this legacy of contention needed as much care, patience, and prudence as the dealing with the Parliamentary Committee.

To judge from his accounts, which are here our principal sources of information, the hours of leisure he secured from these wearisome but important businesses were spent in a way befitting his position and education. He found time for visits to friends and relatives, to swim in Thames<sup>1</sup>, to see a play<sup>2</sup>, the Turk<sup>3</sup>, and other entertainments<sup>4</sup>, and money to dress himself suitably, and to buy the books in which he always delighted.

<sup>1</sup> Thomas Cartwright, grandson of the famous puritan of the same name who flourished in the days of Elizabeth, was born at Northampton 1 Sept. 1634. He was intruded as a 'Tabiter' into Queen's College 'tempore usurpationis,' entering in Michaelmas term and matriculating 'cler. fil.' 18 Nov. 1650. He proceeded B.A. 17 Feb. 1653, M.A. 21 June, 1655, and having been ordained was made domestic chaplain to Henry Duke of Gloucester at the Restoration, and after much other promotion was made dean of Ripon 1675, and bishop of Chester 1686. He conspired with James II to establish the Romish religion in England, was head of the commission which expelled the fellows of Magdalen for refusing to elect the king's nominee as president, fled with James to Saint-Germain, and accompanied him to Ireland, where he died of dysentery at Dublin 15 April, 1689. His diary was published by the Camden Society. He bequeathed to Queen's College 'where I was pleased and blessed with my education' a portrait of Bishop Barlow, 'as the greatest light and ornament of learning and piety that this age at least hath bred in that College.' His portrait as bishop is in the College hall, and as dean of Ripon, by Soest, in the provost's house.

After his marriage he did not often journey southwards, though his duties as justice of the peace for Cumberland, Westmorland, and Lancashire, and landowner in all three counties kept him often away from home. His reputation caused him to be constantly appealed to for the settlement of family or other disputes, and in a period of extreme political complexity he seems to have secured the respectful regard of persons of all creeds and of all parties.

He added to his literary and antiquarian tastes a great interest in educational questions. He discusses school-books with schoolmasters, becomes feoffee or trustee of more than one local school, he seems to have started a school at Rydal on his property, if not in his own house<sup>5</sup>, he is consulted as to the appointment of tutors and masters by his friends, and took much pains in securing for his sons the best education obtainable, and in testing, so far as he was able, the education they were obtaining.

Of his eleven sons four became members of the University, three of Queen's College, one, George, of Edmund Hall. It is his correspondence with them that will form the staple of the book, though this first volume gives but little indication of this. During the years which elapsed between 1652, when he left Oxford, and 1678, when his second son Henry entered Queen's College, his direct relations with the University were naturally suspended, but in his correspondence with Smith and Williamson his connexion with the University is virtually continued, and the episode of Henry Brougham's life there <sup>1</sup> which finds its way into the Fleming papers through D. F.'s inheritance of the Dudley correspondence, helps to bridge over the interval. Meanwhile occasional letters to or from old Oxford friends or acquaintances, and references to the sons of friends resident at Oxford keep alive the interest, and numerous glimpses of the education his sons were getting at home or at school illustrate the intellectual preparation afforded at that period to those who were afterwards to become members of the University.

In December, 1680, when this volume closes, D. F. had lost his wife <sup>2</sup> and two of his sons<sup>3</sup>. His eldest daughter was married and had two sons surviving out of three<sup>4</sup>; Alice, the second daughter, was keeping house for him. William, the eldest son, was already a Westmorland magistrate, Henry had been two years and a half at Oxford, Daniel had just left school, George was at Kendal School under Richard Stewardson<sup>5</sup>, the rest were still at Rydal under the care of William Baxter<sup>6</sup>.

I have endeavoured to bring out as much as I was able of what illustrates the general history of the University during the period under consideration, but the correspondence of a Queen's man, at any time of the history of the University, would naturally be most illustrative of the history of the College. Incidentally, for the first five hundred years of its history, this would also involve much illustration of the history of the counties of Cumberland and Westmorland, and I have not scrupled to develop this side of my work. It is here I fear that my ignorance of the localities, which forty years of study have not availed to remove, will have led me into most blunders. The Additional Notes are not seldom confessions of mistake and attempts at amendment. Here especially, but in all other parts of my work as well, I shall thankfully accept the corrections of my critics.

I have reproduced the documents included in the volume with the greatest possible exactness, preserving even slips which seemed obvious, so as to ensure to my readers the most complete acquaintance with the originals. In the Notes I have followed as a rule in the spelling of proper names the authority which was for the moment before me.

In the prosecution of my work I have constantly had at my elbow all Anthony Wood's works, and Clark's History of his Life and Times, Hearne's Collections, Foster's Alumni Oxonienses and his genealogical works, the histories of Cumberland and Westmorland (oh, that they had been adequately indexed !), Cockayne's Peerage and Baronetage, West's and Tweddell's Furness, the Surtees edition of Dugdale's Visitation of Yorkshire and the Chetham edition of his Visitation of Lancashire, the Dictionary of National Biography and Dr. Murray's New Historical English Dictionary.

My friends have not been allowed to be ignorant of my labours. Help on individual points is acknowledged where the information is given, but I must specially here acknowledge the help I have received from Sir Henry Maxwell Lyte, Dr. J. F. Payne, Miss Armitt of Rydal Cottage, Ambleside; Mr. Chapman, Vicar of Coniston; Mr. Sherwen, Archdeacon of Westmorland; Dr. Ware, Bishop of Barrow in Furness; Mr. C. H. Firth; Mr. Edwards, Vicar of Kirkland; Dr. Murray; Dr. Prescott, Archdeacon of Carlisle; Dr. Henry Bradley; Mr. Belcher, Vicar of Bramley; Mr. F. J. Weld, Mrs. Tempest of Broughton Hall, Dr. Garnett, the Hon. Lady Leighton-Warren, Dr. Shadwell, Mr. F. Leach, Mr. C. H. Lowry, Mr. C. B. Hodgson, the late Mr. G. B. Woodburne, and the late Chancellor Ferguson, who had he lived would, I feel sure, have saved me from many of the errors and omissions which the book contains. These would have been much more numerous but for the constant care and help bestowed by Mr. C. L. Stainer.

I have also to acknowledge the services rendered me by the Controller of the Clarendon Press, and by the compositors and readers, whose work in the manufacture of the volume must often have been tedious and troublesome.

AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF DANIEL FLEMING (342 A)<sup>1</sup>.

<sup>6</sup> Monkhall: a small manor in the township of Great Crosthwaite, the site of a cell or chantry, formerly belonging to the monks of Furness. Dr. Prescott has kindly referred me for the grant to Furness to Burton's Monasticon Eboracense (p. 159), and corrects Lysons' statement (Cumberland, p. 85), made on the authority of Mr. T. Denton, that it was the monks of Carlisle to whom the place belonged. It was granted by Henry VIII to John Williamson, but in another hundred years had come to the Flemings. It was at the western end of the present Fitz Park, Keswick, and has been sold by the present owner of Rydal and a cottage hospital erected on its site. The 'fish stews' of the monks are still visible in the unevenness of the ground, and you can trace down to the Crossings Bridge by Crosthwaite Church the old disused hollow way by which the monks came to the church services. A faculty pew in the church is still available for the owner of Monkhall (Canon Rawnsley). See also Nicolson and Burn, ii. 92; Sir Daniel Fleming's Survey of Cumberland, p. 15.

seige<sup>9</sup> June 45), Mr Tho. Milburne<sup>10</sup> at Penrith, Mr Sanderson at Kes. in 48 & Mr Dodgson at Bank<sup>11</sup> & Home 49.

<sup>2</sup> Skirwith and Ousby are in the extreme south-east of Cumberland, just under Crossfell. Skirwith was a manor in the parish of Kirkland, bought in 1607 by Agnes, widow of William Fleming, D. F.'s great-grandfather. She settled it on Daniel, her fourth son, whose son William, D. F.'s father, became, by failure of his elder brothers' descendants, head of the Rydal family.

<sup>3</sup> Perhaps John Sonthiacke or Southaike of Cumberland, who entered Queen's College, as batler, in Michaelmas Term, 1626, and matriculated 21 November, 1628, sacerdotis filius, aged 17. He may have been related to the Francis Southaik who sold the advowson of Skelton to Corpus Christi College, Oxford, in 1607.

<sup>7</sup> There were two John Martins of Queen's College, either of whom might have been teaching at Eamont Bridge at this time: John, son of Thomas of Barton, the parish of Westmorland into which you cross over the Eamont from Penrith, who matriculated 23 Nov., 1638, aged 17; and John, son of Thomas of Langonby (Langwathby), not far from Penrith to the east, who matriculated 8 May, 1640, aged 16. The war would probably have brought both of them home from Oxford after taking their B.A. degree, which they seem to have done, one in February, and one in March, 1643-4. In the Long Roll for 1642-3, two Martins are among the 'servientes,' to whom 'secundum decretum factum x Sept. in dissolucione collegii super adventum hostium' £12. 02 was paid 'vice communarum pro septem hebdomadis.' They are there called Martin senior and junior.

<sup>9</sup> The siege of Carlisle lasted from October, 1644, to June, 1645. Several Penrith people contributed provisions to the garrison (Nicolson and Burn, ii. 234 sqq.).

<sup>10</sup> This was perhaps Thomas Milborne, who entered Queen's College, as batler, in Easter Term, 1628, and matriculated 21 November, 1628, as of Cumberland, aged 17, sacerdotis filius, and proceeded B.A., 20 October, 1631, and M.A., 8 July, 1634, who was probably younger brother of Robert, who matriculated, aged 18, the same day. Their father may have been Leonard Milbourne, who was parson of Ousby in 1644, and of Skelton from 1623 onwards.

<sup>11</sup> Bank: a manor in the parish of Kirkland, and so not far from Skirwith. It belonged to the Crakenthorpes.

Went to London May 29, 1650. with J. B.<sup>1</sup> to clear Con. Ryd. & Beck. from sequestr.<sup>2</sup>

Entered in Grays Inn in June 1650<sup>3</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> Coniston, Rydal, and Beckermere were the three chief Fleming properties in Lancashire, Westmorland, and Cumberland respectively. Both William Fleming, D. F.'s father, and the cousin of the same name whose heir he was, had appeared in arms on the king's side. The family property was sequestered, and Rydal plundered and stripped by the Cromwellians under Sir Wilfred Lawson of Isel (Burns and Nicolson, i. 162 sq.). For the details of the process of clearing the estates from sequestration, see Appendix A.

<sup>7</sup> Daniel Greenwood, Principal of Brasenose College from 1648 to 60, was Vice-Chancellor of the University from 1650 to 52.

<sup>8</sup> John Ryves entered Queen's College, as Upper Commoner, 23 September, 1649. He matriculated 18 November, 1650, and became student of the Middle Temple, 1651, as son and heir of George, of Damory, Dorset, Esq., 'the last of the Damory line' (Foster, Alumni Oxon., s. v.). His pedigree is in Hinchins' Dorset (ed. iii), vol. iv. p. 97.

<sup>9</sup> Henry Rowe entered Queen's College, as Upper Commoner, 31 March, 1651, matriculated 24 April, 1651. Foster suggests that he may be the same as Henry Roe, son of Henry, who died 15 August, 1670, and was buried at Hackney.

<sup>10</sup> If a set of rooms consisted, as at present, of one large and two small rooms, the practice was to sleep together in the large room (camera) and work separately in the small rooms (musaeae).

<sup>12</sup> In Hearne's time the fee for the matriculation of an 'armiger' was 16s. 6d. (Bodl. MS. Rawlinson, Hearne's Diaries, 161, p. 11).

In June 1651 in St Maryes Church I did first see Mrs B. F.<sup>1</sup> afterwards my wife.

I went to Bath & Bristol with &c. Aug. 13, 1651.

I sett my Lady F.<sup>2</sup> &c. in Mar. 51 northward as farr as Toak-Hill<sup>3</sup>.

A greate Eclipse<sup>4</sup> (on a black Munday) at Lichfield. I first presented Mrs B. F. with a gold Ring.

<sup>3</sup> Toak-Hill or Talk o' th' Hill (on the Hill), on the great North road, on the borders of Staffordshire and Cheshire, 5 miles north-north-west from Newcastle-under-Lyme. Nine counties are said to be visible from the village, and the mountains of Wales in the distance.

<sup>4</sup> 'The famous Black Monday; fearfulest eclipse of the Sun ever seen by mankind. Came on about nine in the morning; darker and darker, ploughmen unyoked their teams, stars came out, birds sorrowfully chirping took to roost, men in amazement to prayers: a day of much obscurity; Black Monday, or Mirk Monday; 29th March, 1652. Much noised of by Lilly, Booker, and the buzzard Astrologer tribe' (Carlyle, Cromwell's Letters and Speeches (ed. 1845), vol. ii. p. 169). Easter Monday had before this got the name of Black Monday from the dark inclement weather which befell Edward III and his army before Paris on that day, which was 14 April, in 1360. In 1652, 29 March was the fifth Monday in Lent.

<sup>5</sup> John Kirkby of Coniston Hall, second son of Roger Kirkby of Kirkby Ireleth, Lancashire, and Jane, daughter of Edward Rigby of Burgh, his wife, was at school for two years at Sedbergh, under Gilbert Nelson, and was admitted pensioner of St. John's College, Cambridge, 14 May, 1631, being then past fifteen years of age. He was brother of D. F.'s mother. II and XXV are samples of his Latinity.

<sup>7</sup> Yanwith or Yanwath, a picturesque Hall with a Peel tower, close to the London and North-Western Railway, just south of Penrith, was at this time occupied by Christopher Dudley (called below My uncle Dudley), who was married to Agnes, sister of William Fleming, D. F.'s father.

<sup>9</sup> Acorn Bank, the manor house of the manor of Temple Sowerby, was at this time the seat of John Dalston, whose son Christopher afterwards married Bridget, third daughter of Sir Henry Fletcher, and younger sister of Barbara, D. F.'s wife.

I did see Sr Geo.<sup>1</sup> &c. Afterwards I went to Hutton<sup>2</sup>, being ye first time I was ever there. I did go again unto Hutton.

Dec. 18, 52. I began my London-journey<sup>3</sup>. Jan. 2, 52. I went to Oxford & took my caution-money<sup>4</sup>. Jan. 22 I went first into Comons at Grays Inn & paid 4<sup>ti</sup> for a Fine, besides Fees.

My Father dyed May 24. 53. which sad newes I heard not (being at London) before June 3. 53. I came from London Sept. 28. 53. I did come downe by Manchester to see my brother Roger<sup>5</sup> an Apprentice ther 8<sup>ber</sup> 1. 2 & 3. 1653. October 6. I was God-Father to Mrs Agnes Dicconson at Heskin<sup>6</sup>, & I came to Coniston Oct. 13, 53. Nov. 8, 53 I went to Hutton, (haveing been at Yanewith, Skir. & Hutton-John<sup>7</sup>) & came from thence Nov. 14. At Hutton. Nov. 20. I went Nov. 22 from Keswick by Isel<sup>8</sup> to Lamplugh<sup>9</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Sir George Fletcher was only son and heir of Sir Henry Fletcher of Hutton, Bart., who was killed at the battle of Rowton Heath in Cheshire, A.D. 1645, fighting for the king. Sir George was a contemporary of D. F. at Queen's, having entered there as fellow commoner 16 Jnne, and matriculated 30 July, 1651. He was at that time eighteen years of age. There are many letters from him to D. F. in the Rydal papers. He was repeatedly M.P. for Cumberland between 1661 and his death on 23 July, 1700. George Johnston, servant to Sir George Fletcher, was entered on the College Books the same day as his master, but does not seem to have matriculated.

<sup>2</sup> Hutton, called Hutton in the Forest to distinguish it from Hutton John, the seat of the Hudlestons, was the seat of the Fletchers, 5½ miles north-west of Penrith. The Fletchers were originally of Cockermouth, and bought Hutton of Thomas Hutton in the reign of James I.

<sup>6</sup> Heskin is a township in the parish of Eccleston, not far from Chorley in Lancashire. In Wrightington, an adjoining township in the same parish, was Wrightington Hall, the chief seat of the Dicconsons, who had also property in the other townships. Agnes Kirkby, third daughter of Roger, eldest brother of Alice, D. F.'s mother, was married to Hugh Dicconson of Wrightington.

<sup>7</sup> Hutton John, near the road from Penrith to Keswick, is the seat of the Hudlestons. They were connected with the Flemings through Dorothy, second sister of D. F.'s father, who was married to Andrew Hudlestone.

<sup>8</sup> Isel, near Cockermouth, was the seat of the Lawsons. Katherinc, daughter of Sir Wilfrid Lawson, was married to Andrew Hudlestone, son of the Andrew who was married to Dorothy Fleming: see preceding note.

Nov. 25.

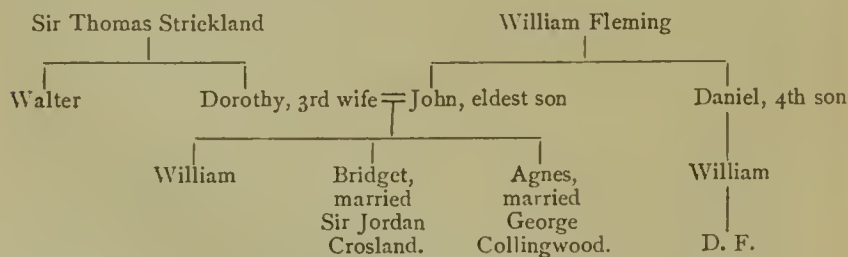

Jan. 10. 53. A meeting<sup>3</sup> at Kendal concerning Rydal, &c.
Rydal surveyed Jan. 11, 53.

<sup>1</sup> Southwaite is a mill on the river Cocker before it reaches Cockermouth, as I am informed by Canon Sherwen of Dean, 'and close to that mill was a bridge for foot passengers, a wooden erection which existed in 1866, and was till five or six years ago the only bridge over the river at that place. There is now (1900) a commodious stone bridge a few yards higher up the stream. I have many times,' writes the Canon, 'driven through the ford, but after a heavy rainfall it was often dangerous. It is just the place where a man, either riding through the ford or walking over the foot-bridge and holding the bridle of a horse passing through the stream, might have it carried away.' It looks as though D. F.'s accident was due to an attempt to get the horse over the bridge.

<sup>2</sup> Little Beckermeth or St. John Beckermeth, to be distinguished from Great or St. Bridget Beckermeth: a manor near Calderbridge in West Cumberland, a very ancient property of the Flemings.

The relationship of the persons here mentioned is exhibited in the following extract from the family pedigree:—

John Archer was local Commissioner for Cumberland and Westmoreland, and took a leading part in the business of the Committee, visiting London more than once on its business, and receiving at Kendal the letters addressed to it. In 1649 he was Mayor of Kendal. In 1654 he became dissatisfied with the proceedings of the London Committee, and resigned, being succeeded, 18 May, 1654, by Jer. Tolhurst and Paul Wymond. He acted as Commissioner on different occasions with Richard Brauthwaite, Roger Bateman, Thomas Lamplugh, and Thomas Craister. See Calendar of the Committee for Compounding with Delinquents, passim. His name appears in a list of elders at Kendal in the list of the names of the presbyterian classes in the Barony of Kendal (Tanner MSS. Bodleian, vol. ix. folio 527). See W. A. Shaw's Church under the Commonwealth, vol. ii. p. 369, and Appendix A.

<sup>4</sup> The Bradshaws intermarried with the Standishes of Duxbury and with the Andertons, and this would bring them into connexion with the Rigbys and Kirkbys, the family of D. F.'s mother (see Chetham Soc. (St. George's Visitation), lxxxii. 57, and lxxxiv. 52 (Dugdale's do.), and Burke's Extinct Baronetage, s.v.). The head of the family at the time was Roger, afterwards knighted and made a baronet, whose grandmother was an Anderton, and who married a Pennington.

<sup>5</sup> Sir Richard Newdigate (1602-78) was made a justice of the upper bench 31 May, 1654, refused to serve on the commission for trying the Yorkshire insurgents in 1655 on the ground that levying war was not within the statute of treason, and was removed from his place (3 May); reinstated before 26 June, 1657, and made chief justice 17 January, 1660. He ceased to hold office after the Restoration, but was made a baronet 1677 (Dict. Nat. Biog., s.v.).

<sup>6</sup> This may have reference to the damage done at Rydal by the Cromwellians under Sir Wilfred Lawson, who 'plundered and stripped Rydal-hall of all that was valuable, and tore up the floors to search for hidden treasures' (Burns and Nicolson, i. 163).

Ryd.—&c.

Apr. 27. 55 Went towards London, May 4, 55 at London.

June 22. 55 Bought a Tortois-shell Trunk & gloves. Paid for cutting of my steel with 15 Coates<sup>9</sup> therein.

<sup>5</sup> Sidney, son of Hon. James Montagu, and grandson of Henry, first Earl of Manchester, was now about fourteen years of age.

<sup>6</sup> Sir Edward Mansel, of Margam, son of Sir Lewis Mansel, first baronet, and of Elizabeth, eldest sister of the above-mentioned James Montagu, and so first cousin of Sidney Montagu, was now about eighteen years of age. He was also first cousin of Alice, daughter of Hugh Hare, first Baron Coleraine, by his wife Alice, second sister of the same James Montagu, who had in February of this year become Sir George Fletcher's first wife.

<sup>8</sup> D. F.'s accounts for this period are printed in part in XXXII, where this item appears as paid 'to y<sup>e</sup> Post for my Lady Fletcher's Statute 00-01-00.' It would seem that he had been seeking for some Statute, which eventually he had to ask her to send him by post. As her husband had been killed fighting for the king, she would probably be at this time in legal trouble on behalf of her son's inheritance. In 1645 she and her children had been sent as prisoners to Carlisle (Burns and Nicolson, ii. 390).

July 4, 55 I left London. I got home July 17, 55.

4, Hnddleston; 5, Peele; 6, Millum; 7, Fenwick; 8, Stapylton; 9, Brus; 10, FitzAlan; 11, Maltravers; 12, Ingham; 13, Delapole; 14, Chamer. (See Foster's Cumb. and Westm. Pedigrees, p. 46.)

<sup>2</sup> Probably Edward Tildesley, of Tildesley, Esq., son of Sir Thomas, who was killed in the fight at Wigan, 25 August, 1651. He was born 1635, and his grandmother was an Anderton, hence probably the cousinship.

<sup>3</sup> Lancelot Fletcher, of Tallantire, was the head of the family of which the Fletchers of Hutton were a branch. He seems to have belonged to the Parliamentary party, as his eldest child, Dorothy, was married 29 September, 1652, to George Larkham, who was the first pastor of the congregational church in Cocker-mouth (Cumb. and Westm. Transactions, iv. 266).

<sup>8</sup> Kirkland, the parish in which Skirwith is situate. The Flemings held both the township of Kirkland and the manor of Skirwith. This payment probably has reference to the purchase of the remaining part of the manor of Kirkland, which had not been completed by his father (Burns and Nicolson, i. 165).

<sup>9</sup> George Collingwood, of Esslington, in Northumberland, married Agnes, daughter of John Fleming, of Rydal, co-heiress of her brother William, whose death, 12 May, 1649, before he came of age, made William, D. F.'s father, head of the Fleming family. His son or grandson of the same name was attainted and executed in 1715 for joining the Earl of Derwentwater in his rebellion, when Esslington, which is in the parish of Whittingham, was bought by the Liddells, and now belongs to the Earl of Ravensworth. See Appendix A, where Mrs. Collingwood appears as Agnes Fleming.

<sup>10</sup> Sir Jordan Crosland, knighted at Lincoln, 14 July, 1642, married Bridget, the elder daughter of John Fleming. These payments were probably to get rid of the claims of the two sisters. See above, n. 3, p. 6. In 1665, when Dugdale's visitation of Yorkshire took place, he was forty-five years of age, and Constable of Scarborough Castle. He is described in the visitation (Surtees Society, xxxvi. p. 133) as of Newby, in the liberty of Rippon, in the county of York. Newby is now the seat of the Vyners. Harum How, which is given as Sir Jordan's residence in the Cumberland Visitation, is in the parish of Helmsley, in the North Riding of Yorkshire, not far from Duncombe Park, the seat of the Earls of Feversham.

<sup>11</sup> See n. 5, p. 9. This may have been a son of Sir Thomas Sandford, who did not live to maturity. Cuthbert is a name in the Sandford family, but does not

DANIEL FLEMING TO JOHN KIRKBY (216).

Non existimo mihi sollicitâ oratione opus esse apud te (amantissime avuncule) ut culpam supioris silentij deprecetur. Cùm enim nihil haberem quod tua scire magnopere interesset, causa non erat cur ultrò ineptirem, teq. virum serium ac gravem literis inanibus ac impolitis interpellarem. Verumtamen cùm pspexisse mihi videar ex amicissimis tuis literis te nostrum in scribendo officium non aspernaturum, committere nolim ut meas qualesquales literulas diutius desiderares.

Dici certè non potest quàm gratæ mihi fuerunt literæ illæ tuæ, ex quibus insignem tuam erga me benevolentiam facile perspexi. Huic enim debeo quod mei adeo singularem (quam ego sane à meis meritis sperare minimè potuissem) retineas memoriam.

Utinam mihi esset in promptu eam referre gratiam, quam me tibi semper habiturum profiteor. Verùm majora sunt tua in me collata beneficia quàm ut verbis tantùm gratias tibi agere aut velim aut debeam. Accipe interim, ac boni (quæso) consule has studiorum meorum Academicorum primitias, hanc infantulæ Musæ balbutiem, donec quid grandior ætas postera sorsque ferat melius. Quod autem neq. verbis neq. officijs præstare valeam, conabor precibus; diu te incolumem servet summus rerum arbiter, ac tandem (sed serò, serò precor!) te reddat Olympo. Vale et salve, benignissime avuncule, et me inter tui amantes ac colentes haud postremum cense.

Tibi omni officiorum nexu

ALICE FLEMING<sup>1</sup> TO DANIEL FLEMING (217).

SONNE DANIELL

I receiued yo<sup>r</sup> Ire and I am glad to heare of yo<sup>r</sup> good intention; and I wilbe more glad to heare of the reall pformance, accordingly. (Ellen) second daughter of Roger Kirkby, Alice Fleming's eldest brother. Crowle was Sheriff of Hull in 1657, and Mayor in 1661 and in 1679. In his first Mayoralty, along with Eleanor his wife, he founded God's House Hospital, or Crowle's Hospital, in Sewer Lane, Hull, for a Master and twelve poor men. In the large room of the hospital hangs a family picture of Mr. and Mrs. Crowle, their son, and five daughters (Tickell's History of Hull, pp. 760 sqq.).

<sup>2</sup> Sir Edward Wrightington was of Brascnose College, where he matriculated 9 Feb., 1593-4, aged 13, of co. Lancaster, arm. fil. He was admitted of Gray's Inn, 30 Jan., 1597-8, as son and heir-apparent of John Wrightington of Wrightington, co. Lanc., esq., and was bencher, 1637; he was one of the council of York, M.P. for St. Mawes, 1621-2.

Pasch. 1632, and matriculated 9 Nov., 1632, aged 17, son of Matthew, of Ravenheads, sac. (i. e. priest). His father was also of Queen's (1598-9), also of co. Lancaster, as was a son, Thomas (1661), who matriculated as of Dorton (i. e. Dalton, close to which was Rownehead), co. The quotation from Ovid's Tristia (V. iv. 29, 30), and the poetical version, are from Howell, Book I, Sect. I, Letter xxx. What follows is from the same Book, Sect. IV, Letter ii, and the finale including the quatrain from Sect. I, Letter xiv. The spelling and punctuation are original, but the quotations are verbally exact. They were probably carelessly copied, as the unusual orthography is in some cases Howell's. Mr. C. E. Doble kindly referred me to Howell.

my best respects wayte on yo<sup>u</sup> wth many thanks for yo<sup>r</sup> respects yo<sup>r</sup>s I receiued wherein I am glad to heare of yo<sup>r</sup> health it is the first I receiued from yo<sup>u</sup> this halfe yeare tho I have writt seuerall to yo<sup>u</sup> w<sup>ch</sup> made me doubtfull that in some sort I had displeased yo<sup>u</sup> w<sup>ch</sup> I would be very loath unlesse it be for want of knowledge w<sup>ch</sup> I hoope yo<sup>r</sup> goodnesse and discrassion vpon appearrance off the truth
I hoope will excuse Sir to render yo<sup>u</sup> an account of yo<sup>r</sup> fathers bussines
I am not able for all proceedings in theise tymes goes contrary expectacon for now it is not knowne what will be done concerning Rydale for the appeale will not be brought to any pfection and now the presse is to be brought upon the sale, but yet we hoope to preuent them
And to get it reported in the house wth some other estats in the like condicon but noe certaintie as yet w<sup>ch</sup> way, heere is new troubles still
pte of his reall and psonall estate <sup>1</sup>. And that yo<sup>r</sup> father must appeare

<sup>1</sup> Mr. C. H. Firth has kindly explained this. The Committee for Advance of Money, whose Proceedings have been calendared in three volumes by Mrs. Everett Green, and who are to be distinguished from the Committee for Compounding with Delinquents, 'levied a forced loan, the amount of which was assessed at one-twentieth of the real and one-fifth of the personal estate of all persons who had not voluntarily contributed to the support of the Parliament in the War. In 1648 Parliament ordered (5 June) that these sums should not be levied excepting on those Delinquents who were within the Ordinance of Seques-at Haberdashers hale<sup>1</sup> the 16th of this instant to giue satisfaction therein but wee hoope other wisse to cleare it And now the Commissioners in Cumberland are busy vpon the reveiwes of those gent<sup>s</sup> estats alreadye compounded of weh yo<sup>r</sup> father is one that the are busy wth all but as yet wee doe not know how to preuent them but wee hoope shall doe in tyme.

Yo<sup>r</sup> Cousen Elinor I meane yo<sup>r</sup> Cousen Crawley<sup>2</sup> and her husband is come in to England and Landed & liue at Hull. All frends in Generall in euery place is well, Addan Walker was maryed yesterday for a new yeares gift Sir as sone as I can I shall render yo<sup>u</sup> a better account of all proceedings in the Intrem I make bould to wryt my self

Coniston January 2th 1651 Sir

With many thanks for yo<sup>r</sup> last; & the Returne of my Respects to yo<sup>r</sup> Selse I desire also my Humblest may bee p<sup>r</sup>sented my tration (see Preface to Cal. of Comm. for Advance of Money, p. xi). Under this regulation William Fleming was assessed at £50 on or before 13 Aug. 1651. But on 17 or 18 March, 1652, in consequence of the general Act of Pardon, he was discharged from the fine in question. (Cal. of Comm. for Advance of Money, pp. 1370, 1.)

<sup>1</sup> Haberdashers' Hall, in Maiden lane, near Goldsmith's Hall (or according to Mrs. Everett Green, Cal. of Comm. for Advance of Money, p. xi, in Gresham Street), was the place of meeting of the Committee for the Advance of Money, which was thence called Haberdashers' Hall Committee. The powers of this Committee were transferred in June, 1650, to the Committee for Compounding. (Cal. Comm. Comp., pt. I, p. xiii.)

REV. THOMAS SMITH<sup>2</sup> TO DANIEL FLEMING (233).

MR FLEMMING

I have not seen John Bankes though I was at Penrith y<sup>e</sup> last Tuesday: but Rob: Carr haveing occasion to stay longer in towne then I did, mett with him, & receiued the monies & yo<sup>r</sup> letter of him. I haue distributed yo<sup>r</sup> services amongst yo<sup>r</sup> freinds here, in yo<sup>r</sup> owne expressions, & they were kindly accepted of. S<sup>r</sup> George desires and hopes to see you here before you returne for y<sup>e</sup> South<sup>3</sup>: and I (if I had any authority yet remaining ouer you) would enioine you to do it: whereof if you faile, I shall acquaint yo<sup>r</sup> new Tutor<sup>4</sup> with it, & desire him to chide you. I pray present my very humble service to your Father and mother & your Uncle Mr Kirby: I am very sorry my occasions haue hitherto hinderd mee from waiting on them: but ere paper. It gives internal evidence of being written while D. F. was in Oxford and in communication with Lady Fletcher and her family, apparently between the visit to Bath and the setting of the party northward (p. 4). This agrees with the date of XIII.

<sup>2</sup> See note 5, p. 3. Smith seems now to have left Oxford, and to have been acting as chaplain to Lady Fletcher, whom he afterwards married. He vacated his fellowship, owing it would seem to his marriage, towards the end of 1656, and Timothy Halton, afterwards Provost, was elected in his place in February, 1656-7. This letter is sealed with an eagle displayed, probably the badge of Queen's College, Oxford. Smith's own arms as Bishop were, or, a chevron between three crosses pattee fitchy sable.

<sup>3</sup> It appears from p. 5 that he did go to Hinton before he went South. He only returned to Oxford to resume his Caution Money; so his new Tutor at Queen's did not have much to do with him.

JOHN BANKES

Upon Munnday last I receaued a letter from Mr Wharton <sup>2</sup> as alsoe a Coppie of a peticoñ wch hee hath p<sup>r</sup>ferred and already passed the same Comittee, and hee likewise writes that their was then an order granted, but not signed against the cuttinge downe and spoyleinge of the woodes, wch hee would send downe by the next post, wch if already sent away then soe, if not then hasten it wth all possible speed for that daylie greate spoyle is done in the woddess.

I did likewise receaue a letter from my Brother John Kirkby by Mr ffelles<sup>3</sup> man vpon their comeinge home, wherein hee writes that hee was wth Mr ffell at his lodgeinge, where they had a longe discourse aboute my busines, and hee founde him to bee of very good hope that Ridall would yet be kept from sale, and that in respect my Cosen Wilm ffleminge<sup>4</sup> died in his minority, before hee could cutt of the Intaile by ffyne; And their result upon the same was that witnesses

<sup>2</sup> Thomas Wharton, son of Humphrey, of Warcop, Westmoreland, gent., was admitted to Gray's Inn, 4 Feb., 1647-8. He is often mentioned in the Calendar of the Committee for Compounding, as taking part in the purchase of estates from the Treason Committee. He seems to have been much employed, probably as agent for others, in those transactions. On all the subject of this letter, see Appendix A. The Warcop branch of the Wharton family, is the only branch on whose history E. R. Wharton has been unable to throw much light. They were descended from Thomas, second son of the second Lord Wharton (The Whartons of Wharton, pp. 59 foll.).

in Grayes Inn.

<sup>2</sup> Eleanor, daughter of William Fleming, the writer's grandfather, was married to Sir John Lowther, Kt., M.P. for Westmorland, who died 15 Sept., 1637. His second son, Christopher, was created a Baronet by Charles I, 11 June, 1642, married Frances, daughter and heir of Christopher Lancaster, of Stockbridge, and had by her a son John, who succeeded him in the baronetcy, who is here called 'her grandchild Lowther,' and is in the Fleming papers called indifferently Sir John Lowther, of Stockbridge, or of Whitehaven, to distinguish him from his uncle, old Lady Lowther's eldest son, Sir John Lowther, of Lowther. Sir Christopher's widow was married to John Lamplugh, of Lamplugh, Esq., as her second husband. He seems to be the person here referred to as old Lady Lowther's son Lamplugh.

<sup>3</sup> Thomas Wybergh, of Clifton and St. Bees, succeeded to the estates on the death of his father, 22 Feb., 1647. The Wyberghs obtained the manor, rectory, and cell of St. Bees from the Chaloners, to whom they had been granted by Edward VI in 1553. (R. S. Ferguson's note in Sandford's Cumberland, p. 10.) As the result, it would seem, of these negotiations, the Wyberghs mortgaged St. Bees to the Lowthers, who foreclosed in 1663, and the estate now belongs to the Earl of Lonsdale.

Sr, if this bee according to your mind, I desire you imploy me againe, that I may know, that I have hitt the naile on the head; If not, yet I beseech you command me once more to serve you, that I may (in part) make you a requitall (I now resideing here) for this my first fault. I have beene lately at Oxõñ, where all your freinds are very well, and who have not (as yet) passed an Act of Oblivion concerning you. I have procured a letter for M<sup>rs</sup> Barbara<sup>3</sup> from my God-mother<sup>4</sup>, the we<sup>h</sup> I desire you presently present her; and I have (but with much adoe) gott you one from Dr Kit<sup>5</sup>. the which with his owne, and

<sup>2</sup> Cassandra, the fam'd Romanee, written originally in Freneh, and now elegantly rendered into English by an Honorable Person. London. Printed for Humphrey Mosele, and are to be sold at his shop at the Prinee's Arme in St. Paul's Church-yard, 1652 (8vo. In Bodleian). The author was Gauthier de Costes, Seigneur de la Calprenède, the translator Sir Charles Cotterell, master of the eeremonies, whom see in D. N. B. s.v. The original appeared at Paris in 1642. The translation was reprinted in 4to, 1667; in folio, 1676; and in 12mo, 5 volumes, 1725. There was a dedication to the 4to edition to Charles II, from the Hague, June 5, 1653. Pepys bought it for his wife 16 Nov., 1668, and she read it to him 5 May, 1669, and he found it 'very good indeed.'

<sup>5</sup> Dr. may be a nickname or for Ds., Dominus, the proper designation of a B.A. The person referred to is probably Christopher Musgrave, who entered Queen's College Ter. Nat. 1647-8, but did not matriculate till 10 July, 1651, the day he proceeded B.A. He was second son of Sir Philip Musgrave, second baronet of Hartley, co. Westmorland, and succeeded Sir Richard, his elder brother in the baronetey, Dec., 1687, having been knighted in 1671. He did not enter Gray's Inn till 1654, so may have stayed some time at Oxford after taking his degree. His younger brother Thomas was Fellow of Queen's and afterwards Dean of Carlisle. There are many letters from Christopher in the Rydal papers. He was M.P. for different constitueneies from 1671 till his death in 1704, including the University of Oxford, for which he was Burgess from 1698 to 1700. His life is in the Dict. of Nat. Biog.

<sup>2</sup> Sir George Dalston, of Dalston. He had been sheriff of Cumberland in 1619, and M.P. for Cumberland in 1641, so must now have been of a considerable age. His funeral sermon was preached by bishop Jeremy Taylor, 28 Sept., 1657. The sermon was printed separately at the time. There is a copy in the Bibliotheca Jacksoniana at Tullie House, Carlisle. It was afterwards added to the 1674 edition of The Worthy Communicant, on the title-page of which it is described as A Sermon never printed in the Folio Volume of Sermons. It is in the sixth volume of bishop Heber's edition of Taylor's works. The sermon ends with a sketch of Sir George Dalston, full of appreciations, but giving little information beyond that he was born in Cumberland and educated at Cambridge. Sir George's son William had been created a Baronet, 15 Feb., 1640-1, and lived generally at Heath Hall in Yorkshire. There is a view of Dalston Hall and of some antiquities there in Gentleman's Magazine, lx. 1069. See, however, especially Mr. C. J. Ferguson's article in Transactions of Cumbd. and Westmd. Antiq. and Archaeol. Soc., vol. ii. p. 165.

<sup>5</sup> Fuller's or Fulwood's Rents is a narrow paved court in Holborn, nearly opposite the end of Chancery Lane. It leads into Gray's Inn Walks, Gray's Inn Gardens. Strype, in 1720, describes it thus:—'Fulwood's Rents, opposite to Chancery Lane, runneth up to Gray's Inn, into which it hath an entrance, through the gate: a place of a good resort, and taken up by coffec-houses, ale-houses, and houses of entertainment, by reason of its vicinity to Gray's Inn.' See more in Walter Thornbury's Old and New London, 4to, vol. i. p. 536. I owe this reference to Mr. Thurland of the Bodleian Library.

<sup>2</sup> Pepys, in his diary 26 Nov., 1665, says he 'with much ado set out, after my horses being frosted (which I know not what it means to this day).' Mr. Wheatley interprets it of 'having the horses' shoes turned up (query, down) by the smith,' but roughing, or using nails with pointed heads, or any other device would be equally frosting, if it prevented the horses from slipping on the ice.

The Seaton branch were connected with the Muncaster family through Mary, daughter of Thomas, of Muncaster, who married William, of Seaton, probably the latter Richard's grandfather. The former is probably the one here mentioned.

<sup>4</sup> Worcester House was in the Strand, between Durham Place and the Savoy, where Beaufort Buildings now are. It had been the residence of John Tiptoft, the great Earl of Worcester, and Lord High Treasurer of England. In 1613 Mathewe Paris, Girdler, bequeathed it to his mother, Katherine Paris. (R. R. Sharpe, Calendar of Wills proved in the Court of Husting, London, Part 2, p. 737.) In the Calendar of the Committee for Compounding, p. 119, there is a report on it made to the Committee, describing its situation, and stating that it has sixty rooms. A number of Parliamentary Committees seem from the same Calendar to have held their meetings there.

<sup>4</sup> Bankes' arithmetic seems doubly at fault. The sum here should have been 44 : 19 : 9, or, as the sum on p. 31 should have been 02 : 11 : 04, 45 : 02 : 9, so there was really due to him 00 : 12 : 09.

<sup>2</sup> These are the last males of the elder Fleming line, on failure of which D. F.'s father became head of the family. John died 27 Feb., 1642-3, and his son William 12 May, 1649. The latter was only fourteen at his father's death, and died of the smallpox before he was twenty-one. By his death his sisters' portions became augmented to 10,000<sup>4</sup> each, but the family estate went to William, D. F.'s father. Young as the William was who died in 1649, he had appeared in arms on the king's side. (Burns and Nicolson, i. 162, 164.)

<sup>4</sup> 'On October 11 (1649) . . . the House (of Commons) resolved that every member . . . should sign the engagement which had been taken by most of the members of the Council of State: "I do declare and promise that I will be true and faithful to the Commonwealth of England as the same is now established, without a King or House of Lords." On the following day the obligation of signing this engagement was extended to officers of the army and navy, to all soldiers and sailors under their command, to judges and officials of the Courts of Law, to members of the Inns of Court, as well as to all who held municipal offices, or sat in municipal councils; to all graduates and officers in the Universities, and to the masters, fellows, schoolmasters, and scholars of the Colleges of Eton, Winchester and Westminster; to all ministers admitted to a benefice, and, finally, to all who received pensions from the State' (Gardiner's Commonwealth and Protectorate (ed. 1894), i. 196, 197). In Gardiner's Constitutional Documents of the Puritan Revolution (ed. 2, 1899), p. 388, the same form of words is given with the date, 2 January, 1650, as an 'Engagement to be taken by all men of the age of eighteen,' with a reference to Civil War Tracts, E. 1060, No. 77, presumably in the British Museum, and to Commonwealth and Protectorate, i. 216.

<sup>4</sup> Alexander, son of Edward Rigby, and of Mary, daughter of Edward Hide, of Norbury and Hide in Cheshire, Esq., was at this time nineteen years of age. He was of Burgh, in the township of Duxbury, and the parish of Standish, in the hundred of Leyland, and of Layton in the Fylde district of Amounderness hundred, both in Lancashire, and was high-sheriff of the county in 1677-8. He paid £381 3s. 4d. to compound for his estate with the parliamentary authority in 1646. Burgh now belongs to the Andertons, with whom the Rigbys intermarried, and Layton to the Cliftons of Lytham. D. F.'s maternal grandmother was Jane Rigby, sister of Alexander's grandfather, so they were second cousins.

<sup>5</sup> Alexander's suit seems to have been successful, as in the Birch pedigree (Misc. Gen. et Her., i. 306), Anna, second daughter of Thomas Birch de Birch, in parochia de Manchester, appears as Uxor Alcx. Rigby de Burgh in com. Lanc. This Colonel Thomas Birch (to be distinguished from Col. John Birch, the captor of Hereford, whose life is in D. N. B.) was born in 1608. He was granted a com-township of Skelsmergh, in the parish of Kendal. They were connected with the Flemings through the Duckets. One of this John Layburne's sisters, Elizabeth, was married to Anthony Ducket, whose sister Alice was the first wife of John Fleming, eldest brother of Daniel, D. F.'s grandfather. The last Leybourne of Cunswick was attainted in 1715, and the place bought by Thomas Crowle. It is now the property of the Earl of Lonsdale.

The letter would probably have been despatched from London along with XXII. The words printed in italies are, in the original, drawn through with a pen.

<sup>2</sup> i.e. of arms. D. F. seems to have had a turn for heraldry and genealogy. He pays 2s., 9 April, 1653, 'for the Drawing of my Coat in Guilliam' (see XXVII), and throughout his life, as appears later on, the same taste prevails. The marks in the margin x seem to have been put with a view to extracting special items. Document No. 239 is such a selection of items from his accounts between April and June, 1653. It is not easy to discover on what principles the items are selected.

<sup>1</sup> Probably, Andrew Huddleston, the writer of XXV. He married Dorothy, sister of William, D. F.'s father. He suffered greatly for his loyalty to the crown, losing permanently all his estates in Oxfordshire, Lancashire and Westmorland. Hutton John was sequestered for many years and was all that was saved for the family at the Restoration. He was a Roman Catholic, and his brother John is said to have administered extreme unction to Charles II.

<sup>2</sup> Thomas Lamplugh, entered Queen's College, Oxford, as batler, in Easter Term, 1649; he matriculated 18 Nov., 1650, the same day as D. F., and proceeded B.A. 5 May, 1653. He entered Gray's Inn, 14 Feb., 1651-2, as son and heir of George, of Papcastle, Cumberland, gent., and was called to the bar in 1660.

<sup>3</sup> The preacher at this time was Nicholas Bernard of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, successively Dean of Kilmore and of Ardagh, and Chaplain to Archbishop Ussher and to Oliver Cromwell. He became Preacher 17 June, 1651, in succession to Dr. Thomas Horton, and was succeeded, 28 Jan., 1660-1, by John Wilkins, Warden of Wadham College, Oxford, one of the founders of the Royal Society, and afterwards Bishop of Chester. Bernard became in 1660 Rector of Whitchurch-cum-Marbury and died 15 October, 1661.

<sup>3</sup> This is a repetition, at the head of the second sheet of the accounts, of the last item on the first sheet.

<sup>4</sup> The person outlawed seems to have been Andrew Huddleston, the writer of XXV. Delinquents and recusants seem at this time to have been specially liable to writs of this sort. See the case of Henry Mills, Calendar of Comm. for Compounding, 2145.

<sup>2</sup> This may possibly be the Tom Lamplugh mentioned above, Feb. 10, but is more likely to be Richard Lamplugh, only son and heir of Thomas, of Ribton, Cumberland, esq., who entered Queen's College as commoner in Easter Term, 1649, and gave a cup (calicem) 20 April, 1649. He matriculated 18 Nov., 1650, the same day as D. F., entered Gray's Inn, 21 October, 1650, was called to the bar 1657. He was M.P. for Cumberland, 1678-9, and married Frances, only daughter of Sir Christopher Lowther, of Whitehaven, bart. His sister Frances married, as his third wife, Col. John Lamplugh (see n. 9, p. 5), whose first wife was D. F.'s first cousin. Hence perhaps the cousinship. XXVIII is a letter addressed to him.

<sup>1</sup> These accounts are the continuation of those printed as XXIV. Up to this point they have been printed in full. From this point such recurring items as 'Taken ont more,' 'for my dinner,' 'spent,' 'for letters,' are omitted.

<sup>5</sup> By a curious coincidence, three days earlier, 11 April, 1653, Evelyn records, 'I went to take the air in Hide Park, when every coach was made to pay a shilling, and horse sixpence, by the sordid fellow who had purchased it of the State, as they were called.' The park had been sold, under a special resolution of 1 December, 1652, for £17,068 2s. 8d. in three lots to Richard Wilson, John Lacey, and Anthony Deane. At the Restoration the sale was treated as null and void, and the park was opened to the public as it had been before. (Thornbury's Old and New London, iv. 380.)

Country-men. Posterior qui sequitur. Fabius Quintilianus. Printed in the Yeare, 1652. (Bodl. 12<sup>o</sup>. 300 pp.) This is the English translation of the first part of Dr. George Bate's Elenchus Motuum nuperorum in Anglia, which was published originally in Latin at Paris in 1649, and according to Wood (Athenæ, iii. 828) was translated into English by an unknown hand, and printed at London, 1652, in octavo. Bate carried the narrative down to 1660 in a second part, printed in London, 1661; and a third part was added by Dr. Thomas Skinner, bringing the narrative down to 1669. The three parts were published in English in one volume in 1685 in London as A short Historical Account of the Rise and Progress of the Late Troubles in England.

<sup>1</sup> Drury House was where the sittings were held of the Trustees for sale of lands forfeited for Treason. They had power to sell the lands, and on certificate of their having done so, and of the payment of at least half the purchase money, the lands were discharged from sequestration by the Committee for Compounding. Their powers were given them under three Acts passed respectively on 16 July, 1651; on 4 Aug. 1652; and on 18 Nov. 1652. The last Act contained the names of all sequestered delinquents who had not compounded, or had not paid the remainder of their fines, and included among others the names of Hugh Anderton, of Enxton, Gent.; William Fleming, of Riddal, co. Westmerland, Esq.; John Fleming of                      in the county of Cumberland; and of Andrew Huddleston, of Hutton John, co. Cumberland, Esq. Drury House was at the west end of Wych Street, and gave its name to Drury Lane. After the Restoration it was in the possession of Lord Craven and called Craven House.

<sup>5</sup> A scrivener (or scriven, Fr. écrivain) a writer, then especially a law-writer, or transcriber of legal documents. At one time, used for a man who drew, as well as transcribed, such documents. The professional scrivener at one time seems to have been a money-lender, or at least to have provided, as solicitors sometimes now do, for the borrowing of money by their clients. We shall find it elsewhere used in the Fleming documents for a writing-master.

Estates and other to behold and loke vpon. Made by the famousse Doctour Colete, sometime Deane of Powles.) In 1577 Gabriel Cawood issued it with two other anonymous religious treatises. In later editions this book took the name of Daily Devotions, or the Christian's Morning and Evening Sacrifice . . . by John Colet D.D., in which Colet's book is succeeded by a number of prayers of which Mr. Lee says he is not the author. The eighteenth edition (the nineteenth dated 1684 is in the British Museum) contains Fuller's life of Colet. The 22d edition appeared in 1722. (See D. N. B., s.v. Colet, John.)

south of Fentiman Road, was the residence of John Tradescant, the botanist, with a physic garden and musenm attached. As to Tradescant's Museum, the remains of which are now incorporated in the Ashmolean Museum, see Isaak Walton (Complete Angler, Pt. I, ch. i). There were three John Tradescants of three generations, the second of the three and his wife, after the death of their son, gave by deed their Museum to Elias Ashmole, 15 Dec. 1659. There is an elaborate monument to the family, which has been twice repaired, in Lambeth parish Church.

<sup>1</sup> Quo minus is a writ, that lyeth for him which hath a graunt of honsebote and heybote in another man's woods against the grannter making such waste as the grauntee cannot enjoy his graunt. Housebote and heybote are estovers or allowances of wood to be taken out of another man's woods. (Cowell's Interpreter.)

<sup>3</sup> There were four Exigentes or Exigendaries, officers in the Conrt of Common pleas, whose duties were to make all Exigents and Proclamations in all actions where processe of outlawrie doth lie. An Exigent was a writ that lyeth where the defendant in an action personall cannot be found, nor anything in the County whereby to be attached or distrained, and is directed to the Sheriff to proclaim and call five Connty daies one after another, charging him to appear under the pain of Outlawrie. (Cowell's Interpreter.)

<sup>4</sup> William Fleming, D. F.'s father, died at Coningston-hall in the year 1653, in the 44th year of his age; and was buried in the chancel of the church of Grasmere, in the same place where his grandmother Agnes (Bindlosse) had been buried about 20 years before. His epitaph is on a square piece of brass fixed in the wall near his grave in the east end of the church. And on an oblong piece of glass in the east window was put up this inscription: Deo trino et uni | Sacrum | Secundum Christi Redemptoris | Adventum hoc templo expectat | Gulielmus Fleming | Armiger. | Qui pie in Christo expiravit | Conistonæ, et quicquid mortale | habuit hic deposuit, | 25<sup>o</sup> Maii, | Anno Epochæ Christianæ | MDCLIII. And underneath, the paternal arms of Fleming and Kirkby impaled. And above, in the same window, the several coats in colours quartered by the family of Fleming. (Nicolson and Burn, i. 164.) The Bishop of Barrow has been kind enough to inform me that now (1901) the Elegy on Brass is still in its place, while the one on glass with the impaled arms and the larger collection of coats have disappeared.

<sup>3</sup> The first Music-House in London was the 'Mitre' in London House Yard at the north-western end of St. Paul's Cathedral. Robert Herbert, alias Farges, the master, was also a Collector of natural Curiosities which were to be seen 'at the place called the Music-house, at the Mitre, near the west end of St. Paul's church.' The greater part of this Collection was bought by Sir Hans Sloane. The arms of the Company of Musicians were a Swan with his wings expanded within a double tressure, counter, flory, argent. When it ceased to be a music-house the landlord adopted as his sign 'The Goose and Gridiron.' (Thornbury's Old and New London, i. 272.) M. A. is possibly a member of the Ambrose or of the Anderton family.

<sup>4</sup> To obtain the King's Licence to agree, a fine was due to the Crown, which was assessed in the Alienation office, and paid at the King's Silver office, and the particulars, i. e. Parties, Parcels and Fines were entered in the books of the King's Silver office. (F. S. Thomas' Handbook to the Public Records, p. 128.) In 1806 the Alienation office was in the King's Bench Walk, Temple; and the King's Silver office in the Middle Temple (ib. 429). Mr. Hubert Hall in reply to an inquiry kindly addressed to him by Mr. C. H. Firth suggests that the Fine office in that period might be either the King's Silver office, or the Office of the Clerk of Fines and Recoveries in the Court of Common Pleas, i. e. the chirographer.

<sup>1</sup> Isaac Morgan seems to have been an agent employed for the purchase from the Treason Trustees at Drury House of sequestered estates. He was so employed (Cal. of Comm. for Comp., 3286) to purchase 'Rydal Manor and fishing, Meller Brigg House, Grasmere, and a House in Kendal parish Westmorland forfeited by William Fleming.' In the Cal. of Comm. for Comp. we find him more than once employed in the same work.

<sup>1</sup> This letter is sealed in red wax with the Fleming crest, 'A serpent nowed pp. holding a wreath of olive and vine leaves vert.' To the letter is appended a transcript of Montrose's 'My love & only Deare I pray,' probably written from memory. It has eight stanzas with an alternative for the eighth which does not scan. For the person to whom it is addressed see n. 2, p. 45.

<sup>2</sup> This reference is not made much clearer by an entry in D. F.'s accounts: 1654, July 28, Paid unto Mr Hervey for Mr Harrison..01 — 02 — 00. This seems to be the Mr Heruey referred to in X, p. 20, as the intermediary between D. F.'s father and a Mr Harrison who was to pay D. F. ten pounds at Oxford. This may be a final settlement of Oxford claims.

<sup>4</sup> Little Haywood and Great Haywood are consecutive villages on the London to Holyhead Road between Lichfield and Stone. The latter extended in Ogilby's days for four furlongs along the road and had two or three good inns. On this journey D. F. had company, as at St. Albans he put ten shillings into a common purse, and five more at Newcastle. His journey also took him through Stonistratford, Euxton, Preston and Heskin, then back to Euxton, and by Pendle, Giggleswick, and Kirkby Lonsdale to Windermere and Kirkby Ireleth.

I hope y<sup>t</sup> there shall noe contest in law arise twixt you and mee, for I now acknowledg you my land:lord, & that there is a fine due to you for my Tenement in Kirkland<sup>2</sup> w<sup>ch</sup> paies 18<sup>s</sup> per annum, other land I haue there (wherof I haue but the moity) & y<sup>t</sup> paies a quit rent of 10<sup>s</sup> p annum, but not fineable, as y<sup>e</sup> conveyence cleeres it, nor did your predecessors question it. I did not heare till y<sup>e</sup> last terme, y<sup>t</sup> you were fining your Tenants, nor did I know y<sup>t</sup> you were in London, & therefore writ to my brother Denison<sup>3</sup> to know what were your lowest demand, that I might prouide to doe you right, but since I have not heard from him.

Now Sr I shall desire to know what you<sup>u</sup> will take, & giuing me some time to provide (for a long sicknes & lamenes has much drained mee) I shall readily list to what is reasonable. And to incline you to moderation, I have besides y<sup>e</sup> common arguments w<sup>ch</sup> your tenants may plead as y<sup>e</sup> low rate of lands, the heavy burthens & rates upon their lands wth the vnstable condition of things in bordering quarters afterwards Cursitor Baron of the Exchequer, who entered Gray's Inn on the same day, 4 Feb. 1647-8.

<sup>1</sup> Thomas Lough, born in Westmorland, entered Queen's College in Easter Term, 1617, as a batler, and matriculated as pleb. fil. 11 April of that year aged 15. He was admitted Dudley Exhibitioner of Oriel College (without however leaving Queen's) 24 May, 1617, on the presentation of Edmund Dudley, of Yanwath, esq., and held it till the 9th Mareh, 1620-1, when he resigned his exhibition. On the 26th Oct., 1620, he was elected 'in pauperem puerum' (as Lough) and was admitted B.A. 22 Jan., 1620-1; he proeeeded M.A. 5 July, 1624; was eleeeted 'in perpetuum scholarem' 17 June 1626, and immediately on the same day admitted 'in perpetuum socium.' He was magister puerorum 1629-30, camerarius (Jnnior Bursar) 1631-2, was admitted B.D. 9 May, 1632; held the office of Thesaurarius (Senior Bursar) 1635-6, and 1637-8, and vacated his fellowship at the end of 1646 or the beginning of 1647 on his presentation to the vicarage of Bramley, near Basingstoke in Hampshire. He was probably son of Thomas Lough, of Blencarn, in the parish of Kirkland in Cumberland, and Elizabeth daughter of Richard Nevinson of Newby Stones, in the parish of Morland, Westmorland. The Loughs were at this time owners of the manor of Blencarn, which adjoined Skirwith, the Fleming manor in the same parish. For convenience of cultivation and holding, the lord of one manor was often a tenant in an adjoining manor. The fine under discussion was probably of the nature of a heriot, due on D.F.'s succession to his father's estate. The Rev. T. H. Beleher, now (1901) Vicar of Bramley, informs me that from the parish Register it appears that on 'June 13th 1666, There was buried Mr. Thomas Lough, B.D. Vicar.'

<sup>2</sup> It would seem that the Flemings did not get so free from the Hodgsons as the Loughs did, as Jan. 30 (probably 1655) D. F. paid Rowland Hodgston and his mother for Kirkland (see above, p. 10).

<sup>3</sup> This may have been when Lough came in as tenant, or, sometime after the proper date, when the William Fleming who died in 1649 succeeded to his father's estate.

<sup>4</sup> Richard Fallowfield of Great Strickland in Westmorland was married to Eleanor Lowther sister of Sir John (see above, n. 1), who was married to Eleanor daughter of William Fleming of Rydal (D. F.'s great-grandfather), the 'ould Lady Lowther' (referred to in the same note). No. 252 of the Rydal MSS. is a letter from Fallowfield to John Fleming, D. F.'s father's brother, in which he says 'You ar and will be a father and mother to those poor children my cozen Browghams,' i.e. Thomas Browham, of Scale, called by mistake John in the Brougham pedigree, of whose son Henry, and grandson Henry, we shall hear much further on. Thomas Brougham's wife was a sister of D. F.'s father. Fallowfield was one of the arbitrators (1659) between Sir Charles Howard's tenants who had compounded with the Commonwealth and their landlord when he regained his property at the Restoration (Noble's History of Bampton, p. 47), and was one of the original governors of Bampton School, (ib. p. 97).

REV. THOMAS LOWGH TO DANIEL FLEMING (255).

I must first craue your pardon y<sup>t</sup> I returned not timelier an answere to your kind letter in regard it lay concealed from mee til a neighbour of mine casually met wth it & brought it late at night yesterday.

Now worthy S<sup>r</sup> concerning your demand, I should willingly assent if it were not grounded upon y<sup>t</sup> supposition y<sup>t</sup> I stand finable for a rent of 1<sup>l</sup>. 8<sup>s</sup>. 4<sup>d</sup>. per annum. I acknowledg only 18<sup>s</sup> per annum finable, and according to your proportion set, defalking<sup>2</sup> for the 10<sup>s</sup>. 4<sup>d</sup>. soe much proportionably w<sup>ch</sup> answers to a 13 penny<sup>3</sup> fine in y<sup>e</sup> northern phrase, I will upon the daies appointed by yo<sup>u</sup> faithfully make payment & in y<sup>e</sup> Interim giue bond to you or your Attorney for you; altho' I hold a parcell of land low rented for w<sup>ch</sup> I paid to the L<sup>d</sup> Dacres<sup>4</sup> but a 4 peny fine. There are few in our countrey that take less of their Tenants, many y<sup>t</sup> exceed; in this you giue an excellent testimony of a good conscience & your thankfulnes to your good God, who has deuolued upon you a larg endowment and out of this consideration I perswade my self yo<sup>u</sup> are mercifull to your poor exhausted Tenants. This I speak as a Diuine; who vpon y<sup>t</sup> short acquaintance I had wth you espied so much ingenuity<sup>1</sup> in yo<sup>u</sup>, y<sup>t</sup> I doubt not but y<sup>t</sup> yo<sup>u</sup> will truly fear God & hate couetousnes.

As for ye 10<sup>s</sup>. 4<sup>d</sup>. p annum w<sup>h</sup> I admit noe further of then a dry<sup>2</sup> Rent. This you absolutely deny & question whether I haue only the moity. For ye question I doe seriously profess y<sup>t</sup> it was by will conveyed from my Father to my self & sister Elizabeth<sup>3</sup> as Coexecutor for the payment of debts & that wee redeemed the morgage from Mr Barton<sup>4</sup> wth more mony than the Fee Simple is worth. If this should proue finable the estate would be clearly mine, but I belieue my Sister will not soe easily part wth it nor shall I doe her wrong. This upon your enquiry will be easily knowen; Mr Dalston<sup>4</sup> who made my Fathers will, will satisfy you.

Since it is soe (for I haue deliberately pervsed my euidence) I cannot compound by my self for it. nor should I if it were entirely mine, for as you look after your right soe must I after mine, and if you pleased to stand to Mr Fallowfeild<sup>5</sup> or S<sup>r</sup> Tho. Tempests<sup>6</sup> determination (able & honest counsailors both) I will produce my euidence & abide their award. It suits neither my age, disposition nor profession to contend in law: an amicable compromise I prefer before tedious & chargeable suites. as yet I neuer sued or was sued, & shall <sup>1</sup> We should say ingenuosness. Both these words were used in the seventeenth century for the quality belonging to the ingenuos man. We have transferred ingenuity to the quality belonging to the ingenious man.

<sup>2</sup> There are two more or less technical senses for dry rent given by Dr. Murray, (1) paid in hard cash, (2) a Rent-seck or barren rent, i.e. one reserved without clause of distress. Of the latter he quotes no instance. The writer here seems to use it in the sense of a complete rent or qnit rent without any fine.

<sup>6</sup> Thomas Tempest entered Queen's College in Vacation Term, 1610, and matriculated from Queen's 23 November, 1610, as generosi filius, from Northumberland, aged 16. He was youngest son of Rowland, a merchant of Newcastle, brother of Sir Nicholas, first baronet of Stella. He was admitted to Lincoln's Inn 1613, called to the bar 1620, made a benchet 1636. He was appointed attorney-general of Ireland 20 July 1640 and knighted 30 Dec. in the same year; and was superseded after the King's death. He was fined as a delinquent in 1649. He married twice. A son John, born in Oxford, entered Queen's as Upper Commoner 20 Oct., 1637, and was afterwards M.P. for co. Durham. John's son William, entered Queen's as Upper Commoner 29 June, 1670, and as Colonel Tempest was M.P. for the city of Durham; a younger son John was of Lincoln College. Sir Thomas was an ancestor of the present Marquess of Londonderry. A descendant Frances, married a Rev. <sup>1</sup> The Historie of the Raigne of King Henry the Seventh. Written by the Right Honourable, Francis, Lord Verulam, Viscount St. Alban. London. Printed by W. Stansby for Matthew Lownes, and William Barret, 1622. folio. 248 pp. A second edition was published in 1629, and a third in 1641, both in folio. It was also included in the complete history of England, published 1706, and associated with the name of Bishop White Kennett.

<sup>3</sup> The Practice of the High Court of Chancery, with the Nature of the several offices belonging to that Court, and The Reports of many Cases wherein Relief hath been there had, and where denied. London. Printed for Abel Roper at the Sign of the Sun in Fleet Street against St. Dunstons Church. The Bodleian Copy is dated 1672, but the British Museum has one dated 1652.

<sup>5</sup> The Whole Office of the Conntrey Justice of Peace. Wherein is plainly set down all their Power and Duty both in, and out of the Quarter Sessions. With the Ordinances and Acts of this present Parliament abridged, that any way concerneth their Power. In two Books. The third edition corrected, and with many practicall Additions Enlarged. By William Shepherd Esq.; Sometime of the Middle-Temple. London. Printed for W. Lee, D. Pakeman, G. Bedell. And are to be sold at their shops in Fleetstreet. 1656. Small 8°. The two parts have separate titles and pagination, 3 titles. Dedication 2 pages. To the Reader 10 pages. 268 pages. Index to first part 11 pages. Contents of second part 2 pages. 212 pages. Index to second part 8 pages. (Bodl.) The Brit. Mus. has second edition, 1652.

<sup>6</sup> There is a Complete Clerk and Scrivener's Guide, 4°, 1655; and a Young Clerk's Companion, London 12°, 1677, in the British Museum Catalogue. This book might have been an earlier edition of one of these. In any case it was probably a mannal of drafts and precedents of the commonest legal instruments.

<sup>8</sup> John Salkeld ent<sup>d</sup> Qncen's Coll. as commoner Ter. Pas. 7 May, 1655, subscribed 7 Nov. 1655; entered Gray's Inn 4 Mar. 1655-6 as son and heir of John of Threpland, Cumberland, esq. He died nnmarried before 1665. He was connected with D. F. through the Fletchers, his wife's family.

<sup>9</sup> The History of Great Britain, being the Life and Reign of King James the First, relating what passed from his first Accessse to the Crown, till his Death. By Arthur Wilson, Esq. London, Printed for Richard Lownds, and are to be sold at the Sign of the White Lion near Saint Paul's little North dore. 1653. Small folio. (Bodl.)

<sup>1</sup> A Treatise collected out of the Statutes of this Kingdom, and according to common experiee of the Lawes, concerning the office and Authoritie of Coroners and Sherifes: Together With an easie and plain method for the Keeping of a Court Leet, Court Baron, and Hundred Court, &c. By John Wilkinson of Barnards Inne, Gent. London, Printed for the Companie of Stationers. 1618. Cum Priuilegio. (8<sup>o</sup> Bodl.) <sup>2</sup> See Additional Notes.

<sup>3</sup> The associations of D. F. with Sir Wilfred Lawson must have been rather painful (see n. 6, p. 7), but he seems to have visited Isel in November, 1653, and was connected with the Lawsons through the Hudlestons (see n. 8, p. 5).

<sup>4</sup> The Academie of Eloquence, containing a complete English Rhetorique exemplified with Common places and Formes digested into an easie and methodical way to speak and write fluently, according to the mode of the present times, together with Letters, both Amorous and Moral, upon emergent occasions, 1654, (? 29 Jan. 1653) often reprinted; a book 'specially intended' for the youth of both sexes by Thomas Blount, the author of Ancient Tenures. (D. N. B., s.v.)

<sup>5</sup> Perhaps Thomas Povey who entered Gray's Inn, 1 Nov., 1633, as gent., second son of Justinian P., one of the Auditors of the King's Exchequer. He had a brother John of the Middle Temple, for whom see Cal. of Comm. for Comp. 2481, and there was another John Povey son and h. of John of Woodnesse, Salop, gent., who entered Gray's Inn 12 Feb., 1637-8. This seems however to have been a scrivener, rather than a barrister, as Mr. Churchill revises his work.

<sup>7</sup> Church Yard Alley, Upper Thames Street, close by London Bridge. Pepys (15 Aug., 1665) met there 'to my great trouble,' 'a dead corps of the plague,' having landed at the stairs close by.

<sup>8</sup> The Doctrine of the Bible; or Rules of Discipline, Brieflie gathered through the whole course of the scripture, hy way of qnestions and answers. Printed by R. Braddocke, for T. Pavier: London, 1606. 8<sup>o</sup>. There are 23 editions mentioned in the British Museum Catalogue. The 34th edition was published in 1726 and there are two mentioned as appearing in the 19th century. It appeared in 8<sup>o</sup>, 12mo, 24mo.

<sup>3</sup> Theatrum Historicum, sive Chronologiæ Systema Novum . . . à Reverendo et Excellentissimo Viro Dn. Christophoro Helvico, SS. Theol. D. 1629. Marpurgi Cattorum, Typis et Sumptibus Nicolai Hampelii. (folio Bodl.) The first edition was published at Giessen in 1609. It does not seem to have been translated into English before 1687.

<sup>4</sup> Curia Politiae: or the Apologies of several Princes justifying to the World their Most Eminent Actions: by the Strength of Reason, and the most Exact Rules of Policy. Written in French by the Acurate Pen of Monsieur de Scudery, Governor of Nostre-Dame. And now faithfully Render'd into English. With the Figures of many Emperors and Kings. The Queen's College Copy is—London, Printed for Robert Boulter at the Turk's Head in Cornhil against the Royal Exchange, 1673. The British Museum Catalogue has however two copies of an edition published by H. Moseley in 1654, and gives the name of the translator as E. Wolley.

<sup>5</sup> Gresmere or Grasmere, as we now call it, the lake of the Grise, or wild swine, was a chapel of Kendal and since 16 Eliz. the patronage belonged to the Flemings. This may have been an ecclesiastical move on the part of the parishioners, or possibly, though less likely, a question of manorial rights. In 1645 Henry Wilson the then minister of Gresmere is stigmatised as 'a notorious malign<sup>t</sup>, and articulated ag<sup>t</sup> at Parl<sup>t</sup>,' and in 1647-8 William Kempe was nominated to Gersmore. (Shaw's Church under the Commonwealth, ii. 370, 349.) A Caveat is a process in court (originally in ecclesiastical courts) to suspend proceedings; a notice given by some party to the proper officer not to take a certain step until the party giving the notice has been heard in opposition. (Murray, s.v.)

<sup>6</sup> An earlier copy of Culpepper's Book had been bought by D.F. 9 March, 1652-3, see p. 47 and n. 4 there. Perhaps he had left it in the north, or wanted to give it as a present to some one. He paid 2s. for it then.

Nation, by Richard Rowlands, alias Verstegen, published at Antwerp, 1605, 4to, dedicated to James I; a summary of the early invasions of Great Britain, the formation of its languages, surnames, and other matters. He was of Ch. Ch. Richard Rowlands, servant to Mr. Barnard, and dropped his English name on proceeding to Antwerp, where he set up a printing-press, and assumed that of his maternal grandfather. (Sec D.N.B., s.v.)

<sup>4</sup> A help to English history containing A succession of all the Kings of England, the English Saxons, and the Britans; the Kings and Princes of Wales, the Kings and Lords of Man, the Isle of Wight, as also Of all the Dukes, Marquesses, Earls, and Bishops thereof, with The Description of the places from whence they had their titles; continued with a supplement, and enlarged with the names and ranks of the Viscounts and Barons to the year, 1652. London, Printed for Abel Roper at the Sun over against S. Dunstons Church in Fleet-Street, 1652. The first edition published in 1641 is said by Halkett and Laing (col. 1083) to be by Robt. Hall, Gent. It was really by Peter Heylyn, whose name Halkett and Laing say is in the second edition published 1652, but I cannot find it nor Hall's in the copy of that edition in Queen's College Library. Wood (Ath., iii. 560) says Heylyn's name was first put by Wilkinson to the 1670 edition. It is certainly in a 1709 edition also in the college library.

<sup>5</sup> To water, in this sense, is given in Ogilvie's Imperial Dictionary as 'to subject to a calendering process, as silk, &c., in order to make it exhibit a variety of undulated reflections and plays of light; to diversify as if with waves.' The process is described in the Encyclopædia Britannica, Ninth Edition, vol. iv. s.v. Calender.

<sup>8</sup> The Complete Copy-Holder. Wherein is contained a Learned Discourse of the Antiquity and Nature of Manors and Copy-Holds. With all things thereto incident, As Snrrenders, Presentments, Admittances, Forfeitures, Customes, &c. Necessary, both for the Lord and Tenant. Together, with the forme of Keeping a Copy-hold Court, and Court Baron. By Sir Edward Coke, Knight. London, Printed by T. Cotes, for W. Cooke, and are to be sold at his Shop, at Furnivalls-Inne Gate in Holborne. 1641.

<sup>9</sup> James Wallas, of Knaresdale, Northumberland, was a petitioner before the Committee for Compounding between 1652 and 1654 (Cal. of Comm. for Comp., 3027). There may have been some resemblance between his case and D. F.'s which made some enquiry into it useful.

<sup>10</sup> There are three books of William Sheppard, Serjeant at law, with Common Assurances in the title. This is probably The Touchstone of Common Assurances; or, a plain and familiar treatise, opening the learning of the common assurances or conveyances of the Kingdome. By W. Sheppard [or Sir J. Doddridge?] London 1648. 4<sup>o</sup>. It ran to several editions. The eighth was edited by E. G. Atherley in 1826. His Law of Common Assurances, and The President of Presidents, seem both to have been published later.

<sup>2</sup> i. e. lawn or linen. Dr. H. Bradley has not seen lane for lawn so late as this date, but it was certainly so used in the sixteenth century. There is no evidence that lane was ever used in English for lana, or laine, wool.

<sup>4</sup> The Faithful Councillor, or the Marrow of the Law in English; shewing how any action may be warrantably laid in the Common Law, for relief in most eases; in 2 parts Lond. 1651-4 2 vols 4to. (Watts' Bibl. Brit., s.v. Sheppard, William, Serjeant at Law.)

<sup>6</sup> The letters of Jean Louis Guetz, sieur de Balzac, were translated in four parts, the first by W. T. (Tirwhyt or Tyrwhitt) Lond. 1634; the second and third by Sir R. Baker, London, 1638; the fourth by F. B., Oxford, 1639. The four parts were collected into one volume, London, 1654.

<sup>7</sup> Smithfield as the site of a market, of Bartholomew fair, and of a place of execution was much resorted to and had many inns. Evelyn (10 May, 1652) 'passing by Smithfield, saw a miserable creature burning who had murder'd her husband'; and Pepys (11 Dec. 1668) went there to buy his coach-horses.

<sup>12</sup> This was probably at the ferry just south of Bowness, the way from Kendal to Ilawkshead and Coniston. At this place forty-eight men and women and nine horses were drowned 19 October, 1635, by the upsetting of the ferry boat.

<sup>2</sup> A collection of some principall Rnles and Maximes of the Common Lawes of England, with their Latitude and Extent, Explicated for the more facile Introduction of such as are studiously addicted to that noble Profession. By Sir Francis Bacon, then Solicitor generall to the late renowned Queene Elizabeth, and since Lord Chancellor of England. Orbe paruo sed non occiduo. London, Printed by the Assignes of John Moore Esq, Anno mdcxxx. Cum Privilegio. It is a small 4<sup>o</sup> and is included with The Use of the Law also ascribed to Bacon in a volume to which a third title is prefixed The Elements of the Common Lawes of England. The two treatises are however separately paged, and D.F. may have purchased the first by itself. The Half title at the beginning of the text is The Maximes of the Law. It is in Queen's College Library.

<sup>3</sup> This may be either Charles George Cocke's England's Complete Lawyer and Law Judge, of which the British Museum has no copy published earlier than 1656, or Edward Paxton's England's compleat Law Judge and Lawyer to which Watt and Allibone both give the date 1655. If the purchase was too early to be either of these, the Book may be Sir John Doddridge's English Lawyer, London, 1631, 4<sup>o</sup>, for which see below, n. 11, p. 94.

<sup>5</sup> Tabby is according to Webster a kind of waved silk, usually watered. It is manufactured like taffeta (see n. 4, p. 81), but is thicker and stronger. The watering is given to it by the calender (see n. 5, p. 78).

<sup>7</sup> Slops according to Webster are trowsers, or drawers; loose lower garments.

<sup>8</sup> i. e. stirrup hose or stockings, high stockings turned over above the knee, worn in the reign of Charles II. Dr. Murray kindly refers me for description and pictures to Fairholt's Costume in England (1861), p. 255. Halliwell quotes from Holme 'large stirop hose, or stockings, two yards wide at the top, with points through several i-let holes, by which they were made fast to the ptticoat-brecches by a single row of pointed ribbons hanging at the bottom.' I owe this quotation to Mr. C. L. Stainer.

<sup>3</sup> Christopher Blencow, of Blencow, Esq., must at this time have been between 50 and 60 years of age. His eldest son was less than 10 years of age. They were connected with the Sandfords of Howgill Castle, where D. F. and his wife spent the first day after their marriage, see p. 9, and note 5 there. Blencow's mother was sister to Sir Thomas Sandford's father.

published in 1654. The Anthor was Rhys or Rice or, as he called himself, Arise Evans, whose Bloody Vision of John Farley D. F. had purchased earlier ; see n. 5, p. 72.

<sup>2</sup> The Rule and Exercises of Holy Living, by Jeremy Taylor, afterwards bishop of Down and Connor, was published in 12mo, 1650. It reached a fourteenth edition in 1686, and has been many times issued since both in England and in America.

<sup>3</sup> Sir Thomas Dacres or Dacre belonged to an illegitimate branch of the Dacres of the North, which failed two generations later. He was great-grandson of the first of the branch, Sir Thomas Dacre of Lanercost, which at the dissolution of the religious houses was granted to him by Henry VIII. He was connected with the Flemings through the Brathwaytes. Dorothy his wife was daughter of Sir Thomas Brathwayte of Warcop who was first cousin to Isabell, D. F.'s grandmother. Sir Thomas Dacres may have been in London in connexion with the admission to Gray's Inn of Henry, his second son and heir, which took place 22 December, 1654.

<sup>4</sup> The Parson's Guide or the Law of Tithes, London, 1654, 4° by William Sheppard, several other of whose books D. F. purchased. It is a pamphlet of 32 pages.

<sup>2</sup> Mr. Frowde kindly informs me that 'in Turkey-gilt' unquestionably means bound in red morocco with gilt tooling on the outside of the cover. The Turkey morocco used at present has been treated rather differently in preparation from that used in earlier times. The use of Turkey red morocco, he was informed by Mr. Pollard of the British Museum, was 'common in France from about 1560, but did not come into general use in England for nearly a century after that.'

<sup>3</sup> A View of the Civile and Ecclesiasticall Law. And wherein the Practice of them is streitned, and may be releevd within this Land. Written by Sr. Thomas Ridley knight, Doctor of the Civile Law. The Third Edition. London. Printed by John Dawson, 1639. (Small 4°. Queen's College Library.) Dedicated to King James I and seems to have been published originally in 1607.

<sup>5</sup> The Booke called the Mirrour of Justices . . . with the book called the Diversity of Courts and their Jurisdictions. Both translated out of the old French . . . by W. H[ughes] of Grays Inne, Esquire, 1646 12°. (Brit. Mus. Cat.)

<sup>6</sup> The History of Independency with The Rise, Growth, and Practices of that powerfull and restlesse Faction. London, Printed in the year 1648. A second Part under the Title of 'Anarchia Anglicana, or the History of Independency the Second Part, by Theodorus Verax,' was printed in the year 1649. The two parts were published together with a Preface and called 'Relations and Observations, Historical and Politick, upon the Parliament begun Anno Dom. 1640.' A third Part was published in 1660, and a Fourth Part by T. M. Esq. in the same year.

<sup>7</sup> An exact abridgement of all Statutes in force and use: upon the 4th day of January, in the year of our Lord 1644. Faithfully extracted out of the said Statutes, from the beginning of Magna Carta: to the said time, and Alphabetically digested under apt Titles. Whereunto is also annexed, a perfect Table, which may serve as a Concordance, for the ready discovery of any material clause throughout the said Statutes. By Edm. Wingate, of Grays Inne, Esq. London: Printed by R. & W. Leybourn, and are to be sold by Henry Twiford in Vine Court, Middle Temple, and Roger Wingate at the Golden Hinde in Chancery Lane neer Lincolns Inne, MDCLV. (Sm. 8°. Queen's College Library.)

<sup>9</sup> There was a Thomas Lec, third son of Richard Lee, of Langley, Salop, Bart., who entred Grays Inn 23 June, 1648, in the same year as Wharton; or this may be William Lee, eldest son of William, late of Oswestry, Salop, gent. deceased, who entered Gray's Inn 23 December, 1651.

<sup>1</sup> Probably, Topicks in the laws of England, containing media, apt for argument and resolution of law cases: also an exposition of severall words, not touched by former glossaries. London: 1646. 8°. The Dedication is signed J. C. and it is ascribed by Halkett and Laing and the British Museum Catalogue to John Clayton, of the Inner Temple.

<sup>2</sup> Probably to be distinguished from Dick Lamplugh, for whom see n. 2, p. 45, and in that case most likely Richard, third son of John Lamplugh of Lamplugh and his wife Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Edward Musgrave, knight. He was connected with the Kirkbys through a sister in law, Jane, daughter of Roger Kirkby and first wife of Lamplugh's eldest brother John (for whom see n. 9, p. 5).

<sup>4</sup> Judges judged out of their own monthes; or the Question resolved by Magna Charta . . . who have been Englands Enemies, Kings Seducers, and Peoples Destroyers from Hen. III to Hen. VIII; and before and since. Stated by Sir E. Coke, expostulated and put to the vote by J. Jones, gent. Whereunto is added eight observable Points of Law, execntable by Justices of the Peace. London, 1650. 12°. (Brit. Mus. Cat.)

<sup>5</sup> 'Law, or a Discourse thereof in Four Books, written in French by Sir Henry Finch, Knight, His Majesty's Serjeant-at-law, done into English by the same author,' appeared in London in 1627, 8vo. As an exposition of the common law, Finch's Law, as it was called, was only superseded by Blackstone's Commentaries, as far as it dealt with jurisprudence only by the great work of Austin. (D. N. B., s. v.)

A.* Londini, In ædibus Ianæ Yetsweirt, Cum Priuilegio. T. A. is Thomas Ashe, for whom see n. 8, p. 89. There is no date to the Copy in the Queen's College library, which is 12mo. and the text in black letter. It is dated by Mr. Thompson Cooper in D. N. B. 1607; and he says it was translated into English by Fabian Hicks, of the Inner Temple, London, 1650, 1659, 12mo. Mr. Lee gives 1607 as the date for the second edition of Ashe's Abridgment and dates the first edition doubtfully 1600.

<sup>4</sup> The Third Part of the Institutes of the Laws of England: concerning High Treason, and other Pleas of the Crown, and Criminall causes . . . Authore Edw. Coke Milite, I. C. 1648. Printed at London by M. Flesher, for W. Lee, and D. Pakeman. (Queen's College Library, folio.) There would seem to have been an earlier edition in 1644. This and the fourth part, for which see n. 6, were ordered to be printed by the House of Commons, 12 May, 1641.

<sup>5</sup> The Dialogue in English, betweene a Doctor of Diuinitie, and a Student in the Lawes of England. A handbook for legal students, not superseded until the appearance of Blackstone's Commentaries. It was by Christopher Saint German (1460?-1540), and first issued by Rastell in 1523 in Latin. The English translation was brought out in 1531 and there were numerous editions afterwards. Queen's College Library has editions of 1604 and 1623. It was reprinted as late as 1874 in Cincinnati. (D. N. B., s. v.)

<sup>7</sup> Some New Cases of the Years and Time of Hy. VIII, Ed. VI, and Queen Mary, written out of the Great Abridgment, composed by Sir Robert Brook, Knight, there dispersed in the Titles, but here collected under Years, and now translated into English by John March of Gray's Inn, Barrister, London, 1651, 8vo.

for William Sheares, 1637, 4°. The address to the Readers is dated November 3, 1607, and it is dedicated to the Archbishop of Canterbury, who in 1607 was Bancroft, and in 1637 Laud. The first edition (Bibl. Coll. Reg.) was published at Cambridge, Printed by John Legate, Anno 1607.

<sup>1</sup> A Body of Divinitie, 1645, fol., published by John Downham or Downname in the name of James Ussher, Archbishop of Armagh, and often reprinted as his, was part of a manuscript 'lent abroad to divers in scattered sheets,' and described by Ussher (letter of 13 May, 1645) as 'a kinde of common place book . . . in divers places dissonant from my own judgment.' (D. N. B., s. v.)

<sup>2</sup> The Great Exemplar of Sanetity and Holy Life according to the Christian Institution: Described in the History of the Life and Death of the ever Blessed Jesns Christ The Saviour of the World. With Considerations and Discourses upon the several parts of the Story; and Prayers fitted to the several Mysteries. By Jer. Taylor, D.D., Chaplain in Ordinarie to his late Majestie. The first edition was published in 4°. 1649. The Third Edition In three Parts was printed in folio at London, 1657, by R. Norton for Richard Royston, at the signe of the Angel in Ivie-Lane. It is in Queen's College Library.

<sup>4</sup> Reports (a second part) of diverse famous Cases in Law, as they were argued, as well upon the bench, by the reverend and learned judges . . . as also at the barr, by the then judicious serjeants and barristers of specciall note. Collected by Richard Brownlow. [Edited by R. M.], London, 1652, 4°. (Brit. Mus. Cat.)

<sup>5</sup> Dcclarations and pleadings in English; being the most authentique forme of Proceeding in Courts of Law; in actions reall, personall and mixt . . . Collected by Richard Brownlow. Whereto are added ehoice presidents in the Upper Bench, etc. H. Twyford: London, 1652, 4°. A second part was published 4°. 1654 under the Title, Dcclarations, Connts and Pleadings in English. The second part: being the authentique forme of presidents in the court of common pleas, etc.

<sup>6</sup> In London, and probably in other English cities in the seventeenth century, the bellman was the recognized term for what we would now call a night watchman, being derived from the handbell which the man carried in order to give alarm in case of fire (Robert Chambers, quoted in Thornbry's London, ii. 541). The bellman of each parish seems to have issued poetical broadsides, and distributed copies through the district of which he had the charge, expecting his masters to favour him in return with some small gratuity (ibid. 542). Gray's Inn was in the parish of St. Andrew's, Holborn. St. Giles' in the fields was close by.

F.'s accounts there appears under date April 5, 1658 Paid unto Roger Woodburne his bill for y<sup>e</sup> same triall 02 - 15 - 00, whence we may infer that he was probably an attorney at some neighboring market town.<sup>4</sup> Tack, in Scottish law, means a lease. The use of the word in this sense extends southwards, Dr. Murray informs me, as far as Lancashire and Lincolnshire. Dr. Holland tells me it is to be found in Stamp Acts, e. g. in the Act of 1891.<sup>5</sup> These are a few entries from the last separate bundle of D. F.'s accounts. In the course of 1656 he began to keep his receipts and disbursements in a large account book from which some extracts are given in Appendix E. The entries here given are all of payments made during the visit to London described in his autobiography, pp. 8, 9, the last visit paid before his marriage.<sup>6</sup> The Perfect Horsman; or the experienc'd Secrets of Mr. (Gervase) Markham's fifty years practice; shewing the knowledge of a breeder, feeder, ambler, rider, keeper, and buyer, now published by L. <sup>1</sup> These seem to be two books:—1. Rules and orders for the Court of the Upper Bench at Westminster, Made and Published by the Judges of the said Court, in the Terme of St. Michael in the year 1654. London, Printed for Abel Roper, at the Sunne against St. Dunstons Church in Fleetstreet. 1655.

2. Rules and Orders for the Court of Common Pleas at Westminster. Made and published by the Judges of the said Court, in the Term of S. Michael, in the year one thousand six hundred fifty foure. London, Printed for Richard Marriot, and are to be sold at his shop in St. Dunstons Churchyard Fleetstreet, 1654. They are both in the Bodleian, 4<sup>o</sup>, and could easily be bound together, the former having 40, and the latter 56 pages.

<sup>2</sup> Arcana Aulica; or Walsingham's Mannal of prudential maxims, for the statesman and the courtier. London, 1652. 12<sup>o</sup>. The British Museum Catalogue ascribes it to Sir Francis Walsingham. Watt ascribes it to Edward Walsingham, Secretary to Lord Digby, saying it was said to be a translation from the Spanish, and that it had been attributed, but on doubtful authority, to Sir Francis. Mr. Lee (D. N. B., s. v.) says that there is no ground for the association of Sir Francis Walsingham's name with this book, and that it was a translation from the French.

<sup>3</sup> Hatton Garden may have been then still partly a garden, as Evelyn, 7 June, 1659, and so later than this, writes: 'To London to take leave of my brother, and see the foundations now laying for a long streete and buildings in Hatton Garden, designed for a little towne, lately an ample garden.' Strype however (1720-37) described it 'as a large tract of ground, was a garden, and belonged to Hatton House, now pulled down, and built into houses.' It belonged to Sir Christopher Hatton, the Lord Chancellor in Elizabeth's reign.

<sup>5</sup> D. L. is of course Dick Lamplugh, W. P. is William Pennington, perhaps a younger brother of Richard, son of William, of Muncaster, for whom see n. 4, p. 31, who was admitted to Gray's Inn, 26 Nov. 1652, or possibly a son of Sir Isaac, the lord mayor of 1643, afterwards a merchant of London, and a Quaker, who died of palsy 1689, aged 67.

<sup>6</sup> There seems to have been only one St. Gregory's Church in London, that immediately at the west end of St. Paul's Cathedral. It may have been called 'little' in comparison with the cathedral. It was dedicated to St. Gregory the Great.

<sup>7</sup> He had paid on the 9th 'For 6 yards of searge de Roan 01-01-00. Dr. Murray kindly informs me:—Serge was apparently originally a stuff of silk, or silk and fine wool, then made of silky wool, and is now a twilled worsted stuff. The name, like others originally of costly fabrics, came to be used for cheaper imitations. Serges were formerly imported from many foreign parts; serges of Athens, Florence, Smyrna are mentioned in the 16th and 17th centuries. Black serge was manufactured at Caen and brought to England, and Rouen which was not far off perhaps shared in the work. The sort bought by D. F. was not of a very costly kind. Some ran to nine shillings or even twelve shillings the yard. Pepys had liveries made of serge.

<sup>8</sup> Mohair was originally the fine silken hair of the Angora goat of Asia Minor, and was also used for cloth made thereof. It was at this time a new importation. Later the word was used of a similar material made of silk. It must always have been of various qualities unless D. F. was here grossly overcharged, as in 1633

Your letter to Scott<sup>10</sup> was sent him on Wednesday, by him who went with y<sup>e</sup> Postletters; and the same day I received from him this <sup>1</sup> The Reign of King Charles, an History faithfully and impartially delivered and disposed into Annals, London. 1655. The Author was Hamon L'Estrange (1605-60), brother of the more famous Sir Roger. It ends with the execution of Strafford, and being written in an impartial spirit was attacked by Peter Heylyn and became the subject of a lengthy controversy. See D. N. B., s. v. D. F. buys a second copy below, 30 June, for sixpence less.

<sup>3</sup> Wit's Interpreter: the English Parnassus, by J. C. Lond. 1655. The author is John Cotgrave, who also wrote the English Treasury of Literature and Language. Mr. Lee in D. N. B., s. v., describes the book D. F. bought as of singular interest, and gives an account of its contents.

<sup>4</sup> This must be the first volume of the History of Philosophy by Thomas Stanley (1625-78), of which the first volume appeared in 1655, dedicated to Sir John Marsham the chronologer, his maternal uncle, who suggested the book. The second volume appeared in 1656, the third in 1660, and the fourth, 'Chaldaick Philosophy,' in 1662. It long ranked as a standard authority. (D. N. B., s. v.)

<sup>6</sup> An Ordinance against Challenges, Duells, and all Provocations thereunto. Thursday June 29. 1654. Ordered by his Highness the Lord Protector, and His Council, That this Ordinance be forthwith Printed and Published. Henry Scobell, Clerk of the Council. London, Printed by William du-Gard and Henry Hills, Printers to His Highness the Lord Protector, 1654. In Queen's College Library in Collection of the Orders in Council of Oliver Cromwell, folio.

<sup>1</sup> Humphrey Robinson appears from the Rydal letters to have been a frequent correspondent of Thomas Smith's between 1656 and 1666. The quotations Smith gives from his letters are generally on matters of public interest. He may have been a sender of news-letters. In 1674 Smith, who was then Dean of Carlisle, used to receive three news-letters a week from the State Paper Office, which was then in Sir Joseph Williamson's keeping. (See Appendix to the Camden Society's Letters addressed from London to Sir Joseph Williamson.)

<sup>2</sup> George Mabbott in a news-letter, dated 5 April, 1656, writes:—Mr. Peter is now againe growne soe distracted that hee had severall persons watching with him night and day, who are sometimes necessitated to use all the strength they have to keep him in bed; hee raves much of the devill, his lookes are very wild, and his discourse ends many times with half sentenccs. (Clarke Papers, Camden Society, iii. 66.) Mr. Firth, who kindly gave me this reference, adds:—'From the use of the word "Præmunire" it seems likely that he had been taking too much upon himself in some way, perhaps in connection with the disputes about the readmission of the Jews.' See D. N. B., xlv. 74. Peters had before (1652) been reprimanded by Cromwell for interfering as to the war with the Dutche (ib. p. 73). The celebrated independent divine, put to death at the Restoration, was of Trinity College, Cambridge. His contemporaries generally called him 'Peters,' but he signs himself 'Peter,' as Mabbott above spells the name.

peticon<sup>1</sup>, nor any to be hoped for (for ought I can perceiue) unles they wil absolutely renounce the old interest. From Oxford I am informed, y<sup>t</sup> Dr Wilkins of Wadham<sup>2</sup> is like to prove y<sup>e</sup> man of men there, having very lately married y<sup>e</sup> Protector's sister, Dr French's widow, w<sup>ch</sup> troubles Dr Owen<sup>3</sup> and others of y<sup>e</sup> Grandees there, who foresee y<sup>t</sup> hee will overtop them all. It is very observable, y<sup>t</sup> whereas by y<sup>e</sup> Statutes of Wadham-Colledge y<sup>e</sup> Warden cannot marry<sup>4</sup>, Dr French (through his interest in y<sup>e</sup> Protector) procured a dispensa<sup>o</sup>n long since for Dr Wilkins, y<sup>t</sup> hee might marry if hee pleased: & now you see w<sup>t</sup> it is come to. But enough of such matters. I pray, informe mee in w<sup>t</sup> yeare yo<sup>r</sup> Pulton<sup>5</sup> is printed, & by whom, for this w<sup>ch</sup> Scott hath pcured for mee was printed in 1640, and (if my memory faile not) you told mee there was a later & better edition of it in 1650, or thereabouts. I desire likewise to know w<sup>t</sup> it is ordinarily sold for in London. With my humble service to yo<sup>r</sup> whole selfe & to M<sup>ris</sup> Frances<sup>6</sup>, I remaine

Hutton, May 2<sup>o</sup> 1656.

<sup>1</sup> In January, 1656, Archbishop Ussher presented a petition on behalf of 'the poor outed clergy,' whom a declaration of the previous November had forbidden any Royalist to maintain as chaplains or schoolmasters. No answer was returned to the petition, nor was the Declaration modified or withdrawn, but it was seldom, if ever, put in practice against the clergy. (Gardiner, Commonwealth and Protectorate, chap. xl. vol. iii. pp. 190 sqq.)

<sup>2</sup> For Wilkins see Wells' History of Wadham College, chap. vi, and his life in D. N. B. His wife was Robina, sister of Cromwell, and widow of Peter French, canon of Christ Church, who was brought in from Emmanuel College, Cambridge, 1650, by the parliamentary visitors, and died 1655. French, according to Pope, Wilkins' half-brother (Life of Seth Ward, p. 44), was a pious, learned, humble person, and an excellent preacher, the best of all that party.

<sup>3</sup> John Owen, the celebrated dean of Christ Church, a native of Southampton, entered Queen's College 1630, matriculated 1631, proceeded B.A. 1632 and M.A. 1635. His life is in D. N. B. See also Thompson's History of Christ Church, pp. 69 sqq.

<sup>4</sup> It was not till the nineteenth century that an Act (46 Geo. III, cap. cxlvii) was passed 'for enabling a married person to hold and enjoy the Office of Warden of Wadham College in the University of Oxford.' The dispensation for Wilkins' marriage was obtained, 20 Jan. 1651, from the Parliamentary Visitors, of whom Dr. French was one, and not from Cromwell. See T. G. Jackson's History of Wadham College, p. 116.

REV. THOMAS SMITH TO DANIEL FLEMING (297).

I acquainted you in my last, y<sup>t</sup> I had sent your letter to Scott<sup>2</sup>, & I haue since received one from him, wherein hee desires mee to let you haue these two bookes, w<sup>ch</sup> I lately sent to you for, promising to furnish mee with y<sup>m</sup> very speedily: w<sup>ch</sup> I am very willing to, if it may be any pleasure to you (as phaps it may, in regard you were already fallen upon the reading of them) & accordingly I here send you them by this honest bearer, who very willingly undertooke the carraige of them. Those Observāōns upon y<sup>e</sup> Hist: of y<sup>e</sup> late K.<sup>5</sup> (w<sup>ch</sup> I mentioned to you in my last) are already answerd by L'Estrange<sup>6</sup>, authour of y<sup>t</sup> History: & this answer of his already refuted,

upon the Observations on the History of King Charles, wherein that History is vindicated, partly illustrated, and several things tending to the rectification of some public mistakes are answered. London, 1656.

<sup>1</sup> Peter Heylyn of Magdalen College, D.D. 1633, published in 1656 anonymously Observations on Mr. Hamon L'Estrange's Life of King Charles I, in which he dissented from L'Estrange's views of the legality of the proceedings of the Laudian clergy. To this L'Estrange, who easily guessed the authorship, replied by a savage attack on Heylyn, who answered in 'Extraneus Vapulans,' the smartest and most telling of Heylyn's controversial writings, abounding in sarcasm, and clothing a good deal of learning with a light garb of witty repartee. (D. N. B., s. v.) Its full title is Extraneus Vapulans: or the Observator rescued from The violent but Vaine Assaults of Hamon L'Estrange, Esq. and The Back-blows of Dr. Bernard, an Irish-Deane. By a Well willer to the Author of the Observations on the History of the Reign of King Charles. Amicus Socrates, Amicus Plato, Magis amica veritas. London, Printed by J. G. for Richard Lowndes at the White Lyon, neere the little North-door of St. Paul's Church, 1656. The address to the Reader is dated Lacies Court in Abingdon, June 7. 1656, and signed P. Heylyn.

<sup>2</sup> For Dr. Nicholas Bernard see n. 3, p. 43, and his life in D. N. B. The book which brought down upon him Heylyn's wrath was The Judgment of the late Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of Ireland, of the Extent of Christ's Death and Satisfaction, of the Sabbath and Observation of the Lord's Day and of Ordination in other Reformed Churches, with a Vindication of him from a pretended change of Opinion in the First, some Advertisements upon the Latter, and in Prevention of Further Injries, a Declaration of his Judgment on several other Subjects.

<sup>1</sup> Timothy Halton entered Queen's College as batler, 9 March, 1648-9, became fellow in succession to Thomas Smith, February, 1656-7 (see n. 2, p. 24), not long before the date of this letter. He was brother of Immanuel Halton, the astronomer, son of Miles Halton of Greenthwaite Hall, Cumberland, high sheriff of Cumberland 1654, by his wife Dorothy, dau. of Sir Jeffery Wibergh of Clifton and born about 1633. He proceeded B.D. 30 April, 1672, D.D. 27 Junc, 1674. He was made arehdeacon of Brecknock in the diocce and cathedral of St. David's 8 Feb., 1671-2, and succeeded Bishop Thomas Barlow as Archdeacon of Oxford 10 July, 1675, and as Provost of Queen's 7 April, 1677, holding all three preferments till his death 21 July, 1704. He also held the College living of Charlton on Otmoor from 29 Dec., 1685. He built the present College Library, and the parsonage at Charlton. A brother John was Fellow, Proetor, and eventually Reetor of Sulhamstead.

<sup>3</sup> This nephew was Henry Brougham, son of John Fleming's third sister Mary, who was married to Thomas Brougham, of Skale or Scales, in Skelton parish a few miles north-west of Penrith. Henry was the eldest son and heir, and certified the family pedigree (which croneously gives his father's name as John). He was sheriff of Cumberland 6 William III. He left Oxford without taking a degree, and married Mary, daughter of William Slee, merchant of Carlisle. His second son Henry was later Fellow of Queen's and further on will appear as Tutor to some of D. F.'s sons. He was lincal ancestor of the Lord Chancellor and the present Lord Brougham. He entered Queen's College as a Commoner 27 November, 1656, and matriculated the following 10 March, as 'generosi filius.' Letters from bim to his uncle follow immediately.

<sup>1</sup> This may be the Andrew Huddleston, who wrote XXV to D. F., for whom see n. 1, p. 43, in which case 'cozen' is used generally for a near relative, as elsewhere (see n. 1, p. 12), as that Andrew was his uncle, husband of his mother's sister Dorothy; but more likely the person here referred to is that Andrew's son, Andrew, the first Protestant of the family, and with Sir John Lowther one of the first who moved actively against James II. He was at this time under twenty years of age, but had already left Queen's College, which he entered as a commoner 26 June, 1655, subscribing the University Register the following 7 November, and entering Gray's Inn 28 June, 1655, as son and heir of Andrew, of Hutton John, Cumberland, esq.

a letter of George Fothergill's (afterwards Principal of St. Edmund Hall), of which I have been allowed to take a copy, he writes, 13 July, 1723, 'The Provost has admitted me Servitor on this day seven night, by the intercession I suppose of my kind Tutor. He has also brought on one who is Junior to me which has prevented my being Junior Scrivitor, and thereby freed me from a slav'ry w<sup>ch</sup> I always dreaded, and which I could not well have undergone. I believe it will save me above 8 pounds a year one way or another. My Tutor likewise has given me a Gentleman Commoner last night, w<sup>ch</sup> I call'd up this morning, w<sup>ch</sup> perhaps was the effect of your letter, but I don't know. So that for calling up I have about 5 Pounds per year, viz. 5<sup>s</sup> a quarter of each of the 3 Co<sup>m</sup>oners w<sup>ch</sup> I had before, w<sup>ch</sup> comes to 3 pounds a year, & 10<sup>s</sup> a quarter for this Gent: Com: w<sup>ch</sup> makes up 5 pounds.'

<sup>1</sup> Brougham, except the castle and perhaps a third part of the manor which belonged to Anne, Countess of Dorset, Pembroke, and Montgomery, belonged at this time to Emanuel Bird whose ancestor had bought it from the Broughams in the days of Henry VII. His son James bought the Countess of Pembroke's share in 1676, and James's grandchildren sold the whole manor to John Brougham, fifth son of John Fleming's nephew. Since then it has remained in the Brougham family. John Fleming may have been staying at the Hall with the Birds, or at the Castle. The Countess of Pembroke entertained D. I am disappointed this weeke of my Pol<sup>3</sup>: but I had a letter from H. R.<sup>4</sup> wherin he tells me (from a merchant) that Brandenburg is now in Holstein with 18000 of his owne, 12000 Imperialists, and 10000 Poles<sup>5</sup>; (halfe of these numbers would do well.) Its supposed the great Funerall<sup>6</sup> will be about All Saints; Henry 7ths vault is a cleansing: after wch, its said, a Parliamt<sup>t</sup> will be called, to sitt about February next. One thing, hee saith, hee wonders at (but so do not I) viz: that Sr Wm Davenant<sup>7</sup> (Poet-laureat) hath obtained a per-

<sup>2</sup> Really 'Remaining due from me.' The sum paid to the Sempstress also should be 7s. 6d. to make the account correct.

<sup>3</sup> Probably the Mercurius Politicus, a Diurnall, published by T. Newcomb, 1655-60 in London 'comprising the sum of foreine intelligence with the affairs now on foot in the three nations of England, Scotland and Ireland.' As there were many other Mercuries, Pol. would be its distinguishing name.

<sup>6</sup> Cromwell died 3 September, 1658, and 'was privately buried in the chapel of Henry VII, in Westminster Abbey, on September 26th, but the public funeral took place with extraordinary pomp on November 23rd. . . The funeral ceremonies cost sixty thousand pounds.' (C. H. Firth's Cromwell, p. 444.)

mission for Stage-plaies, and the Fortune-playhouse<sup>1</sup> is now trimming up against the Terme. It was rightly obserued by you, that new Patents and Commissions would be necessary for such as are in Office : for this very weeke the Justices have receiued a new Comission ; and a new Patent likewise is come for y<sup>e</sup> High Sheriffe<sup>2</sup>, with a Dedimus potestatem<sup>3</sup> to certaine of y<sup>e</sup> Justices to giue him his Oath (a copy of y<sup>e</sup> Oath being likewise sent inclosed) w<sup>ch</sup> oath being taken by him they are comanded to deliver him y<sup>e</sup> said Patent. Now what (thinke you) is to be done in this case, hee not being in the County to take his Oath? w<sup>t</sup> authority or warrant hath his Undersheriffe, or any of his other officers to act upon? It is (methinkes) a pretty odd case : pray, consult your bookes about it, and let us have yo<sup>r</sup> opinion of it at our next meeting, w<sup>ch</sup> now (I hope) will be ere long. accounts a son of Shakspeare, was appointed (1638) poet laureate by Charles I after the death of Ben Jonson. Having been despatched from France on a mission to Virginia, he was captured at sea, and imprisoned for two years in the Tower. In the later years of the Commonwealth he obtained permission to recommence a species of quasi-dramatic entertainments. He called his entertainment an opera. Lawes, Lock and Pncell took part in the performances ; and a Mrs. Coleman who appeared in his 'Siege of Rhodes' is said to have been the first Englishwoman who ever appeared upon the stage in an English drama. (D. N. B., s. v.)

LOUEING UNCKLE

I rēcd two letters from you one by my Tutor, another by Peter <sup>1</sup>, in the former you say that some of my friends looke vpon me as prodigall in my expences. If I were guilty of that, which they seeme to accuse me of, I could not haue the boldnesse to plead for my selfe, but innocence knows not how to blush. As for that which they object against me concerning my suite, I must tell them that in accuseing me of ignorance in that point, they doe certainly misconstrue the Mercers bill, for I had not onely a bare suite of the Mercer, but other things necessary, as bands, cuffs, stockins, handkercheifs &c: Surely they thinke that every yeare produces some more stupidity in me, but experience hath taught me noe longer to play the Idiot; but, if they will haue me a novice, they must needs accuse my Tutor either of folly or knavery (from both which his knowledge and honesty will set him free) for whatsoever I doe, is with his advice. As for my goeing to the Inns of Court, I am very willing to goe at Peters next returne, if it be consentaneus to your mind. I borrowed 20<sup>s</sup> of Peter to supply my wants in more small but necessary things which I desire y<sup>u</sup> to repay. <sup>2</sup> The Dudley Exhibitions, founded by Dr. Richard Dudley in 1529, were six in number, the nomination to two being reserved to the Dudley family. The right was usually exercised in favour of a scholar from Cumberland or Westmorland, and the holder of the exhibition was frequently, and in the seventeenth century invariably, allowed to reside in Queen's College. The connexion of these Dudley nominees with Oriel is therefore very slight. (Shadwell's Registrum Oriense, preface, p. viii.)

<sup>3</sup> John Skelton entered Queen's College as batler in the ninth week of the Christmas quarter of 1652-3, matriculated as 'servitor' 24 June, 1653, and was probably nominated Dudley Exhibitioner at the end of the same year. He was elected Tabarder of Queen's 19 June, 1656, proceeded B.A. 26 Nov. 1656 (hence he is here called Sr, = Dominus, the proper style of a Bachelor of Arts) M.A. 4 June, 1659. He was elected Fellow of Queen's 1 March, 1659-60, became Chaplain to Thomas Barlow, bishop of Lincoln, who gave him (1678-9) the archdeaconry of Bedford, (1681) the rectory of Walgrave, (1683) the prebend of Asgarby, which (1684) he exchanged for the prebend of Biggleswade, both in the cathedral church of Lincoln. He died 3 April, 1704. Hearne had a bad opinion of him (ii. 68).

<sup>4</sup> Woodhall, about a mile south of Hesket Newmarket, in the parish of Caldbeck, was famous for the residence of George Fox, the founder of the Quakers.

<sup>5</sup> John Wakefeild entered Queen's College as batler, 2 May, 1654, was matriculated 10 Nov. 1654, elected Wilson Exhibitioner, being a Westmorland man, in default of duly qualified Candidates from Kirkby Lonsdale School, 19 June, 1656, Tabarder November, 1657, B.A. 16 February, 1657-8, M.A. 7 August, 1660, elected Fellow Easter Term, 1661; Vicar of Bramley in succession to Thomas Lough (for whom see n. 1, p. 68) 1667. He does not appear as a Dudley Exhibitioner in Dr. Shadwell's Registrum Oriense.

Within 2 houres after I parted with you, in my way to Appeby, I met with y<sup>e</sup> certainty of the Kings being landed on the Friday before: but for the manner of it, I could learne nothing at all, till you informed mee. What I haue learnt further by this-day's Post, I here send you.

<sup>6</sup> Richard Tolson matriculated from Oriel College, 11 Oct. 1639, aged 17, son of Henry of Bridekirk, Cumberland, gent., great-nephew of Provost Tolson. He was barrister-at-law of Lincoln's Inn 1656, sheriff of Cumberland 1647, and was now M.P. for Cockermouth. He married Anne, dau. of Gilbert Gregory, of Barnby super Dun in the County of York. R. P. 388 is a sort of Newsletter from her to Lady Fletcher, informing her, among other things, that one of the Provisions of the Act of Indemnity 'is against S<sup>r</sup> Wilfrid Lawson for takeing 1500<sup>l</sup> from Rydall,' see n. 6, p. 7.

in Holland the Dutch discharged 29 great guns, our Generall Montague<sup>1</sup> all the guns of the fleet 6 times over. The K. at his first landing kneeled downe, and gave God thanks; then coming to Grāll Monck, who was kneeling upō his knees, hee tooke him up, embraced and kissed him, with y<sup>e</sup> title of Father. The D. of York kissed him severall times. The D. of Gloucester, whilst all y<sup>e</sup> rest were shouting God save y<sup>e</sup> King, hee threw up his hatt and cried God blesse Gen: Monck. Hee is made K<sup>t</sup> of y<sup>e</sup> Garter, Privy Councillour, Mr of y<sup>e</sup> Horse, and Capt Grāll of all y<sup>e</sup> * this I do question Forces both by * sea and land. Sr Edw. The Dutch presented y<sup>e</sup> K. and y<sup>e</sup> 2 Dukes to a very high value. The King of France's presents were refused. One of y<sup>e</sup> sisters of y<sup>e</sup> late Pr. of Orange<sup>5</sup> is lookt on as a fit match for y<sup>e</sup> K. Shee is a true Protestant. The

<sup>3</sup> Bridgeman's legal reputation during Charles I's reign stood very high. He was chief justice of Chester 1638, solicitor-general to the prince of Wales, 1640. He voted against Strafford's attainder, and after Charles's death was compelled to cease public advocacy at the bar, but permitted to practise in a private manner. As lord chief baron he presided at the trial of the regicides, which he conducted with remarkable moderation. On the disgrace of Clarendon (1667) he was made lord keeper, refused to put the great seal to various grants designed for the King's mistresses and had the great seal taken from him 17 Nov. 1672, and died in retirement at Teddington 25 Jnne, 1674. His lineal descendant is now Earl of Bradford. (D. N. B., s. v.) His great grandson, another Sir Orlando, was a benefactor to Queen's College, Oxford.

<sup>4</sup> The States Armes, i. e. the Arms of the Commonwealth, as prefixed to the Acts of Parliament printed and published by the Authority of the Commons from 1648 to 1659, are the cross of St. George impaling the harp of Ireland. Some of Cromwell's Proclamations, and it would seem also his great seal, have a more elaborate coat quarterly first and fourth the cross of St. George; second, the saltire of St. Andrew, and third, the harp of Ireland, with his private arms, a lion rampant on a scutcheon of pretence. None of the prints I have seen are properly tintured or tricked, but it is to be supposed that the cross is gules on argent, the saltire argent on azure, the harp or, stringed argent, on azure, and that the Cromwell, alias Williams, lion was argent, armed and langued gules, on sable. The Annals of England, though (iii. 1) it gives the Protector's arms correctly, (ib. 8) substitutes so far as I can see without authority the saltire of St. Patrick (gules on argent) for the Irish harp. On the 7th Sept. 1661 a Proclamation was issued by the King For the calling in all Moneys of Gold and Silver coined or stamped with the Cross and Harp.

From T. Lamplugh<sup>3</sup> (who was a Spectator of y<sup>e</sup> K<sup>s</sup> entrance) thus — Never was any Prince so welcome to his people, as Charles 2<sup>d</sup>, after 12 years banishm<sup>t</sup> was to his. Such State, and such acclama<sup>t</sup>ions as I want words to expresse. Some few parlars I will give you. Mr Will: Coventry<sup>4</sup> (yongest son of y<sup>e</sup> L<sup>d</sup> Keeper Cov.) rid first. After him, y<sup>e</sup> King's coach empty. After it, 16 coaches wth 6 horses apiece, in one of w<sup>ch</sup> rid Sr Ph. Musgrave<sup>5</sup>. <sup>3</sup> Thomas Lamplugh entered Queen's College as a batler in Michaelmas Term, 1633, and was matriculated 10 October, 1634, aged 16, as son of Thomas, of Dovenby, Cumberland, pleb. Other accounts make him to have been born at Octon in the parish of Thwing upon the wolde nigh Honangby or Barlington. His mother is buried there, and he gave a great deal of plate to the Chnrch. It was to his interest in Queen's College to be rep<sup>nt</sup>ed to be born in Cumberland. He proceeded B.A. 4 July, 1639, was created M.A. 1 Nov. 1642, proceeded B.D. 23 July, 1657, D.D. 9 Nov. 1660. He does not seem to have been a Taberdar, but was elected Fellow 23 Nov. 1643, and admitted 25 March, 1644. He was principal of St. Alban Hall 1664–73, lecturer at St. Martin's Carfax in Oxford, rector of Binfield, Berks, and of Charlton-on-Otmoor, Oxon, 1659, vicar of St. Martin's in the fields 1670, archdeacon of London 1664, canon of Worcester 1669, dean of Rochester 1673, bishop of Exeter 1676, archbishop of York 1688, until his death 5 May, 1691. His portrait is in the Common Room of Queen's College and there is a statue of him in York Minster.

<sup>4</sup> William Coventrey entered Queen's College 5 March, 1641–2, as fellow-commoner, and matriculated 1 April, 1642, aged 14, as son of Thomas, 'baronis de Alseborough' (Baron Coventry of Aylesborough, co. Worcester). He was created D.C.L. 28 Sept. 1663. He was afterwards of Minster Lovell, knighted 3 March, 1664–5, secretary to the Duke of York, and to the Admiralty, M.P. Great Yarmouth 1661–79, died 23 June, 1686. His life is in D. N. B.

<sup>5</sup> Sir Philip Musgrave, second baronet, of Hartley Castle in Westmorland and Edenhall in Cnmberland, succeeded his father Sir Richard when he was but seven years old (1615). He was M.P. for Westmorland 1640–3, fought at Marston Moor and is said to have had a warrant creating him Baron Musgrave of Hartley Castle, but never to have taken ont the patent. He died at Edenhall 7 Feb. 1677–8, aged 70.

His Mat<sup>y</sup> rid in a dark cloth-suit, y<sup>e</sup> D. of Yorke on the right hand, and y<sup>e</sup> D. of Glo. on y<sup>e</sup> left, his Excellency<sup>2</sup> and y<sup>e</sup> D. of Buck.<sup>3</sup> immediately after. At Pauls schoole-doore y<sup>e</sup> Ministers of London presented him wth a Bible: hee thankt them for it, and told them to this effect; That y<sup>e</sup> greatest part of that dayes solemnity hee must ascribe to Gods providence, and y<sup>t</sup> hee would make that booke y<sup>e</sup> Rule both of his life & governm<sup>t</sup>, and desired Dr Reynolds<sup>4</sup> to bring the Bible to him at Whitehall. For his feature, hee doth very much resemble his father, black, and very slender-faced. W<sup>n</sup> hee came into Pauls churchyard, hee cast his eye upon y<sup>e</sup> church, and pointed to y<sup>e</sup> D. of Yorke; but what it chosen by the city as one of the deputation to Charles II, and headed the procession which brought hack the king to London. His services were rewarded by the king who conferred the honour of knighthood on both him and his eldest son. He was elected lord mayor 3 Oct. 1660. He was created a baronet before his death which took place 24 Sept. 1669. (D. N. B., s. v.)

was hee said, I could not perceive for the noise, tho' I was within a yard of him. And now to tell you somew<sup>t</sup> from beyond-sea; Hee rec<sup>d</sup> from y<sup>e</sup> States of Holland in presents above 200000<sup>ti</sup>, besides 8000<sup>ti</sup> p diem, to maintaine him and his retinue during his stay at the Hague: where at y<sup>e</sup> serving up of every course 18 piece of Ordinance were discharged. The steeple of the great church there, was hung about with lamps, w<sup>ch</sup> burnt all the night long. They of Amsterdam have p<sup>m</sup>ised him to redeeme all the crowne iewells w<sup>ch</sup> are pawned there, and to send them over to him<sup>1</sup>. The Com<sup>is</sup>sioners y<sup>t</sup> were sent thither to him are highly satisfied, & even y<sup>e</sup> Presbyterians cry him up extraordinarily. He told them, hee would make it his care that both Episcopall Divines and Presbyterians should mutually condescend, and I find by Dr Reynolds y<sup>t</sup> hee for his p<sup>t</sup> is for a moderate Episcopacy. For the University, Besides Dr Oliver<sup>2</sup>, who is already restored to his Presidentship of Magd: Coll: there are 6 of y<sup>e</sup> Fellowes (formerly eicted) y<sup>t</sup> will be restored this weeke<sup>3</sup>. Last week 10 of the old fellowes of New Coll: were restored<sup>4</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> As early as 2 J<sup>n</sup>e, 1642, the House of Commons had received information that the Jewels of the Crown are either pawned or sold in Amsterdam, and ordered that whosoever hath been or shall be an Actor in the selling or pawning any Jewels of the Crown shall be held an Enemy to the State. (Rushworth, iv. 736.) On the 11th of the same month a letter sent from Amsterdam was read in both Houses of Parliament apparently from the same source: 'I cannot learn that any Jewels more are pawned than I have formerly expressed; neither of the Sale of any Jewels, save divers Collars of Pearl.' . . . 'In writing hereof I understand, by an Eye-witness, that all the Jewels are brought here again to be pawned, and amongst them the great Collar of Rubies fetch'd from Hamb. Also the three Brethren, four or five very great Diamonds, with divers more.' Clarendon (v. 323, ed. Macray, vol. ii. p. 170), who refers to this, allows that the Queen had sold some of her own jewels, and does not deny explicitly the sale or pawning of any Crown Jewels, though he scoffs at the information or pretended information.

<sup>2</sup> John Oliver, matriculated from Merton College 26 Jan. 1615-6, aged 15, admitted demy of Magdalen 7 April, 1619, B.A. 11 Dec. 1619, M.A. 11 July, 1622, fellow of Magdalen 1620, President 1644, turned out 1648, restored 18 May, 1660, by the House of Lords. The order is in Bloxam, v. 87; where also is an interesting letter to him from Lord Chancellor Clarendon, who had been his pupil. He died 27 Oct. 1661.

<sup>3</sup> Bloxam (ii. p. cxx) gives the name of seventeen fellowes and of eight demies who were restored in July of this year. The six here referred to may be 'Drope, Tayleur, Giles and other ejected fellowes' whose petition for restoration was referred by the Lords to a Committee on the same day (18 May) that the order for Dr. Oliver's restoration was issued. (ib. p. cxix.)

From Geo. Johnson <sup>2</sup> (at Carlile) to my lady <sup>3</sup>, thus—I haue this day recd a letter from Mr Carr <sup>4</sup>, who doth assure me y<sup>t</sup> my Mr <sup>5</sup> and lady sets forward for y<sup>e</sup> North upon Monday next *. Hee <sup>* viz. this day</sup> also writes, that my L<sup>d</sup> Wharton <sup>6</sup>, S<sup>r</sup> Ph. Musgrave <sup>7</sup>, S<sup>r</sup> Edw. Musgr. <sup>8</sup> and my M<sup>r</sup> went upon Tuesday in their coach to Greenwich within 2 miles w<sup>r</sup> the K. lay on Monday night <sup>9</sup>, and came along with his Ma<sup>ty</sup> into London. Hee writes, all our goods are sent away, but y<sup>t</sup> nothing as yet of y<sup>e</sup> coronāōn. The K. was above 12 houres in passing from Cobham to London, y<sup>e</sup> like show never seen in England in every parlar. Hee addes, y<sup>t</sup> iust at sealing both his M<sup>r</sup> and lady did assure him they would set forward upon Monday next, resigned 1662; Thomas Grant, fellow 1646; Robert Bowman, fellow 1646, resigned 1661; and perhaps John Lamphire, fellow 1636, principal of New Inn Hall 1662, died 1688. Burrows gives thirteen altogether as restored in 1660 (Register of Visitors of the University of Oxford, Camden Society).

<sup>8</sup> Sir Edward Musgrave of Hayton, created baronet of Nova Scotia 1638, a strong royal partisan in the civil wars, expended estates of the value of £2000 per annum. He married Mary, daughter of Sir Richard Graham of Netherby.

if not sooner. My master (sth Geo: Johnson<sup>1</sup>) hath y<sup>e</sup> money ready, so that all returnes will be made good: whereof hee desires my lady to give you notice, in case any body came from you hither. I have sent you y<sup>e</sup> Fine<sup>2</sup> back againe, since there is no pbability y<sup>t</sup> it should find him in London, and so might be in danger to miscarry. My Lady desires you to excuse her to M<sup>ris</sup> Fleming for not writing to her: but shee hath written earnestly to M<sup>r</sup> Benjamin Ellison<sup>3</sup> about y<sup>e</sup> matting, that hee would send one of his men with Mirehouse<sup>4</sup> to help him to buy it, and send it away this weeke without faile. This (I thinke) is all, save onely the tender of my humble service to y<sup>r</sup> good lady, and y<sup>e</sup> lady Bridget, with many thanks to her for the loan of her horse, wch I brought home againe in very good plight. <sup>6</sup> Thomas Harrison, a prominent Parliamentarian of extreme political and religious views, very zealous in bringing the King to trial, present at nearly every meeting of the high court of justice, signed the death-warrant, was appointed during Cromwell's absence in Ireland to the chief military command in England. M. G. in the text is for Major-General. He was suspected of directing the movements of the anabaptists in 1654, and was under arrest several times between then and 1658. When the Restoration approached he refused either to promise not to

<sup>5</sup> Perhaps the same as Thomas Stordy, of Moorhouse, born to the inheritance of a handsome estate, who at an early age joined the Society of Friends, was imprisoned for ten years in Carlisle gaol 1662-72 for refusing to take the oath of allegiance, and from 1684 till his death for absenting himself from public worship. (R. S. Ferguson, Early Cumberland and Westmorland Friends, p. 109.)

of the Ministers of our city do petition, and have spurred on our Common Councill to do y<sup>e</sup> like, to put y<sup>e</sup> K. in mind of the Covenant<sup>1</sup>, but wee heare y<sup>t</sup> for y<sup>e</sup> present it is obstructed at y<sup>e</sup> Common Councill, and wee beleive (if it should come to y<sup>e</sup> Houses) they would not passe it. Wee thinke these Ministers do it the rather, because the remainder of our B<sup>p</sup>s are about the K. and y<sup>e</sup> Common praier begins to spread<sup>2</sup>. Dr Reynolds<sup>3</sup> refused to signe their Petition. Mr Calamy<sup>4</sup> declines in 1660, was bishop of Bristol from 1672 to 1679, and of Chichester from 1679 to his death at Westminster 6 July, 1685. He is buried in Chichester Cathedral. His life is in Wood's Athenæ, and in D.N.B. He must not be confounded with George Carleton of St. Edmund Hall who was bishop of Chichester earlier in the century, who had been a pupil of Bernard Gilpin, 'the apostle of the North,' and wrote his life.

<sup>1</sup> In 1650, at Breda, before starting for Scotland, Charles had bonnd himself to take the covenant, and later in the same year he had lamented in a solemn declaration his father's opposition thereto. On the first of January, 1651, at his coronation at Scone he swore to observe the same, and the people swore allegiance to him according to the same. It was natnral therefore that the preshyterians who had brought him hack should raise the question of his present attitude to it. They were not left long in doubt. On 25 Oct. 1660 a moderate declaration was issued, hut when, 26 November, Serjeant Hales proposed a hill to give the declaration the force of law, it was resisted by the court party and rejected, and the convention parliament was soon after dissolved. On the 17th May in the following year the solemn league and covenant was with several acts of parliament ordered to be hnrnt in the midst of Westminster Hall hy the hands of the common hangman. (Lingard.)

<sup>2</sup> The use of the Book of Common Prayer seems only to have been gradually resumed. On the 1st July, 1660, Pepys goes 'to the Abbey, where a good sermon by a stranger, hut no Common Prayer yet.' Next Sunday he went to White Hall chapel, 'the first time that ever I remember to have heard the organs and singing-men in surplices in my life.' On the 22d he 'read prayers out of the Common Prayer Book, the first time that I ever read prayers in this house.' On the 29th at White Hall Chapel 'the ceremonies did not please me, they do so overdo them.' Aug. 5 he goes to St. Margaret's, Westminster, 'where the first time I ever heard Common Prayer in that church.' As late as 4 Nov. he goes 'to onr own church,' St. Olave's Hart Street, 'where Mr. Mills did begin to nihhle at the Common Prayer, hy saying 'Glory he to the Father, &c.' after he had read the two psalms; hut the people had been so little used to it, that they could not tell what to answer.' On the following Sunday 'did Mr. Mills begin to read all the Common Prayer, which I was glad of.'

From T. Lampl:<sup>2</sup> thus—Secretary Nicholas<sup>3</sup> is returned wth y<sup>e</sup> K. and hath his lodgings (for himselfe & family) in Whitehall. His son Mr John Nicholas<sup>4</sup> is made Clerk of y<sup>e</sup> Councill. Mr Guy Carleton<sup>5</sup> (formerly Fellow and Proctor of our Coll:) is Doctor, & one of the Kings chaplaines. Kit Musgr:<sup>6</sup> is one of his Lifeguard, and his brother Simon<sup>7</sup> waites upon y<sup>e</sup> D. of Glocester. Affaires here go well, and tend to settlem<sup>t</sup>, though some would make interruption, by crying up y<sup>e</sup> Solemne league and Cov<sup>t</sup>. but it will not do; y<sup>e</sup> major part is resolved agst it. Power is given by y<sup>e</sup> H. of Lords to y<sup>e</sup> Chancellours of both Universities, to see y<sup>t</sup> all Colledges in both U. be governed according to their severall statutes, and y<sup>t</sup> such persons as haue been unjustly ejected be restored to their places<sup>8</sup>. This Sr, with Uniformity 1662, was the first nonconformist imprisoned for disobeying the Act, but was soon set free; died of a broken heart at seeing London in ashes 29 Oct. 1666, and was buried near the pulpit in the ruins of his own church of St. Mary Aldermanbury. His grandson of his own name (1671–1732) was the biographical historian of nonconformity. (D. N. B., s. v.)

<sup>1</sup> By the Act 22 Charles II. cap. 17, clause 4, it was provided 'that every Ecclesiastical Person aforesaid, who shall be removed, shall or may enjoy the Tithes, Profits, Duties, Glebes and Houses therennto belonging, until the said five and twentieth Day of December next ensuing, and shall then upon such Removal peaceably leave or yield up the Possession thereof.

<sup>3</sup> Edward Nicholas entered Queen's College in Easter Term, 1610, matriculated 25 October, 1611, aged 18, 'generosi filius.' He was M.P. for Winchilsea 1621–2, 1624–5, and for Dover 1628–9, he was knighted 26 Nov. 1641, secretary to George, Dnke of Buckingham, principal secretary to Charles I 1642–1649, an exile with Charles II, declined a peerage, died 1 Sept. 1669, buried in Horsley Church, Snrrey. Upon my returne from Carlile yesternight I met with yo<sup>r</sup> letter, and am very glad to heare you are all well at Rydall. I will try w<sup>t</sup> may be done with Scott<sup>1</sup> as to y<sup>e</sup> exchange of yo<sup>r</sup> booke, tho' I am but upon the same termes with him still as you are. said University shall be governed according to their respective Statutes. And that snch persons, who have been unjustly put out of their Headships, Fellowships, or other Offices relating to the several Colleges or Universities, may be restored according to the said Statutes of the Universities and Founders of Colleges therein. (Wood's History and Antiquities of the University of Oxford, edited by Gntch, vol. ii. pt. 2 (1796), p. 699.)

<sup>2</sup> This is just too early for Venner's ontbreak, which took place in the night between the 6th and 7th January, 1660-1. What is probably referred to is thus described in Ludlow's Memoirs (ed. Firth), 1894, ii. 328:—'Least the people should, upon the dissolution of this assembly (the Convention Parliament), form a body of men, and assert their liberties, it was pretended that a great plot to seize the King and the Tower, to kill the Queen with all those that should be found of the French nation, and to restore the Parliament, was carrying on throughout England. Under this colour Major-General Overton, Colonel Desborough, Colonel Salmon, Lientenant-Colonel Farley, Major Whitby, and divers other persons were seized in London; and Colonel Duckenfield, Major Anthony Morgan, and several others were imprisoned in the country.' 16 December Pepys 'surprised with the news of a plot against the King's person, and my Lord Monk's,' went to 'the Guard in Scotland Yard' where he heard Major-General Overton 'deny that he is guilty of any such things.'

of' the King's 'Affairs may reqnire, without prejudice to him.' His father of the same name was vicar of Bridekirk in Cumberland. He was barrister-at-law of the Middle Temple 1664 and of Lincoln's Inn 1672. He was M.P. for Thetford in five Parliaments, and for Rochester in four between 1669 and his death 3 Oct. 1701. He also held seats in the Irish Parliament. He was successively secretary to Sir Edward Nicholas and to Sir Henry Bennett (afterwards Lord Arlington), whom he succeeded as Secretary of State in June, 1674. He was knighted 24 Jan. 1671-2, being then clerk to the council. He was edncated at St. Bees and Westminster schools; founded the London Gazette, which sprang from the news-letters he used to disperse as keeper of the paper office (see n. 1, p. 100). He was master of the Clothworkers' Company in 1676. He married Dec. 1678 Catharine dau. of George Stuart, lord d'Aubigny, and widow of Henry O'Brien, lord Ibraekan, and was buried in the duke of Richmond's vault in Henry VII's chapel in Westminster Abbey. He was a great friend to Queen's College and Queen's College men, adopted an eagle as his crest and 'Sub umbra tuarum alarum' as his motto. He befriended especially William Lancaster, afterwards provost, and William Nicolson, afterwards bishop of Carlisle and of Derry. We shall find much of him and about him further on. His life is in D. N. B.

<sup>1</sup> Fairfax had probably brought himself under suspicion by the vigour with which he supported the view that a general indemnity ought to be granted for all that had passed, without any exception. He went so far as to say 'that if any person must be excepted, he knew no man that deserved it more than himself, who being General of the army at that time, and having power to prevent the proceedings against the King, had not thought fit to make use of it to that end.' (Ludlow's Memoirs, ii. 268.) Although he had done so much to forward the Restoration, he returned to Nun Appleton without either honours or rewards, where he died 12 Nov. 1671. (D. N. B., s. v.)

<sup>3</sup> John Barwick, fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, held the eighth stall in Durham Cathedral in 1641, and resigned it for the fourth in 1642, in which however he was never installed. He was made dean of Durham at the Restoration, and in Oct. 1661 was removed to the deanery of St. Paul's, London. His life is in D. N. B. Thomas Smith was collated 16th March, 1660-1, and installed 20th July following. He resigned the fourth stall for the first in 1668, and resigned this in 1684 on being made bishop of Carlisle.

I was in good hopes of hearing something from you by this last Post touching Dr Lamplugh<sup>2</sup>: Humphrey Rob:<sup>3</sup> tells me it is an Ague, & y<sup>t</sup> Mr Beeby<sup>4</sup> likewise is sick of it. I question not but yo<sup>r</sup> next will fully resolve me. I rec<sup>d</sup> a letter last Saturday from yo<sup>r</sup> Uncle John Kirkby<sup>5</sup>, wherein he acquaints us y<sup>t</sup> they are all well at Connyston<sup>6</sup>, and so (praised be God) are we all here: but sorry to hear y<sup>t</sup> yo<sup>r</sup> Lady hath not been well, & y<sup>t</sup> her maid continues still so very ill. The Diurnall hath told us y<sup>e</sup> Titles of all y<sup>e</sup> new Acts, we<sup>h</sup> hath set my teeth a watering for a Sight of some of them, but much more for the new book of Com: praier, we<sup>h</sup> I presume will be extant now suddainely<sup>7</sup>. y<sup>e</sup> Triall of Lambert & Vane<sup>8</sup> has been so long

<sup>4</sup> John Beeby (according to Robinson, Register of Merchant Taylors' School, i. 171, but ?) was b. 3 Apr. 1633, in the parish of St. Olave, Southwark, third son of Robert Beebey, leatherseller, and was educated at Merchant Taylors' School; he entered Queen's College, as batler, in Easter Term, 1647, matriculated 14 June, 1649, was elected Dudley Exhibitioner (see n. 2, p. 119) 9 Aug. 1650 at Oriell College, at the request of the executors of Dr. Dudley; proceeded B.A. 15 May, 1651; elected Wilson Exhibitioner 7 August, 1652 (being then 'in Artibus Baccalaureus, è Comitatu Cumbriæ,' according to the College Register), proceeded M.A. 2 Febr. 1653-4, elected fellow Oct. 1654, admitted 2 Feb. 1654-5, incorporated at Cambridge 1656, proceeded B.D. 28 June 1662, submitted to the Visitation by the Parliamentary Commissioners (Burrows, 76), proceeded D.D. at Cambridge 1670, vicar of Culham, Oxon, 1664; rector of Headley, Hants, 1672. He married Christopher Wood (Antony's brother) to Elizabeth Seymour in Queen's College Chapel, 13 April, 1658; and was godfather to Robert, son of Robert Wood (another brother of Antony's), in 1663. He was a crony of Anthony's, and died, it would seem, of a malignant fever in Oxford, 19 Oct. 1672, and was buried in Queen's College Chapel. (Clark's Wood's Life, ii. 251, v. 10, 13.)

<sup>7</sup> The king had promised that the Book of Common Prayer should be revised by a commission of divines from the church of England and 'the dissenting brethren.' They met at the Savoy Mar. 25, 1662, but could come to no agreement. This was the conclusion which had been expected and desired. Charles had already summoned the convocation. Certain amendments and additions were adopted, and the book in its approved form was sanctioned by the king, and sent by him to the House of Lords. (Lingard, vol. vii. cap. 6.)

<sup>8</sup> Lambert and Vane had been excepted by name in the bill of indemnity. They were tried 6 June, 1662. Lambert appealed to the royal mercy, and though expected, & so often put off, y<sup>t</sup> I'll not think of it now any more, till I hear it is over: y<sup>e</sup> rather because it will not signify much, if (as the common voice goes) they are as good as pardond before-hand. My humble service (I pray) to your good Lady, M<sup>rs</sup> Bridget, Madam Sandford<sup>1</sup>, Mr Newman<sup>2</sup> & his good Lady: as also to Mr Dean of Pauls<sup>3</sup> (if returned) and to his brother, with my true love to honest Joseph<sup>4</sup>. <sup>2</sup> A letter to D. F. from Sir George Fletcher dated 2<sup>o</sup> June, 1662 (R. P., 486), is addressed 'For Daniel Fleming Esquire at London. Leauē this at Mr. Robert Newmans a barber in the Strand neare the new exchange London.' For the 'new exchange' see n. 6, p. 95.

Warwicke<sup>1</sup> to be a Farmer to y<sup>e</sup> Excise, (if it should be lett to farme) & finding it will be disposed of to such as come recommended from y<sup>e</sup> Justices of y<sup>e</sup> County (Letters being this week despatched from y<sup>e</sup> King & y<sup>e</sup> L<sup>d</sup> Treasurer to y<sup>e</sup> respective Sheriffes for giueing notice thereof) My humble suit is That you would please to giue My Broth<sup>r</sup> yo<sup>r</sup> owne hand (if y<sup>u</sup> thinke him proper) & interest him in yo<sup>r</sup> oth<sup>r</sup> friends of y<sup>e</sup> Bench, especially in S<sup>r</sup> George Fletcher, to whom I likewise intend y<sup>e</sup> next post to make it my owne request<sup>2</sup>; but shall chiefly build on yo<sup>r</sup> mediation; wherein I beg you will deferre no time, lest he be preengaged. Domestic State Papers, e.g. 12 Oct. 1659 he writes from Bridekirk to his brother that he will furnish him with a very fine colt when he comes into the country. He is now breaking one in for his own wife. 16 Apr. 1660 he informs his brother that Lord Howard and Sir Wilfred Lawson have been elected members for Yorkshire, Mr. Wilfred Lawson and Rich. Tolson for Cocker mouth, Mr. Briseoe and Major Tolhurst for Carlisle. Sir George [Fletcher] opposed my Lord and Sir Wilfred but came short. 11 August 1660 he is appointed Comptroller in the Port of Carlisle in the place of Richard Orfeur deceased. 26 Nov. 1660 he asks his brother if the excise will be continued on farm; if so, wishes him to obtain Cumberland and Westmorland for himself and Mr. Tickell at 150*l.* a year, though they would rather pay 1000*l.* than miss it. He also asks who farms the Salt Excise in England; would be glad to collect it for Cumberland; will give 100*l.* a year for it, and a present of 200*l.* to his brother for obtaining it for him. Later on in the same year he gives his brother information as to the value of the farm of the excise in Cumberland and Westmorland, and advises him to offer 1500*l.* for it, when he will gain 1000*l.* a year, and yet treat the country well; but rather to give 2000*l.* than let it slip. In another letter he asks for the ale excise and offers him 100*l.* and part of the profit; also the salt excise, but as the half is to be taken away it might be had for 120*l.* a year. Both together will be worth 2000*l.* a year. It appears that he was receiver-general of the county as well as comptroller of the port of Carlisle.

<sup>2</sup> 21 July, 1662, Sir George Fletcher wrote to Joseph Williamson regretting his inability to serve him in his brother's business; Sir Patrick Curwen and Sir Edw. Musgrave were the first offered to the bench, and they prevented all other pretenders. An earlier letter from George to Joseph had asked him not to press for it for him as Sir Edward Musgrave and Sir Philip intend to procure the farming of it, and have engaged that he shall be partner. <sup>1</sup> I have not been able to find the allusion in Classical or Renaissance literature, nor is the use of Apollinaris in the sense of 'favoured by Apollo' classical. The vocative in brackets seems to mean 'learned sir.' The mention above of the Cretans and Jupiter probably has reference to the protection afforded to Rhea at the birth of Zeus by the Curetes, who drummed and cymballed to prevent Kronos hearing her cries and those of the infant, who is here regarded as unconscious of the noise they were making on his behalf.

<sup>2</sup> Bowness is the largest village in the parish of Windermere, near the centre of the eastern shore of the lake, eight and a half miles north-west of Kendal. The school was built in 1637 and an endowment of £200 provided by subscription of the inhabitants of Undermillbeck and Applethwaite, two of the townships of the parish. In 1847 the master received about £60 per annum. (Sayer's History of Westmorland, i. 263.)

I do much wonder at, for they should have been here the last weeke. After my writing of these letters, I rec<sup>d</sup> one from Dr Lamplugh<sup>1</sup>, who was then newly come up to London, having been sent for Post to Jos: Williamson<sup>2</sup>, who was then dangerously ill of a Fever, but since (God be praised) he is in a good way of recovery, & y<sup>e</sup> Dr. is returned againe to Oxford, as old Humphrey<sup>3</sup> informes me since. <sup>1</sup> See n. 3, p. 131.

<sup>4</sup> Robinson's news on this point was rather belated. Though on Junne 30 Pepys had 'Great doubts yet whether the Dutch warr go on or no'; hy July 28 'All our discourse is of a Dutch warr, and I find is likely to come to it, for they are very high and desire not to compliment us at all, as far as I hear, hut to send a good fleete to Guinny to oppose us there.' On Aug. 3 he 'met with Mr. Coventry (see n. 4, p. 131) and he and I discoursed of the likeliness of a Dutch warr, which I think is very likely now, for the Dutch do prepare a fleet to oppose us at Guinny, and he do think we shall, though neither of us have a mind to it.' There was practically no chance of peace, as Captain Rohert Holmes had hy this time taken possession of the island of Goree, of Cape Verde and of most of the Dutch stations about there, had then proceeded in the same fashion along the coast of Guinea and having crossed the Atlantic was ousting the Dutch from New Amsterdam, on the site of the present New York. For the Dutch and English versions of this voyage compare Portalis's John de Witt, translated by Stephenson, vol. i. p. 312, and Laughton's life of Holmes in D. N. B.

43.) It would seem from the dates that Atkinson was among those outlawed at the time, though Burns and Nicolson (i. 552) make him to have been executed in March. Kaben or Kaber Rigg is a place in the parish of Kirkby Stephen, in which also Hartley, Mallerstang and Winton, whence Burns and Nicolson say Atkinson came, are situated. Mallerstang is the site of Uther Pendragon's castle, spite of whom 'Eden will run where Eden ran.' Atkinson had in the days of the Commonwealth used force to try to compel 'the Appleby ppeople to a Roundhead mayor, and clapped his hand on his sword, saying I'll do it by this.' (Burns and Nicolson, l. c.) Atkinson seems to have been apprehended in London, and was probably brought to Tynemouth by sea, the easiest way then to transport prisoners to Westmorland.

<sup>3</sup> John Ambrose, sixth son and ninth child of his father of the same name (for whom see n. 3, p. 10), first cousin once removed of D. F. whose great-grandfather was Ambrose's maternal grandfather, was educated at Sedbergh and St. John's College, Cambridge, where he was elected Fellow in 1629. He was chaplain in the Royal Navy, and afterwards Rector of Grasmere. He outlived his five elder brothers, who left no heirs, died unmarried 16 August, 1684, having conveyed Lowick, where he died, to his nephew John Latus, son of his sister Agnes. There is a good portrait of him at Rydal.

<sup>3</sup> There were at this time two baronets of the name, see n. 2, p. 27. Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge or of Whitehaven is the one here meant. He was baptized 20 Nov. 1642, matriculated from Balliol College 29 Oct. 1657, M.P. for Cumberland in nine parliaments between 1665 and 1700, a commissioner of the Admiralty 1689-96. His wife was Jane, daughter of Woolley Leigh of Addington, co. Surrey. He was buried at St. Bees 17 Jan. 1705-6. He was never sheriff of Cumberland. He developed the Lowther property in the neighbourhood of Whitehaven, which was worth two millions when it passed in 1755 to the elder branch of the family.

<sup>8</sup> Sir Patricius Curwen, head of a family which for several centuries has held the manor of Workington, represented Cumberland in Parliament and was created a Baronet in 1626-7. His only son, Henry, died in the lifetime of his father, at whose death, 15 December, 1664, the baronetcy became extinct.

<sup>9</sup> 'My Lord Fitzharding . . . fell to discourse of Prince Rupert, and made nothing to say that his disease was the pox and that he must be fluxed, telling the horrible degree of the disease upon him with its breaking out on his head.' (Pepys, 15 Jan. 1664-5.)

It seemes his last fit was suddaine, and not long, yet so y<sup>t</sup> he had time to settle all things to his mind; he spake as sensibly as ever, till within leste then a quarter of an houre before his departure, & his carriage all along very pious & christian. The estate he left was but small, and much of that to charitable uses, yet so as not to forget his relations: Mr Nicholas<sup>3</sup> (he who lived with us at Durham, & was y<sup>e</sup> oldest brother) will have about 300<sup>ti</sup> his other 2 brothers more, in regard of their children &c. I have in y<sup>e</sup> meane time thought good to write this for yo<sup>r</sup> informacōn That y<sup>u</sup> may know, besides that Ord<sup>r</sup> from y<sup>e</sup> Board, there is to issue out an Order from his Roy<sup>ll</sup> Highn<sup>esse</sup> as L<sup>d</sup> High Adm<sup>ll</sup> to his Viceadm<sup>ll</sup> in those Countyes<sup>4</sup> for y<sup>e</sup> makeing that press, and yo<sup>r</sup> Letter from M<sup>r</sup> Secr<sup>y</sup> was onely to engage y<sup>u</sup> to be assisting to y<sup>e</sup> Viceadm<sup>ll</sup> in that Press. Now y<sup>e</sup> Viceadm<sup>ll</sup> is y<sup>e</sup> E. of Carlisle, who not being yet returned (tho' every day expected) it is not thought worth y<sup>e</sup> time for his R<sup>ll</sup> Highn<sup>esse</sup> to make one on purpose, but rather to expect his arriual; from whom y<sup>u</sup> may expect a further power to levy yo<sup>r</sup> own (for in him y<sup>e</sup> Power is by virtue of y<sup>e</sup> Dukes Comiss<sup>n</sup>). <sup>2</sup> Sir Henry Bennet, afterwards Earl of Arlington, was Secretary of State from October, 1662, to September, 1674, when he was succeeded by Williamson. R. P. 638 is a letter from Bennet, dated 17 Jan. 1664-5, to the Justices of Westmorland, saying that 400 seamen are to be raised out of the Counties of Cumberland, Westmorland, Northumberland, and the Bishoprick of Durham, whereof fourscore from Cumberland and Westmorland. In the absence of Lord Carlisle, the Vice Admiral of the two Countyes, and in the vacancy of the place of his Deputy by the death of S<sup>r</sup> Patricius Curwen, the Justices of the Peace are called on to perform the duty.

<sup>4</sup> Charles Howard, who had been Captain of Oliver Cromwell's Body Guard, was made Lord Lieutenant of Cumberland and Westmorland 1660, Baron Dacre of Gillesland, Viscount Howard of Morpeth, and Earl of Carlisle 1661, and in the same year Vice-Admiral of the Counties of Northumberland, Cumberland and Durham. It appears that eighty seamen were demanded from the counties of Cumberland and Westmorland. R. P. 650 is a reply to Bennet from D. F. and four other Justices of the Peace, stating that there are no seamen in Westmorland, and that to provide the whole number from Cumberland would almost ruin its sea-traffic. In R. P. 659 and 660 the Earl of Carlisle agrees that it is impossible to raise the number demanded, and desires D. F. to send to Newcastle those he has been able to raise, who will doubtless fall short of the number demanded.

From R. P. 914 it appears that Richard Tubman was D. F.'s Attorney or Magistrates' Clerk in a case in which Robert Webster of Cockermouth was attorney on the other side. The place whence the letter was written is not given, the date is 23 Sept. 1667.

<sup>3</sup> The Act 18 Charles II cap. 1 is an Act for raising Monies by a Poll, and otherwise, towards the Maintenance of the present War. The Act 17 Charles II cap. 1 had been An Act for granting the sum of twelve hundred and fifty thousand Pounds to the King's Majesty, for his present further supply.

B.* quotes from his will: 'I do absoltely renounce and disown whatever shall he published after my decease in my name.' It is curious that though D. F. paid May 7, 1662, at London for B. Sanderson's Episcopacy 00-01-00 (R. P. 492), neither the Bodleian nor the British Museum has any copy earlier than the one described above. It is a small 8° of 103 pages.

<sup>2</sup> Sure-footing in Christianity, or Rational Discourses on The Rule of Faith. With Short Animadversions on Dr. Pierce's Sermon; Also on some passages in Mr. Whithy and Mr. Stillingfleet, which concern That Rule. By J. S. London, Printed in the Year 1665. (Bodleian Library, 8°.) The author was John Sergeant or Serjeant (1622-1707), a Roman Catholic controversialist. A second edition appeared in the same year with an 'appendix, subverting fundamentally and manifoldly my Ld. of Down's (i. e. Jeremy Taylor's) Dissuasive,' and a 'Letter to Dr. Casaubon'; the additions being issned separately in the same year. (D. N. B., s. v.) The Bodleian copy has a note in Bishop Barlow's handwriting, 'This hooke is answered by Mr. Tillotson in Print, and by Mr. Hughes formerly of Pemhroke Coll: late Minister of Plimmouth a non-Conformist, but his Answers not yet in Print. Decemb: 16, 1666.' The Answer referred to by Smith is almost certainly The Rule of Faith: or an Auswer to the Treatise of Mr. J. S. entituled Sure-footing, &c. By John Tillotson Preacher to the Honourable Society of Lincolns-Inne. To which is Adjoined A Reply to Mr. J. S. his 3d Appendix, &c. By Edward Stillingfleet B.D. one of his Majestics Chaplains in Ordinary. London, Printed by A. Maxwell for Sa. Gellibrand, at the Golden Ball in St. Pauls Chureh-yard, 1666. The Imprimatur is dated 27 Feb. 1665-6. Stillingfleet became Bishop of Worcester in 1689, and Tillotson Archbishop of Canterhury in 1691. Another reply is ΔΟΞ ΠΟΤΤ ΣΤΩ, or, An Auswer to Sure Footing, So far as Mr. Whitby is concerned in it, Wherein the Rule and Guide of Faith, the Interest of Reason, and the Authority of the Church in Matters of Faith, are fully handled and vindicated; from the exceptions of Mr. Serjcant, and Petty Flirts of Fiat Lux. Together with an Answer to Five Questions propounded by a Roman Catholick. By Daniel Whithy, M.A. Coll. Trin. Oxon. Soc. Oxford: Printed by W. Hall, for R. Davis, 1666. (Bodleian Library, sm. 8°.) Mr. Hughes' reply is Sure-Footing in Christianity Examined. By G. H. London, Printed in the Year, M.DC.LXVIII.

He died 16 June, 1666. D. F. was at his Buriall on the 18th. He was of Queen's College, where he entered Michaelmas Term, 1629, matriculating 20 April, 1632, as arm. fil. nat. max. and proceeding B.A. 11 June of the same year. His father's name was Edward. <sup>1</sup> This is almost certainly John, afterwards Sir John, Otway, son of Roger of Middleton in Westmorland, who married Anne, daughter of John Mayer, Head-Master of Sedbergh School, and before that Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. He apparently then moved to Ingmire Hall, where according to one account his son John was born, though his pedigree in the Genealogist, New Series, xvi. 61, makes him born at Beckside Hall in Middleton. The father was certainly buried at Sedbergh 12 Feb. 1648, aged 88. John was edncated at Sedbergh School under Gilbert Nelson, was admitted at St. John's College, Cambridge, 3 June, 1636, of which he was elected Fellow on the Lupton Foundation 24 Mar. 1639-40, as 'legista' unanimously. He had been previously admitted to Gray's Inn, 1 Nov. 1638, as son of Roger, of Midleton, Westmoreland, gent. In March, 1643, with the master and twenty-eight other fellows he was ejected by the earl of Manchester, in pursnance of an ordinance of parliament, for refusing the Solemn League and Covenant and soon after joined the royal army. He was the bosom friend of John Barwick (for whom see n. 3, p. 141), and most of what we know of Otway may be found in Barwick's life by his brother Peter. After Oliver Cromwell's death Otway was able through two parliamentary officers Clobery or Clobury, who had married Otway's wife's sister, and Redman, who had married Otway's own sister, to help on Monk's movements, and after the Restoration Otway was made a King's Connsele, Vice-Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, Chancellor of the County of Durham, and knighted 20 June, 1673. He died 15 Oct. 1693, and there is a tablet to his memory in Sedbergh Church. He was twice married, (1) to Mary, daughter of Robert Riggs of Fareham and Winchester, who was buried 11 June, 1659, (2) to Elizabeth, daughter of John, son of Gawen Brathwayt of Ambleside, whose sister Isabel was D. F.'s grandmother. Hence D. F. calls Otway his cousin, e. g. when 7 Mar. 1667-8 he gives a shilling 'to the little fidler for playing to my cosin Otwaye's children.' Ingmire passed in the next generation by marriage to the Uptons, whose descendants still own it.

<sup>2</sup> The English fleet, under the orders of Prince Rupert and the duke of Albemarle, fought in the Downs for four days with the Dutch June 1-4, 1666. The victory was doubtful. On the 25th July the Dutch were defeated with great loss off the North Foreland and chased into their harbours, nearly 200 sail being taken or burnt at Schelling soon after. (Annals of England, iii. 60.)

Touching the French being landed in Devonshire<sup>8</sup>, I have not heard

<sup>3</sup> Sir Cristopher Myngs or Mings (as Pepys calls him), vice-admiral of the red squadron, had been detached to the westward with Prince Rupert, and so was absent till the fourth day of the fight, when he led the van in the Victory. He was wounded twice in the neck, but refused to leave the deck. He lingered five or six days. Pepys was at his funeral (June 13, 1666).

<sup>6</sup> William Craven, son and heir of Sir William Craven, Lord Mayor of London 1610-1, was knighted 4 March, 1626-7, and six days later made Baron Craven of Hampsted Marshall, with remainder on failure of heirs of his body to his two brothers. He commanded at the taking of Creuznach 1632, and was taken prisoner with prince Rupert near Wesel 1639, while engaged on behalf of the Elector palatine. He paid £20,000 for his ransom, £10,000 for the unpaid English pension to the ex-Queen of Bohemia, and at least £50,000 to Charles II during his exile at the Hague. The ex-Queen lived at his house from her arrival in England till just before her death. He was made Viscount Craven of Uffington and Earl of Craven in 1664, and the remainder to his first barony was extended to include some distant cousins. He devoted himself to the relief of the sufferers from the plague, stuck to James II till the very last, and died unmarried 9 April, 1697.

<sup>1</sup> One of Williamson's clerks. He seems to have been at Cologne with Williamson in 1673, and to have returned to England during the negotiations. There are several letters from him to Williamson in the Camden Society's Letters to Williamson. Will: is of course Williamson.

<sup>2</sup> Twenty-three numbers of The Current Intelligence seem to have been published between 4 June and 20 Aug. 1666 by authority. It seems to have been published in folio by J. Macock. All but No. 2 are in the British Museum.

<sup>3</sup> When Charles II was at Oxford in 1665 to avoid the plague, Lichfield the university printer was authorised to bring out a local news-sheet to supply the want felt by the court of regular intelligence. From Tuesday, 14 Nov., the 'Oxford Gazette' regularly appeared on Mondays and Thursdays. Henry Muddiman was the first editor, but after a few numbers Williamson became editor with Charles Perrot of Oriel College as sub-editor. When the court returned to Whitehall, Muddiman, and also L'Estrange, endeavoured to thwart Williamson, but unsuccessfully; and the 'London Gazette,' of which the first number (No. 24 of the series) appeared 5 Feb. 1666, still exists to testify to Williamson's success. By y<sup>e</sup> last Post I recd yo<sup>r</sup> third letter, w<sup>ch</sup> you writt me to Durham, being sent me from thence, for w<sup>ch</sup> I must now thanke you, as for the former. Mr. Williamson in one of his, the laste weeke, hath a passage concerning you, wherewith I think fit to acquaint you. These are his words:

Mr Flemings discreet and active care, expressed in his letters. is very well liked of here, y<sup>e</sup> King having had the reading of them, Indeed we want everywhere such stedy sober heads, those generally in all o<sup>r</sup> busines being capricious, humourous, affected, or something worse; God almighty make us all better.

Concerning y<sup>e</sup> busines of Scotland, he writes thus; I wish y<sup>e</sup>

Game end thus: but certainly we shall have reason to be jealous of a soile that brings forth this mortall Hellebore<sup>1</sup>, after all the art and even violence used to root it out.

In a former letter of his, w<sup>ch</sup> I rec<sup>d</sup> from him at Durham, presently upon y<sup>e</sup> first newes of the rising in Scotland, he writes thus;

I confesse I alwayes doubted our friends at Westminster mistooke the man, when they cryed out against the Popish Recusant: for though we all know the insolency and folly of a Romish Priest, yet no sober man even of those y<sup>t</sup> sate upon the examination of that mystery<sup>2</sup>, saw any ground in y<sup>e</sup> world to cry out so loud a Popish Plott, & by that meanes alarme unnecessarily (& indeed improperly) the Commonalty, who by that were made the more fit to fall into this Scotch snare. God almighty prevent further intestine mischeife, but I see the wisest among us have great remaines of the foolish ielousies and ungrounded suspicions of our fathers, that ruined us 25 yeares agoe.

This I had in my pocket at Hutton, w<sup>n</sup> you showed me something y<sup>t</sup> you had rec<sup>d</sup> from him to y<sup>e</sup> same purpose, but I did not think fit to produce it in that company, neither would I have it go any further then yo<sup>r</sup>selfe, or yo<sup>r</sup> Uncle Kirkby<sup>3</sup> at furthest. Yo<sup>r</sup> next from Joseph<sup>4</sup> will tell you our Smyrna-flect<sup>5</sup> is safe arrived, &

<sup>1</sup> The referenees to Hellebore in general literature are generally to its efficacy in curing madness. Murray gives, however, a reference to Marston, Sco. Villanie, 1. i. 172, 'As methodist Musus kild with Hellebore,' where, as here, the reference seems to be to its poisonous qualities. So Lyte, Dodoens, 111. xxiv. 348, 'White Ellebore vnprepared and taken out of time and place . . . is very hurtfull to the body.'

<sup>5</sup> Smyrna had been since the revival of the Levant trade the emporium for the whole produce of Asia Minor. The English trade was carried on by a company chartered originally for a limited time under Elizabeth and in 1605 by James I perpetually under the name of the merchants of England trading to the Levant seas. Under one of the earlier charters the limits of their trading were to be the Venetian territories, the dominions of the grand signior by land and sea, and through his countries overland to East India. The fleets were collections of armed merchant ships voyaging together for safety against pirates and enemies' ships, and would be characterised by the name of the port from which they came. Pepys (29 Nov. 1667) mentions a report 'that eighteen Dutch men-of-war are passed the Channell in order to meet with our Smyrna ships,' and (12 Dec.) hears that 'the very good newes is just come of our four ships from Smyrna, come safe without convoy even into the Downes, without seeing any enemy.'

I am bold to trouble you (& yet I am too bold in terming those businesses of trouble to you, seeing it is not more your duty then delight to approue your faithfulnessse in the service of god, & your Country; which is not onely your great honour but known character) I am bold (I say) to trouble you with an information against a Quaker woeman, who this last Christmas day in the middle of Divine Service, before a great & solemne Assembly, in gods own house, did not onely disturb me their Minister, but the whole Congregation by her most irreverent gesture, standing in the midst of the church, where with a lowd strange inarticulate noise she did drowne the sound of my voice received the Royal Assent 8 January, 1666-7. The Act which this Act was to explain was probably the first Act of the previous session, An Act for raising Monies by a Poll, and otherwise, towards the Maintenance of the present War.

<sup>1</sup> 'A Bill for raising part of the supply for his Majesty by an imposition on sealed Paper and Parchment' was hotly discussed in the House of Commons 14 Dec. 1666, and carried by the Court party upon a division, but next day 'laid aside wholly and to be supplied by a land tax' which, as Pepys writes 'shews them fools.' He quotes from Sir Thomas Crew (under date of 5 Nov. of the same year) 'that the truc reason why the country gentlemen are for a land tax and against a general excise is because they are fearful that if the latter be granted they shall never get it down again; whereas the land-tax will be but for so much, and when the war ceases there will be no ground got by the Court to keep it up.' On the whole matter see Ranke's History of England (English translation), iii. 449.

<sup>2</sup> William Wilson entered Queen's College as batler 4 July, 1649, and matriculated as serviens 18 Nov. 1650, the same day as D. F. He proceeded B.A. 23 May, 1653, and was made rector of Windermere 1660. A son of his of the same name was a taberdar of the College, and a twin brother Edwin was also of the College. R.P. 615 is a letter, dated 4 July, 1664, from Christopher Edmundson (Incumbent of Hawkshead 1664-77) moving D. F. to take action against the Quakers who had held a conventicle at Giles Walker's house close by Hawkshead.

& words to the amusing<sup>1</sup> of my hearers, & at last not containing her furious passion, in the time of prayers she spake aloud & deliver'd her selfe in a great impetuous rabble of slanderous language against my own person, calling me covetous and greedy a deceiver of the people whilst wee were presenting our devoutest requests vnto god in his holy Church. Sr I know you will take cognisance of this her disturbance of me in my sermons of her chiding in the Church & in the Churchyard where she abused severall of the best of the parish, whose joynt desires with mine are to informe you of these her misdeameanours: Indeed Sr it was a great offence to all my Auditors, and a strange Spectackle here to us of a furious woeman, wee hauing (I beleue) not one natieue in our parish of this Sect. This woeman & her husband came but into the parish this last yeare, & they may well be called puritan or Jesuite Quakers<sup>2</sup>. By this fact (it is verely feared) she hath giuen an example to all others of her faction whereby they will be encouraged to those former Insolencys whereby they were wont to abuse Churches & disturb Ministers & Congregations, if by the Authority of Magistrates they bee not timely suppressed & restrained; As the law hath alwaies had a speciaall regard to those persons, places, & times that there should be no breach of the peace to such which be dedicated to the service of god; so I know Sr you will be carefull to preserue the priuiledges of the Clergy, & the Reverence of gods house according to severall statutes in that case provided<sup>3</sup>. <sup>1</sup> Amuse in the transitive sense originally meant to cause to stare, and so to distract. Here Mr. Wilson seems to use it of the turning of his hearers' attention away from what he was saying. (See Murray, s. v.)

<sup>3</sup> 13 & 14 Charles II cap. 1 was an Act for preventing Mischiefs and Dangers that may arise by certain Persons called Quakers, and others, refusing to take lawful Oaths, which prohibited, among other things, five or more Quakers assembling themselves under pretence of joining in a Religious Worship; but the Acts here referred to are probably The Act of Uniformity (13 & 14 Charles II cap. 4), the Conventicle Act (16 Charles II cap. 4), and the Five Mile Act

I had belieued otherwise of.

<sup>1</sup> These were Lord Holles and Mr. Henry Coventry. The Congress met at Breda on the 20th May, France, Denmark, the States-General and Sweden being all represented. As a result three treaties were signed on 21 July. By one with Holland it was stipulated that both parties should forget past injuries, and remain in their present condition, which confirmed to the States the possession of the disputed island of Pulo<sup>r</sup>one, and to the English their conquests of Albany and New York. By the second with France, Louis obtained the restoration of Nova Scotia, and Charles that of Antigua, Monserrat, and part of St. Kitts; and by the last with Denmark, relations of amity were reestablished between the two crowns. (Lingard.)

<sup>2</sup> George Williamson, for whom see n. 6, p. 143. He had now been for some time collector of the hearth-money or chimney-money. It was an unpopular tax, and as early as 4 March, 1664-5, he had applied to his brother for help. The particular difficulty as to which Joseph here asks D. F.'s assistance may be the matter described in an Information of Peter Robinson, of Bridekirk, Cumberland, dated 19 Sept. 1666 (S. P. D. 1666-7, p. 145), in which Sir George Fletcher was concerned. Robinson had distrained a flagon upon John Thompson of Penrith for two shillings due by him, and Sir George made Robinson restore the flagon without receiving the shilling due for charges, and forbade him to act under authority from George Williamson, saying he had no power to give such deputations. R. P. 889 is a long letter to the Justices of Cumberland from the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury dealing with the complaints of the Farmers of the Hearth Tax and their officers in the sense desired by Joseph Williamson on behalf of his brother. R. P. 934 is a letter from George Williamson to D. F. dated Bridekirk, 27 October, 1667, stating that he has ordered his man to wait on D. F. with warrants of summons 'that if they do not pay me their excise or giue reasons I hope we may haue warrants of distress. After you haue signed I hope the next Justice will.' D. F.'s signature would have a special value as that of the brother-in-law of Sir George Fletcher.

As your service is generally eminent for & generally so owned by our County: so I doe very willingly & thankfully acknowledge what great obligation you haue layde vpon my selfe for that prompt and candid justice wch you show'd mee at the Foxe<sup>2</sup>, in remouing that from of my shoulders, wch the injustice of some neighbours had imposed vpon my wife during her viduity<sup>3</sup>. As to the request of Dr Smith, I have sent to one James Bownas<sup>4</sup> that teaches some boyes for some gentlemen at Plumland<sup>5</sup> in Cumberland. I understand the place where he serues is not much distant frō Cockermouth. It is <sup>1</sup> There were several north-country schoolmasters of this name during the seventeenth century. (1) The Headmaster of Sedbergh School 1648-1656, for whom see Sedbergh School Register, pp. 9 seqq. (2) The writer of this letter, described by Nicolson and Burn (i. 332) as 'one of the most eminent teachers of his time.' He had been schoolmaster of Bampton, before he came to Kendal. He left the interest of £100 to those who should succeed him as Headmasters of Kendal. In 1671, or soon after, he was appointed Headmaster of Appleby school, which had just been given a fresh start in consequence of the liberality of Provost Barlow, Dr. Smith and Mr. Randal Sanderson, all of Queen's College and heretofore pupils at Appleby. (3) The Headmaster of St. Bees School 1686-1738, of whom we shall hear further on. Mr. William Jackson (Cumberland and Westmorland Papers and Pedigrees, ii. 206) believes (3) to have been a son of (2), but 'cannot offer any proof.' Mr. Jackson is mistaken, as he matriculated from Queen's College 3 July, 1679, aged 19, son of Thomas, of Swithindale, Westmorland, pauper puer.

<sup>2</sup> Probably an inn of the name in Kendal. 'We find in the Parish Church Register the following notice of burial: "April 16, 1622, Henry Bremer, of the sign of the 'Fox and Goose' in Kendal." And again, George Baker, the author of "Newes from the North," directs that his letters from November 21st, 1642, be sent to him, care of Mr. Phillipson, at the sign of the "Fox and Goose," Kendal. But where this old inn was I cannot find out.' (J. F. Curwen, Kirkbie-Kendal, p. 71.) For Fox's Inn, the head hostelry of the town, which may be the one here meant, and a later 'Fox and Goose,' which replaced an earlier 'Crown and Mitre,' see the same book, pp. 33, 66. R. P. 951 is a letter from Sir John Otway (see n. 1, p. 155) to D. F. addressed to him 'at the ffox in Kendal, Westmorland.' From R. P. 1049 it appears that Mr. Potter was Landlord of the Inn 23 April, 1669.

I retorne you your Packet, with many thanks; those from London got the start of mine; your Foot-post being quicker & nimbler then ours; the former part of yo<sup>r</sup> newsletter (wth y<sup>e</sup> Gazette and Relāōn of ye Earthquake)<sup>1</sup> I had sent me frō Carlile on Wednesday, and y<sup>e</sup> latter part came not till about two houres after y<sup>e</sup> arrivall or yo<sup>r</sup> messenger. The other letters, from Oxford, were very welcomte here, bringing us so good newes from o<sup>r</sup> young Travellers. I here send you a letter w<sup>ch</sup> I rec<sup>d</sup> from Madam Frances<sup>2</sup>, though they are all (in effect) but the same. <sup>3</sup> See n. 1, p. 3. As in 1650 he accompanied D. She was born at Gillingham 31 Jan. 1632-3, and died at Kensington 18 May, 1671, and is buried in the chancel of Charlton-on-Otmoor, where there is a long inscription to her memory. The boy may be Thomas, afterwards canon of York and archdeacon of Richmond, who would have been about six years old at this time. Only three of her five children survived her.

<sup>2</sup> This famous inn occupied the north-western part of the site of the Examination Schools in High Street, and included at the time of its greatest prosperity that side of High Street as far as Cooper's shop. Wood says that William Day, whose monumental inscription is or was in St. Peter's in the East Church, 'built the large inn called the Angell in the parish of S. Peter in the East, anno 1662' (City of Oxford, iii. 174). Elsewhere he says it was 'sometimes an ancient hall, though of its name I cannot justly determine' (ib. i. 131). Queen Adelaide lodged there 19 Oct. 1835.

<sup>3</sup> Thomas Willis matriculated from Christ Church 3 March, 1636-7, aged 16, proceeded B.A. 19 June, 1639, M.A. 18 June, 1642, B.M. 8 Dec. 1646, D.M. 30 Oct. 1660, Sedleian Professor of Natural Philosophy 1660-75; one of the original members of the Royal Society, an eminent physician, practised in a house opposite Merton College, where Fell, Dolben, and Allestry kept up the Church of England service all through the Commonwealth. He is said to have moved to London at Abp. Sheldon's suggestion in 1666, but seems from this letter to have been in Oxford later, got into disfavour with James II when Duke of York for pronouncing his children unhealthy, died 11 Nov. 1675, buried in Westminster Abbey. His life is in Wood's Athenæ and D. N. B. He was grandfather of Browne Willis the antiquary.

<sup>4</sup> John Maplet or Maplett, of Westminster School, matriculated from Christ Church 24 Feb. 1631-2, aged 20, proceeded B.A. 8 July, 1634, M.A. 17 April, 1638, D.M. 24 July, 1647. He was proctor of the University in 1643. He was principal of Gloucester Hall 1647, and ejected by the Earl of Pembroke, who was chancellor, but restored in 1660, and held the office till 1662. Meanwhile he had travelled with two sons of the great Lord Falkland, and begun practice at Bath (in the summer) and Bristol (in the winter). Wood calls him 'a good physician, a better christian, and an excellent Latin poet.' He died 4 August, 1670, and is buried in the church of St. Peter and St. Paul at Bath. His life is in Athenæ and in D. N. B.

*w<sup>ch</sup> he was very willing to communicate. I desire them to take Oxōn in their way as they returne, & to take D<sup>r</sup> Willis's further advice (if it be needfull) for having come thus farre I would they should make the best advantage of their iourney they can. I professe to you both my wife & I are very heartily sorry that we should be just going out of [towne] as they came in; and if our bedding & goods had not been gone, we had put off our iourney till ye next weeke. So farre he. I thank you kindly for your care of my busines to M<sup>r</sup> Jackson, and I here returne you his letter: ye young man he mentions has been with me this weeke, in company of M<sup>r</sup> Nicholson<sup>1</sup>, Minister of Plumland, at w<sup>ch</sup> time I took some triall of him, & find him scholler enough for my purpose: but M<sup>r</sup> Nicholson showed me a letter w<sup>ch</sup> ye young man had rec<sup>d</sup> from M<sup>r</sup> Jackson touching this busines; there was a passage in it w<sup>ch</sup> did a little stumble me, viz: of some youthfull frailties whereof he minded him, but no particulars. Of this I would be glad to know ye meaning; and further since M<sup>r</sup> Jackson, I perceive, has yet another, I shall desire you to know of him w<sup>ch</sup> of the two he will rather comēd to me; and I shall then resolve one way or other. Joseph, of Parke Broome, Cumberland, pleb., entered Queen's College as batler 7 Oct. 1637, matriculated 17 Nov. of the same year, aged 14; proceeded B.A. 15 July, 1643. He succeeded Lancelot Fletcher as vicar of Plumland, was ejected by the commissioners, and restored at the Restoration. He died 1686, and is buried in his church under the Communion table. There is an inscription to him and his wife Maria, who died 1689, written by their son William, bishop of Carlisle and afterwards of Derry.

HIGHLY-HONOURED S<sup>r</sup>

When I receiued yours yesterday, I was resolved for Windermain<sup>1</sup>; and because I could not meet with your man that brought yours, according as I was informed thought good to dispatch an answer frō thence to your selfe. S<sup>r</sup>, as to the young man I commended to reverend dr Smith, I know no reason (notwithstanding my monitory to him) if his abilityes please him, why he may not entertaine him. I know him not guilty of any debauchery nor heare of any such failings in him. His frailtyes are such as too too comōnly attend those yeares, viz. inconstancy & irresolution, & ouervaluing himselfe. These things I hoped that y<sup>e</sup> drs gravity might take off in time, and (if he found him otherwise qualified) it would be a part of charity to take him into his care. God doth most magnify his grace in taming the worst natures, & we after so good example should endeauour the like in instruction and education. But howeuer (S<sup>r</sup>) if it be not the drs pleasure to admitt Bownas, I shall with all expedition I can, after my returne to Kendall, commend another to so reverend a friend. It is not y<sup>e</sup> youth, that in my last I intended to comend to y<sup>e</sup> D<sup>r</sup>, but one of as good hopes, tho not of equal progresse in Learning. <sup>2</sup> See Appendix B.

<sup>3</sup> The word Penrith is obliterated. The writer seems to have thought that the post to Kendal went through Penrith, which was a mistake.

<sup>4</sup> His real name seems to have been Jackson. His adopted name was derived from Cuerden, near Preston in Lancashire, where he was born. He was admitted commoner of St. Mary Hall 1638, removed to Emmanuel College, Cambridge, at the beginning of the Civil War, where he proceeded B.A. in 1642. Was incorporated B.A. at Oxford on his return to St. Mary Hall, and proceeded M.A. 1646, D.M. 1663. He commenced practice in Preston, but soon devoted himself to antiquarian study. He started a history of Lancashire, but it never came to more than a proposal for publishing one, and his manuscripts are now divided between the Heralds' College, the Chetham Library, Manchester, and the British Museum. There is the beginning of an autobiography in John Whitaker's History of Manchester, and a life of him in D. N. B. He was a friend of Christopher Townley and of Sir William Dugdale.

<sup>1</sup> In his autobiography Keurden writes:—I perusd all the records in the Tower of London relating to the county of Lancaster, the Domesday Book in the Tally Office, the records of Westminster, chapel of Rolls, the Dutchy Office at Gray's In, the Pelns, and many other offices, and at Lancaster what remained in the Chancery Court and the Common Pleas, and other less publique courts within the county. (Whitaker's History of Manchester, ii. 588.) The Dutchy is of course that of Lancaster. Pelns are Pells, i.e. skins. The offices of the Auditors, Tellers, Clerks of the Pells, &c., in the Exchequer of Rcceipt were abolished by Stat. 4 William IV c. 15 (1834), and the records removed to the Rolls Office in 1841. A Catalogue of the Record Rolls in the Pell Office of the Exchequer from Richard I to William IV is at the British Museum. (Sims' Manual, p. 461.)

<sup>1</sup> This document is a draft or transcript of a letter sent by D. F. to Williamson. The next of such drafts on the same sheet of paper (R. P. 5729) is of a letter dated 10 May, 1669, in which D. F. writes: 'I am (I assure you) very glad to know of your late purchase of Windersath.' He refers lower down to 'your other purchase in Cumberland.' Windersath in Westmorland is an estate, ecclesiastically in Cliburn parish, but wholly surrounded by the parish of Brougham. Nicolson and Burn (i. 400) say it was sold by George, Earl of Cumberland, to Thomas Brathwaite of Warcop, esquire, one of whose descendants sold it to Mr. Wyvill, 'in whose posterity it still continues.' Mr. W. Longrigg, the present owner of Windersath, informs me that he has no trace among his papers of Williamson's ownership of the estate. He perhaps did not complete the purchase when he found that the Countess of Pembroke was inflexibly opposed to his candidature as M.P. for Appleby.

I assure y<sup>u</sup> if it had not been that reason y<sup>u</sup> yo<sup>r</sup> selfe assigned, a naturall respect for my Country, & in some measure for y<sup>e</sup> penates<sup>1</sup>, y<sup>e</sup> dust of my ancesto<sup>rs</sup> & relations, I am not in so great a fullnesse, as to thinke of purchaseing especially in so captious an age as this is. But surely a younger Courtier than I may now thinke myselfe might be well enough seen to make such a purchase, wthout being enuyed for it. I hope I am not. I am sure I affect not anything of great or powerfull. To be an honest man, & to be thought so (if I may, at least by good men,) is my first aime, such I take y<sup>u</sup> to be, S<sup>r</sup>, wthout all complemt, & therfore I conjure y<sup>u</sup> to continue me in yo<sup>r</sup> good opinion, & to believe I thinke of deseruing it, as, reference I can discover to him in S. P. D. is in a letter from H. Aldrich to his brother-in-law Rob. Francis (for whom see n. 1, p. 158), dated Lichfield, 3 April, 1669, where he says he has received letters from my cousin Melsam and Mr. Price. The latter is probably Gervase Price, the under-keeper of St. James's Park and keeper of the private armoury in Whitehall palace.

<sup>1</sup> John Dalston of Acombank in the parish of Kirkby Thore in Westmorland, entered Queen's College in Easter Term, 1629, and matriculated 2 Dec. 1631, aged 19. He proceeded B.A. 24 Jan. 1631-2; he entered Gray's Inn 1 Nov. 1631, was M.P. for Appleby 1661-78. He was son of Sir Christopher, who was knighted by James I upon his return from his progress into Scotland 1615. His wife was Lucie, daughter and heir of Richard Fallowfield of Melkinthorpe (which is the manor house of Great Strickland, though this is a manor in Morland parish), for whom see n. 4, p. 69. His eldest son Christopher married Bridget, daughter of Sir Henry Fletcher and sister-in-law of D. F. The cousinship was, however, derived from their common descent from Sir John Lowther of Lowther Kt., who was captain of Carlisle Castle 37 Hen. 8, whose daughter Joan married John Fleming of Rydall 6 Hen. 8, while his daughter Mabel married Christopher Dalston of Acombank 37 Hen. 8. He died 13 April 1692, aged 86. He is buried in the church of Kirkby Thore, with a long inscription on his monument (Nicolson and Burn, i. 384).

DANIEL FLEMING TO BP. GUY CARLETON OF BRISTOL<sup>1</sup> (1295).

MY LORD,

Rydale, Febr. 24, 7½

Since I have lately heard of your Lordships consecration, I hope you'll be pleased to give me leave (in y<sup>e</sup> croud of your welwishers) to congratulate your late Promotion, & to wish that his Majestys favour may dayly encrease towards you. I am glad to hear that his Majesty is so kind to one that hath so frankly ventured Life & Limb in his service; & I hope that an old Cavalier may ere long be translated to old Bishopprick<sup>2</sup>; tho' at present there may be some necessity for a stout Prelate to be in a see where there are (I feare too many) Fanatickes. So, with y<sup>e</sup> tender of my humblest service unto your Lordship & all yours, desireing your Benediction, I rest

Your Lordships

Father in God Guy Lord

DEAN THOMAS SMITH OF CARLISLE TO DANIEL FLEMING (1323).

<sup>2</sup> See n. 3, p. 188. Bristol was a poor bishoprie, as were most of Henry VIII's creations. An old bishoprie meant a better one.

<sup>3</sup> 'King Street would seem to have been at one time noted for its coffee-houses.' In the fifth edition (1676) of Izaak Walton's additions to the Complete Angler, reference is made to an eel 3¾ feet long caught in the Peterboro' river in 1667; 'if you will not believe me then go and see it at one of the coffee-houses in King Street, Westminster.' (Thornbury and Walford's Old and New London, iv. 28.)

For yo<sup>r</sup> other letter (by this bearer) it had a great deale of newes in it; and coming from so good a hand, there's no question to be made of its truth. I had a letter by y<sup>e</sup> last Saturday Post from Dr L.<sup>2</sup> (dated Apr: 23th) wherein he tells me, That on y<sup>e</sup> Thursday morning before, about 2 a clock in y<sup>e</sup> morning, y<sup>e</sup> D. of York took boat for Chattam<sup>3</sup>, being alarmed y<sup>t</sup> y<sup>e</sup> Dutch Fleet were come out: w<sup>ch</sup> upon further enquiry (he sayes) proved to be 12 of their men of warr, w<sup>ch</sup> are passed by o<sup>r</sup> coasts, we know not yet whither. The Dutch say, y<sup>e</sup> French Fleet has been ready a good while, but dares not come out without an English Convoy. On Sunday 21th of this moneth Dr Tillotson<sup>4</sup> preacht before y<sup>e</sup> King, on 1 Cor: 3. 15. He run over

<sup>1</sup> At the end of a letter (R. P. 1317) dated Rydale, Apr. 24, 72, the beginning of which refers to a poisoning case. D.F. had skilfully put in some words about the suit between the bishop of Carlisle and the archbishop of York with reference to Rose Castle. 'I could heartily wish,' he writes, 'that a good agreement might be made betweene them, y<sup>e</sup> Prelates having opposers enough, without contending one with another; and many do desire that Rose-Castle (y<sup>e</sup> onely Seat of y<sup>e</sup> Bishops of Carlisle) may againe be made such a convenient House, as may invite y<sup>e</sup> Bishops to reside there, & to keep such Hospitality as hath been used there formerly.' The letter is addressed to 'Sir William Wilde Knight & Baronet Justice of his Majesties Court of Co<sup>m</sup>on Pleas.' It seems that the Commissioners (see n. 2, p. 188) had not agreed in their Report. In the resnlt (R. P. 1346) the archbishop was condemned to pay £400 for rebuilding the chapel.

<sup>4</sup> John Tillotson (1630-94), educated at Heath Grammar School, Halifax, and Clare Hall, Cambridge, where he was fellow 1651 (nominated by mandamus from the government, and deprived 1661), M.A. 1654, a friend of Wilkins and so elected fellow of the Royal Society 1672, ordained without subscription 1660 or 1661, 'one of the nonconforming party to whom it was intended to offer preferment in the church,' rector of Kedington, Suffolk, 1663, preacher at Lincoln's Inn 1663, D.D.

severall pointes of Popery, Infallibility, Purgatory, Transubstantiation, &c. His Sermon was well approved of by all, as very seasonable; y<sup>e</sup> King was pleased to say 'twas a good Sermon. The next morning some application was made to his Ma<sup>ty</sup> for his co<sup>m</sup>mand to have it printed, but he thought it not convenient in this Juncture, because it would occasion heats & disputes &c. About a fortnight since Mr Tho: Lamplugh<sup>1</sup> y<sup>e</sup> Lawyer was married to Hum: Robinson's<sup>2</sup> onely daughter, y<sup>e</sup> portion (they say) 3000<sup>l</sup>. The wedding-dinner was kept at y<sup>e</sup> Mitre in Fanshaw-street<sup>3</sup>, where (he sayes) they fed, and danced, and were so merry, that some of them forgot to go to bed. Thus y<sup>e</sup> old man's money, w<sup>ch</sup> was got so over-thriftily, is spent jovially. This reported there, he sayes, (but he would not have it said here) y<sup>t</sup> this great portion will wholly go to pay debts. Amongst y<sup>e</sup> grand Favorites lately Honoured, y<sup>e</sup> D. of B.<sup>4</sup> (he sayes) not being capable of any higher Title, has a Patent (they say) granted him for inclosing so much Common in Yorkshire as containes 40 miles in compasse: and y<sup>e</sup> K. is made to believe y<sup>t</sup> y<sup>e</sup> people there so love him, that they will inclose it for him gratis. This, he sayes, is Discourse: I suppose he meanes, tis a jeer; for I cannot think there's anything more in it.

This is all I have for you at present, and much of it such as I shall desire you to keep to yourselfe, or to conceale (at least) from w<sup>m</sup> you have it. I am glad to heare yo<sup>r</sup> children<sup>5</sup> recover so well one after another. We are all well here, praised be God. The bearer is in hast, and I am ever

<sup>2</sup> Williamson had been appointed plenipotentiary from England with the Earl of Sunderland and Sir Leoline Jenkins to a congress at Cologne, called through the mediation of Sweden to consider the terms of peace between France and England on the one side and Holland on the other. Sunderland was at the time in Paris, where he had been ambassador, and never went to Cologne. Jenkins and Williamson left England 17 May, and arrived at Cologne 3 June. They left Cologne, a separate peace between England and Holland having been suddenly made in England, 15 April, 1674. Yo<sup>r</sup> last letter to me come of a Satturday ; w<sup>ch</sup> gaue me notis of y<sup>e</sup> Bishop of Oxfords<sup>3</sup> Translacon to Durham ; And it was thought y<sup>t</sup>

<sup>3</sup> Nathaniel Crewe, rector of Lincoln College 1668-72, and bishop of Oxford 1671-4. See n. 4, p. 188. Henry Compton succeeded him as bishop of Oxford. Compton entered Queen's College as Upper or Fellow Commoner in Easter Term, 1654, and matriculated 12 Dec. of the same year. He was a cornet in the royal regiment. He became M.A. of Cambridge in 1661, and was incorporated again at Oxford 7 April, 1666. He was canon of Christ Church, B.D. and D.D. 1669. He was consecrated bishop of Oxford 6 Dec. 1674, and translated to London next year. He was deprived by James II and restored by William III, acted as archbishop of Canterbury when Sancroft refused the oaths, and died 7 July, 1713. His portrait by Riley is at Queen's College in the Provost's lodgings.

<sup>4</sup> Thomas Barlow entered Queen's College as batler in the Lent Term of 1624-5, and matriculated 1 July of the same year as son of Richard of Orton, Westmorland, pleh., aged 16. He proceeded B.A. 24 July, 1630, M.A. 27 June, 1633, B.D. 3 July, 1657, D.D. 2 Aug. 1660. He was elected 'in munus servientis ad mensam' 17 June, 1626, the same day as Gerard Langhaine, his predecessor in the provostship and librarianship of the Bodleian. He was elected pauper puer 10 June, 1630, again on the same day as Langbaine, and socins siue scholaris 30 October, 1633, again with Langhaine. On Langbaine's death, 10 Feb. 1657, he was elected provost on the 15th of the same month, having been brought back from London for his election. He was Bodley's librarian from 1652-60, Margaret professor of divinity and prebendary of Worcester 1660-76, archdeacon of Oxford 1664-75, bishop of Lincoln 1675 till his death 8 Oct. 1691. He is said to have drawn up the Thanksgiving for founders and benefactors used in chapel, and to have never been at Lincoln, and the nickname of bishop of Bugden was given him from the palace of the bishops of Lincoln near Huntingdon.

His portrait which was bequeathed by Bishop Cartwright is in the Upper Common Room.

<sup>1</sup> Allan or Alan Bellingham entered Queen's College as an Upper Commoner 27 May, 1674, and matriculated 4 June the same year, aged 18. He was baptized at Heversham 12 Feb. 1655-6. He succeeded his father at Levens and was M.P. for Westmorland in three parliaments between 1678 and 1687. He went into exile with James II, 'an ingenious but unhappy young man.' He consumed a vast estate and sold Levens to Col. James Grahme, younger brother of Viscount Preston, and keeper of the privy purse to James II.

<sup>3</sup> R. P. 1533 is a letter to D. F. from James Bellingham dated Leauens, ye 15 June 74, in which he thanks him for his 'oppinion touching Deer-killers.' D. F. had advised him to proceed under the Act 13 Richard II. cap. 13, and under 33 Henry VIII. cap. 67 against him that had the gun, and had given other advice as to how to proceed against one 'for haueing a Grayhound.'

<sup>4</sup> Daniel was the fifth child and third son of D. F. and was born in 1660. He remained at home and died 1698 of the small pox.

what was recently called a visiting master. In a letter from Roger Fleming to his father asking for some more money from Sedbergh, 22 July, 1692, he says he had 'disbursed more already, then I expected to have done, this great many weeks espetially to ye scrivener (who is with us now).'

<sup>2</sup> Henry, second son and fourth child of D. F., of whom we shall hear much more further on, was born 1659. He entered Queen's College as a batler 27 May, 1678, matriculated 4 July, as son of Daniel, of Rydal, Westmorland, gent., aged 17. He proceeded B.A. 18 Dec. 1682, M.A. 26 May, 1685, B. and D.D. as grand compounder 8 July, 1696. He was rector of Grasmere 1685, and of Asby 1694 until his death in 1728. He married 10 April, 1700, Mary, danghter of John Fletcher of Hunslet, esq., and had issne one daughter Penelope, married to John Keate, esq., lieutenant in the Scotch horse grenadier guards.

<sup>3</sup> In the north country schools till past the middle of the eighteenth century it was thc custom for the boys from time to time to bar out the master. Armed with elder popguns they barricaded the doors of the school from the inside, while the master by force or stratagem tried to get in. If he snccceeded, heavy tasks were imposed; but if he was kept out for threc days, terms of capitulation were proposed by the master and accepted by the boys, and the hours of work and play for the year ensuing agreed upon. A treat of cakes and ale furnished by the scholars concluded the event, and to this was probably devoted the 01<sup>s</sup> 06<sup>d</sup> which occurs herc. The founder of Witton School in Cheshire prescribed that his 'schollars should bar and keep furth the school the schoolmaster in such sort as other schollars do in great schools'; and at St. Bees barring out was not to begin before Martinmass, nor last more than 'a Day and a Night, and the next day till one a clock in ye Afternoon.' At Bromfield it was practised at Fastings Even, about the beginning of Lent. See Hutchinson's Cumberland, ii. 322, n.; W. Jackson's Cumberland and Westmorland Papers, i. 6, ii. 207.

<sup>4</sup> 'The cheerful blazing fire, composed until the days of eoal of peat and "elding" (Saxon for old and dead things, retained as a provincial name for firing stuff), was lighted on a hearth slightly raised from the ground; and above, the "rannel-balk" crossed the chimney, from which beam hung the "ratten-crook" for the purpose of snsponding the kettles over the fire. In front was the iron tripod, "brandiron" or "brandreth," with its girdle, a circnlar iron plate for baking the famous oat cakes, clap bread, or riddle bread upon.' (J. F. Cnrwen's Kirkbie-Kendall, p. 9.)

<sup>5</sup> Usher, from Ostiarius, properly a door-keeper, one who lets in or introduces, so used of attendants on royalty who perform this function, and applied, it is said, to second masters or assistant-masters in grammar schools as those who introduce their pnipils to polite letters by teaching them the elements. The better endowed schools made provision for paying the usher from the endowment, but at Kendal probably he was largely dependent npon the fees of pupils, though Nicholson

Rydal, Nov. 24. 75.

I hope you'l forgive mee, that I have not ere this returned you my humble & hearty thanks for your last very kind Letter; which <sup>1</sup> Mrs. Fleming, for whom see n. 1, p. 4, had died 13 April, 1675. The first indication of her illness in the Rydal papers is a letter (R. P. 1616) of 5 April from Lady Fletcher, expressing anxiety and sending a bracelet to be used apparently as an amulet. R. P. 1618 is another anxious letter from the same, dated 7 Apr. R. P. 1619 is from Dean Smith from Cockermouth, regretting on the 11th April that he cannot be with D. F., but he is just come from Carlisle and has been summoned urgently to Durham, whither he is starting at once. R. P. 1636 is from Smith from Cockermouth on the 11th June, speaking of 'her that is gone' and referring to an epitaph D. F. seems to have written, and was sending to London to be engraved. He affixed a brass to the eastern wall of Grasmere church with the inscription which is printed in Burns & Nicolson, i. 171, and which seems to imply that the cause of death arose in connexion with the birth of her fifteenth child, as is hinted also in Lady Fletcher's first letter.

I should have done, had I not considered that your great imployment would not give you leave to look upon such Trifles. A good while ago I made bold to give you an intimation of a difference unhappily begun amongst some of y<sup>e</sup> Justices of y<sup>e</sup> Peace in this County, about removeing y<sup>e</sup> Quarter-Sessions from Kendall<sup>1</sup>; which dispute, it seemes, is yet continued. Divers Justices here in y<sup>e</sup> Barony<sup>2</sup> & I are desireous that y<sup>e</sup> Quarter-Sessions be kept both at Appleby & at Kendal (to y<sup>e</sup> great satisfaction of y<sup>e</sup> Countrey) as they have been constantly holden, according to y<sup>e</sup> confession of those Gentlemen who are for y<sup>e</sup> alteration, near 70 yeares last past; but wee believe a much longer time. It will be easy to demonstrate, that an alteration in this affair (tho' there be no more therein then is yet pretended) will be much to y<sup>e</sup> prejudice of his Majesty, & not a Little to y<sup>e</sup> Trouble, charge, & Dissatisfaction of y<sup>e</sup> County of Westmorland; especially of y<sup>e</sup> Barony of Kendall, who are most of them y<sup>e</sup> Kings Tenants. I hope it will be no offence for us to desire to serve our Sovereign & our Countrey, as well as wee can, in y<sup>e</sup> same good old way our Predicessors have done formerly, and at as little charge & trouble as may be: Since wee affect not a change, being unable to foresee all y<sup>e</sup> inconveniencies that may attend it; and since wee do chearfully serve our King and Countrey out of our owne estates, haveing no beneficiall offices to assist us therein. CXX.

<sup>1</sup> R. P. 1574 is a letter addressed by Sir Philip Musgrave, Mr. John Dalston, Mr. Richard Brathwait, Mr. Thomas Fletcher, and Sir Edward Musgrave to Sir John Otway, Mr. James Bellingham, Mr. Daniel Fleming 'and the rest of his Ma<sup>ties</sup> Justices of Peace within y<sup>e</sup> Barony of Kendall,' asking that the General Sessions for the whole county should be held alternately at Applehy and Kendal and not at both places. This they say would be 'more agreahle to the Law, to the practice of other Countys and to the former usage of' Westmorland, as it does not appear that 'any publique sessions was held at Kendall untill the fifth year of King James.' The letter is dated from Applehy, 11 Jan. 1674-5. A copy of an acknowledgment of the receipt of this letter postponing the reply to the consideration of a general meeting is in R. P. 1575, dated from Kendal, 16 Jan. 1674, and signed by Mr. James Bellingham, Mr. Daniel Fleming, Mr. Edward Wilson, Mr. Henry Wilson, and Mr. Christopher Philipson. R. P. 1594 is the copy of a letter from George Fothergill of Ravenstonedale, to Richard Rowlandson of Kendal, desiring him to bring 'all Sessions Books and Roolles of Sessions and proceedings that are before you or ought to come before you at next Sessions,' as Sir Philip Musgrave as Custos Rotulorum commands, it having been resolved to hold the Easter Sessions at Applehy and the Michaelmas Sessions at Kendal for the future. On his hesitation a writ was issued by D. F. in opposition thereto, and this was followed by a writ from the other side. The Sheriff, when consulted, ordered both writs to be obeyed (R. P. 1613, 1617). Meanwhile the Kendal justices had sent an answer to R. P. 1574 (R. P. 1605), and a correspondence ensued (R. P. 1620, 1636). The next document (R. P. 1668) is a letter from D. F. to Sir John Otway, dated 13 Oct. 1675, describing how both hodies of Justices had held sessions. The people in London now took up the matter. Sir John Lowther (R. P. 1688) writes from London 28 Dec. 1675 offering his help to the Justices of the Barony, and the same day Col. Richard Kirkby (R. P. 1691), apparently at Williamson's instigation, writes to hope that D. F. 'would do his endeavour to prevent all feuds and animosities & to compose all differences within the county especially amongst ye gentry.' To this (R. P. 1698) D. F. replies that there are no differences in the county except about the holding of the Sessions. Meanwhile Ann, Countess Dowager of Pemhroke, &c., 'Sherifessee' of Westmorland, issued an order (R. P. 1695) for holding the sessions at Applehy 3 Apr. 1676. Sir John Lowther now suggests a compromise (R. P. 1705), which D. F. (R. P. 1711) is not inclined to agree to, and the discnssion goes on (R. P. 1723). Things get more acute, and 8 July, 1676, Richard Duckett writes (R. P. 1751) to D. F. that Secretary Williamson has told him that the matter is referred by the King to the Lord Chief Justice, and he believes that this is so. R. P. 1757 is 'The Breviat for Counsel & the Grand Jury's petition at Appleby Assizes 15 Aug. 1676.'

DANIEL FLEMING TO SIR JOSEPH WILLIAMSON (1704)<sup>3</sup>.

DEAR Sr,

Rydal, Febr. 10. 7<sup>5</sup>.

The Kings affaires throughout his Dominions, & especially here in y<sup>e</sup> North, being under your care; I make bold to give you some of Ulleswater. At this time the barony was in the diocese of Chester, the bottom only being in the diocse of Carlisle, and from the lie of the country and the direction the main roads followed there was easier communication between the barony and some parts of Lancashire and Cumberland than between the two divisions of Westmorland.

account thereof in this Countrey. Diverse of our Justices of y<sup>e</sup> Peace are dead, & some others are seldome amongst us ; so that, I think, it would be for y<sup>e</sup> service of his Majesty & of y<sup>e</sup> Countrey to have some added. Those who are dead, are S<sup>r</sup> George Middleton<sup>1</sup>, Mr Ducket<sup>2</sup> of Grayrigg, & Mr. Brathwait<sup>3</sup> of Burneshead, whose heires are not capable of succeeding, being Papists ; Mr Brathwait<sup>4</sup> of Ambleside, & Mr Fisher<sup>5</sup> are also dead : but Mr Robert Brathwait<sup>6</sup> y<sup>e</sup> Brother of y<sup>e</sup>

Feb. 10. 75. The object of this move on D. F.'s part is obviously to strengthen the Justices acting for the Barony in their contest with those acting for the Bottom of Westmorland.

<sup>2</sup> James Ducket, son of Anthony and Elizabeth, daughter of William Leyburne of Cunswick, was thrice married, (1) to Magdalen, daughter of Sir Henry Curwen of Workington, by whom he had Anthony, who married Elizabeth, daughter of John Dalston of Acornbank, and who sold the manor to Sir John Lowther ; (2) to Mary, daughter of William Sanders of Sutton Conrt in the county of Middlesex, by whom he had among other children Richard, from whom there are several letters in the Rydal Papers ; (3) to Elizabeth, daughter of Christopher Walker of Workington. He was one of the intended 'Knights of the Royal Oak' (see Appendix F), and his estate was given at the time as £800 p<sup>r</sup> ann. He appears to have died about Sept<sup>r</sup>. 1667. His son Anthony was the last of his branch of the family and sold Grayrigg to S<sup>r</sup> John Lowther of Lowther about 1690 (Sir G. F. Ducket, Duchetiana, pp. 26* sq.).

a stout royalist, and father of the William Fletcher who married Sir George Fletcher of Hutton's sister Frances, and by her had a daughter.

<sup>1</sup> John Brathwaite, the third son of Gawen, married Elizabeth Hudson and by her had a daughter and heir, married as his second wife to Sir John Otway of Ingmire-hall, Knight, for whom see n. 1, p. 155, to whom she bore a son Brathwaite Otway, esq., and three daughters. Brathwaite died unmarried and was succeeded by his sister Catharine, who married Mr. William Upton, the ancestor of the present owner of Ingmire.

<sup>2</sup> John Fisher entered Queen's College as a battler 29 May, 1663. He matriculated 4 June as son of Nicholas of Stonebank green, Westmorland, gent. aged 16. He proceeded B.A. 24 Oct. 1667. An uncle of his, Henry, was Fellow of the College. He was admitted to Gray's Inn 1 May, 1670. As D. F. describes him as the heir to his father, his eldest brother Edward must have died before this. Edward entered Queen's College as a Commoner 19 May, 1660, matriculating 2 Ang. 1661, aged 18. He is described as son and heir of his father at his admission to Gray's Inn 10 June, 1664. John probably entered Queen's College as a battler to make him eligible to the foundation, and was elected in pauperem puerum 15 Nov. 1666. The death of his elder brother probably altered his plans. Hence his admission at Gray's Inn at a later age than was usual. R. P. 1160 is a letter from him to D. F. 15 Oct. 1670, speaking of 'y<sup>t</sup> infinite debt w<sup>ch</sup> wee owe unto you,' and adding that his mother is very anxious he should settle himself in y<sup>e</sup> country.

<sup>4</sup> See n. 3, p. 40. Alan Prickett of Natland Hall succeeded Thomas Braithwaite, Esq., of Ambleside (for whom see n. 4, p. 206), as recorder of Kendal in 1673, and held the office till 1678.

<sup>5</sup> Roger Moor or Moore was admitted to Gray's Inn 7 Nov. 1660, as son and heir of James, of Brandsbanke in Middleton, Westmorland, gent. His father is described as a yeoman in the admission book of St. John's College, Cambridge, where he entered as pensioner 6 Sept. 1658, aged 16. He does not seem to have taken a degree. He was 'bred at Sedbergh' under James Buchanan. He became a serjeant-at-law, was made recorder of Kendal in 1691, and died in 1695. Middleton is a parish in the south-east of Westmorland, bordering on the parish of Sedbergh in Yorkshire.

<sup>6</sup> Thomas Strickland, eldest son of Robert of Sizergh, Westmorland, arm., matriculated from St. Alban Hall 27 April, 1638, aged 16; admitted to Gray's Inn 23 Dec. 1637, created knight banneret on the field of Edgehill 23 Oct. 1642, M.P. for Westmorland 1661, until expelled 6 March, 1676-7, 'being a Roman Catholic.' He followed James II to St. Germain's, died in France 8 Jan. 1694, and is buried in the nuns' church at Rouen. There are two portraits of him at Sizergh. He married twice, (1) Jane, daughter of John Moseley of Ulskelfe, co. York, and relict of Sir Christopher Dawney of Cowick, and (2) Winifred, daughter of Sir Charles <sup>2</sup> Robert Philipson, eldest son of John Philipson of Calgarth in the township of Applethwaite in the parish of Windermere and of Melsonby in the county of York, was born about 1641. He sold the Melsonby estate, the family having been greatly impoverished by sequestrations and heavy compositions. He married Barbara, daughter of William Penington of Seaton in Cumberland, esq., and had by her six sons and three daughters. He died beyond the seas. The four daughters of his eldest son John sold the estate of Calgarth.

CXXII.

DANIEL FLEMING TO SIR JOSEPH WILLIAMSON (1759).

Rydall, Aug. 24. 76.

DEAR SR

Wee are all much obliged unto my Lord Chief Justice North<sup>4</sup> &

Privy Council ever since the reign of Queen Elizabeth. There was only one until near the close of Henry VIII's reign, when they were increased to two. The other at this time was Henry Coventry. Williamson was succeeded by Robert Earl of Sunderland 20 Feb. 1678; and Coventry by Sir Leoline Jenkins 11 Feb. 1680. (Haydn's Book of Dignities.)

<sup>2</sup> William, D. F.'s eldest son and heir, neither went to College nor to an Inn of Court. He seems to have been delicate in his youth, and had before this been to Bath for his health (see p. 169), and was kept by D. F. at home much against his will, as many letters in the Rydal Papers testify. He succeeded Sir John Lowther as M.P. for Westmorland 1695, and was re-elected 1698, 1702, 1705, and 1707. He married Dorothy, daughter of Mr. Thomas Rowlandson of Kendal, and had three daughters, Dorothy, married to Edward Wilson of Dallam Tower; Barbara, married to Edward Parker of Broosholm; and Catharine, married to Sir Peter Leicester of Tabley, baronet. He was created a baronet 4 Oct. 1705, with remainder to the issue male of his father, and died 29 Aug. 1736, when the baronetcy went to his fifth brother George, afterwards bishop of Carlisle.

Mr Baron Berte<sup>1</sup> for the great pains they have taken in agreeing the Justices of this County<sup>2</sup>, and wee are noe less engaged unto you, who (as its said) did set them on work. Wee have yeilded unto an apparent inconveniency, that you may have the pleasure of adjusting our differencies; and I hope not any will question our Loyalty to our Sovereigne or our Loue to our Country, in what we have done. I perceive there is a stopp put to the Intelligence which you have been pleased a long time weekly to favour me with; but as to this I shall add no more having writ unto Mr Yard<sup>3</sup>. I am heartily glad to hear of the Dean of Rochesters<sup>4</sup> being nominated a Bishop which I doubt not was by your means; & shall be ever joyfull of the advancement of such good men: If I shall not live to reap the fruite of it, Yet

Cambridge, was third son of Dudley, fourth Lord North by Anne Montagu. He entered the Middle Temple 27 Nov. 1655, was called to the bar 28 June, 1661, appointed King's Counsel 1668, judge of the isle of Ely 1670, solieitor-general 20 May, 1671, when he was knighted, reader at the Middle Temple, M.P. for King's Lynn 1673, attorney-general 12 Nov. 1673, chief justice of common pleas 1675, took a strong part against College, 'the protestant joiner,' August, 1681, lord chancellor 1682, raised to the peerage as Baron Guildford 27 Sept. 1683, died at Wroxton 5 Sept. 1685. He married Lady Francis Pope, daughter and co-heiress of the Earl of Downe, who bore him five children. Francis his elder son succeeded him as second Baron Guildford and was father of Francis, first Earl of Guildford. His life is in D. N. B.

<sup>1</sup> Vere Bertie, fourth son of Montagu, second Earl of Lindsey, by Martha Cockayn, widow of John Ramsey, Earl of Holderness, entered the Middle Temple 29 Jan. 1654-5, called to the bar 10 June, 1659, bencher Jan. 1673-4, serjeant-at-law when he was made honorary M.A. of Oxford 1665, baron of the exchequer 4 June, 1675, transferred to common pleas 15 June, 1678, discharged 29 April, 1679, probably because he declined to concur in the sentence on Nathaniel Reading at Westminster for stifling evidence against the lords in the tower. He died 23 Feb. 1680-1. (D. N. B., s. v.)

<sup>2</sup> R. P. 1758 is a set of Proposals formulated 15 Aug. 1676 by Fra: North and Vere Berty, and assented to by Philip Musgrave, Geo. Fletcher, John Lowther of Sockbridge, Christ. Musgrave, Dan: Fleming, Edward Wilson and Christ. Philipson. The Midsummer General Assizes were to be holden without adjournment in alternate years at Appleby and Kendal. All other Sessions to be holden at Appleby for the Bottom of Westmorland on Monday in Sessions Week. and at Kendal for the Barony by Adjournment on the Friday in the same week. The Clerk of the Peace was to be responsible that the Adjournment is made and, for the order at the close of each Sessions for summoning the next. Asscssments, Charges for Bridges, Gaol, &c., to be kept distinct for the Bottom and the Barony, and distinct rates to be made.

<sup>4</sup> Thomas Lamplugh, for whom see n. 3, p. 131. He had been admitted dean of Rochester 3 March, 1672-3, in succession to Pcter Mew, who had been made bishop of Bath and Wells. He was now made bishop of Exeter (consecrated 12 Nov. 1676) in succession to Bishop Sparrow who had been translated to Norwich. Lamplugh was translated to York in 1688.

I hope some of my posterity may. Now since we are all agreed (which I hope will ever continue) I thought to have recommended Mr John Fisher<sup>1</sup> and some others unto you to be put into our Commission of Peace for Westmerd: but I shall not insist thereon; least I meet with an opposer, and my recommendation prove their hinderance. I shall ever heartily pray for your health, and the continuance of our good Kings Favour; and I shall ever remaine

I am extreme glad to find y<sup>e</sup> difference about y<sup>e</sup> Sessions in Westmorland<sup>2</sup> so well composed, and could wish with all my heart, all others of what nature soever amongst Gentlemen that are Neighbour<sup>s</sup> might have y<sup>e</sup> same issue; I'm sure it would be for y<sup>e</sup> service of y<sup>e</sup> Country, & methinks ought to be of content to y<sup>e</sup> particular persons, whose liues sure cannot be very easy to them amidst such perpetuall heats and squables.

I know no man has better right to recommend a Justice of Peace than y<sup>u</sup> have, who have so well merited of y<sup>e</sup> King & Country in y<sup>e</sup> execution of that trust yo<sup>r</sup>selfe and, if y<sup>u</sup> please I'll speak with my L. of Carlisle<sup>3</sup> of it, when he comes first to Towne.

<sup>2</sup> See n. 2, p. 45. By calling him 'cosen,' Bishop Lamplugh settles a question as to his own paternity. If he had been, as is sometimes alleged, son of the Thomas, who purchased the manor of Ribton, Richard would have been his brother.

Your last very kind Letter doth demonstrate your Goodness to be equall to your Greatness: and doth sufficiently shew y<sup>e</sup> falsity of that comon country saying, That a Courtiers kindness is neither cordial nor constant. For a Person of your Figure to remember so affectionately a meer Countryman at this great distance, one who never had it in his power to oblige you, is very extraordinary; and if I never receive anything more either of Honour or Interrest, from you, yet shall I have no reason to complaine. REV. THOMAS MACHELL<sup>2</sup> TO DANIEL FLEMING (1849).S<sup>r</sup>

I am much beholden you for the kinde proffer of your Assistance foreign letters. For a double letter (one sheet enclosed by another) the charge was double, and for pacquets of letters the charge was 1s. 6d. per oz. (H. D. Traill's Social England, vol. 4, p. 484.)

<sup>2</sup> Thomas Machell, called by Chancellor Ferguson the father of all Cumberland and Westmorland Antiquaries, was son of Lancelot Machell of Crackenthorpe, by Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Sleddall, of Penrith. He entered Queen's College as a battler 10 Nov. 1663, matriculating 5 Feb. 1663-4, aged 16. He proceeded B.A. 29 Oct. 1668, and M.A. 11 Mar. 1671-2. He was elected taberdar 11 July, 1668, and fellow 12 Dec. 1672. Anthony Wood derives the name from 'malns catnlus.' He was afterwards rector of Kirkby Thore 1677, chaplain in ordinary to Charles II 1679, and F.R.S. and died 1698. His will is in Cumbd. & Westmd. Antiq. Trans. vol. iv. p. 4. His collections are bound in six folio volumes and preserved in the Cathedral Library at Carlisle. (Nicolson &

And If I were able to do the like; I cannot tell, whether I should meet wth such great encouragements from Westm<sup>r</sup>land & Cumberland, as he had from Warwickshire: for the Cutts will be many, because our 2 Countyes abound wth Antiquities; and the Gentry are few. But I must confess, I am very willing to serve my Countrey as far as I can; and haue therefore enlarg'd Mr Oglebyes Queries<sup>4</sup>, that I may be both able to satisfy Them, and myne owne curiosity. The end of which is To haue in readiness a Local Account how things stand at this day in each Parish & Lordship; to which I may refer (as a Co<sup>m</sup>on-Place) all those Collections I haue in readiness; and what euer else shall hereafter occur, either in Historyes or ancient Records. Burn, i. p. iii.) His eldest brother Hugh, also of Queen's College (1662), was Mayor of Appleby 1682-3, and died 1716.

<sup>1</sup> Thomas Dixon, of whom we shall hear much hereafter, entered Queen's College as batler 7 March, 1664-5, matriculating 10 March, 1664-5, son of Thomas of Windermere, aged 15. Foster (Al. Ox., s.v.) describes him as 'serviens juratus' 14 July, 1665. He was elected a Scholaris de Taberdâ 4 March, 1668-9. His name first appears as a Fellow in Lent Term 1673-4, but this election of Fellows is not recorded in the College Register. He proceeded B.A. 19 June, 1669; M.A. 23 Jan. 1672-3; B.D. 19 June, 1682; and D.D. 26 June, 1685. He was presented to the rectory of Weyhill, Hants, 1682.

<sup>3</sup> Dugdale began his collections for his 'Warwickshire,' for the 'Monasticon' and for the 'Baronagium' in 1642. The Warwickshire was published in 1656; of the Monasticon the first volume was published in 1655, the second in 1661, the third in 1673; the Baronagium was published in 1675-6. (D. N. B., s.v.)

<sup>4</sup> R. P. 1904 are Machell's printed queries. They occupy four folio pages closely printed, and are headed, That the Northern Counties which abound in Antiquities and Ancient Gentry, may no longer be bury'd in Silence Information is desir'd concerning the following Queries as they lye in order. They are divided into three chapters. Chap. I. Queries concerning the Parish in General. Chap. II. Concerning every particular Lordship enquire of the Lord, Steward, Balive, or experienced Tenent. Chap. III. Concerning Every City, Town, Village, Hamlet, &c. In each chapter the most minute details are asked for. Ogilby's Queries, on which Machell based his, were probably issued for his English Atlas, of which R. P. 1268 is an Advertisement. It was to have been in three volumes of which the first, 'An Illustration of the Kingdom of England and Dominion of Wales, by a Geographical and Historical Description of the principal Roads thereof,' alone appeared. The Queries were probably in the main with a view to the third volume, which was to have been 'A Topographical Description of the whole Kingdom.' Ogilby's life is in D. N. B.

particular enquire made of the Date & Number of ancient Evidences wth euery Gentleman; That (If God giue me life & leisure to do it) I may better informe my selfe by Reading of them when I come into the Countrey. But when my Collections are brought to an head, great care will be taken to select such Notes as are most material; and to purge out the rest, which are either impertinent, suspected, or dubiouse: for any one may see, by those priuate Queries which are to be made both to Lords & Tenents, distinct, & apart, That nothing of injury is designed to any man; and That (whatsoever is exposed to my view) only such truths are like to be Recorded, as are agreed to & owned on all hands.

As to the Queries. 'Tis true you will find them very long and tedious, mayny Tautologies contained in them, & somthings allso which may be litigiouse & not fit to be Answer'd: But tho you (the Gentlemen & Ministers of the Countrey from whom I hope the Greatest Assistance) are men of Ingenuity, so that a word might seeme to suffice; yet They are Contriv'd for Ordinary Capacities, That the Vulgar (possibly of slow app<sup>r</sup>hensions) who must be consulted in this vndertakeing, By giueing their Answers to severall Queries in Different Terms tho to the same purpose, may luckily hit of som little Circumstance fully discovering all that is sought for in 2 or 3 Questions: And as for those which are very dubiouse, and therefore may seem vnfit to be Answer'd, The Respondent in this Case may vse his Discretion.

I shall be glad of your helpe in any thing, (for you are a Gentleman of whose Acquaintance I haue bin ambitiouise these many years.) But more especially I begg your Assistance in The Parish of Kendal, for which Mr Steuartson<sup>1</sup> is allready Implay'd, but cannot (I fear) attend to Compleat It, by reason of his Schoole. And if any other Parishes in the Barony of Kendal should be remiss, I hope you will speake (as occasion is offer'd) to the Ministers of them.

As touching Cumberland, for which I haue an Equal Concerne (my Mothers<sup>2</sup> Country!) I haue dispatch'd Papers som time agoe to my dear friend & Brother Mr Blennerhassat<sup>3</sup>; w<sup>ch</sup> (I make no question)

The Stewardsons seem to have been a family of schoolmasters, as William (paedagogus) was father of Richard admitted sizar of St. John's College 3 May, 1705. HONOURED SR

If (by my long silence) I have not already forfeited yo<sup>r</sup> good opinion, a further neglect in acknowledging yo<sup>r</sup> favours, & recounting yo<sup>r</sup> transcendent obligacōns must have necessarily incurr'd yo<sup>r</sup> disesteem, & have likewise made me guilty of the highest ingratitude. And therefore to avoid such absurd solœcisms (too gross for Oxonians to be guilty of) I have adventur'd att p<sup>r</sup>sent to returne you my hearty (though late) thanks for yo<sup>r</sup> extraordinary civilities to me, while I was in y<sup>e</sup> country, & particularly for that generous freedom & communicativeness w<sup>ch</sup> you were pleas'd to demonstrate both in your words & actions. I confess they were such obligacōns as few (if any) in your parts could conferr, and therefore as my resentments of them are very great: so my retaliation can be but small, because 'tis your priviledge to oblige beyond all requiteall. However it may not be an ingratfull office to acquaint you that affaires (in reference to our College) stand much in y<sup>e</sup> same posture I left them in, for wee have the same Provost<sup>2</sup> still, who governs us att a distance & by Proxy. I was willing to beleive y<sup>e</sup> newes you were pleas'd to impart to me in y<sup>e</sup> Country concerning the B<sup>ps</sup> removeall before Easter, & to fancy it may prove true still, because wee have some reports bruited abroad of late, as if Easter were to be y<sup>e</sup> longest, if a Resignacōn were not voluntarily sent downe before that time: Yet wee have no full assurance of these things, but only travell with expectacōn, which when 'tis turn'd into fruition, I shall p<sup>r</sup>sume to let you partake in y<sup>e</sup> enjoyment. 'Tis likewise reported that ye bussiness about Ordinaacōn between ye B<sup>p</sup> of Lincolne & Oxon<sup>3</sup> (who is att Christ Church att p<sup>r</sup>sent & has been there since y<sup>e</sup> Publick Ordinaacōn on ye 11th of this Month) was put to a reference of 5 Bishops, & that Lincolne was cast, but I cañot

(R. P. 1904) Machell had written that he would 'Aske no further Trouble as touchin Mon. & Coats of Arms' with reference to them. Windermere Church, he here reminds D. F., is not in the same position as the other two.

<sup>2</sup> Thomas Barlow, who though nominated to the bishopric of Lineoln 1 May 1675, did not resign the provostship till 4 April, 1677. See Appendix G.

<sup>3</sup> The bishop of Oxford at this time was John Fell, elcted 8 Jan. 1675-6, confirmed 5 Feb., and consecrated next day in the chapel of Winchester House at Chelsea. He had been dean of Christ Church since 1660, and held the deanery with the bishopric till his death 10 July, 1686.

vouch y<sup>e</sup> certainty hereof. Dr Halton<sup>1</sup> (to whom I pr<sup>s</sup>ented your service & who returns you his back againe) went up to London on ffryday last. At his returne wee look for y<sup>e</sup> B<sup>ps</sup> resigna<sup>ti</sup>on, w<sup>ch</sup> will be the only meanes to make way for his own promotion. Our Citty affords no remarkeable occurrences of late, but the tryall & condemn<sup>ti</sup>on of one Franc. Smith, who was brought from Carlile Goale to be executed at Ox<sup>on</sup> for Stealeing New College Plate, & anatomiz<sup>d</sup> afterwards for y<sup>e</sup> improv<sup>mt</sup> of knowledge<sup>2</sup>. There were others concern<sup>d</sup> in y<sup>e</sup> fact, particularly one Robinson (who Passes und<sup>r</sup> 2 or 3 names) that ca<sup>n</sup>ot be met with, & Mallarby & Ingram who were Smiths acc<sup>u</sup>sers, the latter of w<sup>ch</sup> had formerly been of New Colledge School, & was therefore the more base Villain in contriveing such a thing. 'Tis reported that Smith left his Confession in writeing wth one Mr Fines<sup>3</sup> of New College. One Dogget an Attorney (who lives in London) is said to have melted all y<sup>e</sup> said Plate, & was thereupon clapt up, but they say he has gott his pardon, & 'tis imagin<sup>d</sup> that (being very wealthy) he must satisfy New Colledge for their Plate. Mallarby is gone to Warwick to impeach some who were concern<sup>d</sup> with him in robbing my L<sup>d</sup> Carringtons<sup>4</sup> house. A desultory fancy & pen, would easily glance from these Narrations to those of Sadler & his accomplices who were lately condemn<sup>d</sup> att y<sup>e</sup> old Bayly & executed at Tyburne for stealing y<sup>e</sup> Chancellours Mace & other ensigns of Authority<sup>5</sup>: but I must not entrench upon anothers province, or cloy you with such Intelligence as I am perswaded you

<sup>2</sup> The theft took place at one or two in the morning of 6 November, 1675. Smith and an accomplice guided by one Ingram, who had been a schoolboy there, came over the wall and by a ladder into the bnttery window. The plate was worth near 200*li*. bnt sold at London by the thieves to an attorney called Dogget, and by him to a goldsmith for ninety ponn<sup>ds</sup>. The goldsmith melted the plate down. Ingram not having been given his promised share turned King's evidence. Smith was hanged 19 March, 1677. (Wood's Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 325, 371.)

<sup>4</sup> There were two members of Queen's College called Thomas Hide, or Hyde, in the third quarter of the seventeenth century who are confounded by Mr. Foster in his Alumni Oxonienses (s.v.) (1) Thomas Hide who entered as Commoner 30 June, and matriculated 10 Nov. 1654, who died 13 Feb. 1655-6, and was buried in the church of St. Peter in the East (Wood's Life and Times, ed. Clark, i. 200. (2) 'Hydius, stupor mundi' (Hearne, ed. Doble, i. 235) the orientalist (1636-1703). He migrated from King's College, Cambridge, to Queen's College in 1658, and became reader in Hebrew, was created M.A. on the recommendation of Richard Cromwell 1658, under-keeper of Bodleian in the same year, head librarian 1663, prebendary of Salisbury 1666, archdeacon of Gloucester 1673, proceeded D.D. 1682, became Laudian professor of Arabic 1691, Regius professor of Hebrew and Canon of Christ Church 1697, resigned the librarianship of the Bodleian 1701, and died 18 Feb. 1702-3; buried at Handborough. His life is in D.N.B. Dixon's doubt as to his understanding what he pretended to understand seems to have been an usual attitude of his contemporaries (see Hearne, ed. Doble, ut sup.). He wrote an account of Chinese weights and measures for Edward Bernard's Weights and Measures of the Ancients, 1688, which is reprinted in Sharpe's Syntagma of Hyde's Dissertations.

<sup>5</sup> Archives, which properly means (Murray, s.v.) The response of the Demon is printed in facsimile at the bottom of the page and is the Devil's hand from which the copy of the book in the College Archives derived its name. The incantation is in Italian, and what follows recounts that as soon as the writer had laid down his pen it was caught up and the characters in question rapidly written by an unseen hand. No attempt has ever been made to interpret them. The page in question in the copy belonging to the College has from frequent inspection and handling been much disfigured. Mr. Andrew Clark has reproduced it from a clean copy in the Bodleian in his edition of Wood's Life and Times, i. 498. In 1663, on Michaelmas Day, the King, queen, duke and duchess of York being at Queen's College, 'went and saw the chapple, then the library to see the divell's hand.'

WORTHY S<sup>r</sup>

In order to the performance of my promiss made to you in my late lines by Burnyatts<sup>3</sup>, These are to acquaint you that what I then intimated to you concerning y<sup>e</sup> Bishops Resign<sup>a</sup>con before Easter is since come to pass<sup>4</sup>: for on Friday last (being the 6th of this instant Aprill) Dr Halton brought his resign<sup>a</sup>con down with him to the College; and read it to the Society that night, and the next day wee went to the election of a New Provost, and by an unanimous consent (for none stood ag<sup>t</sup> him) chose Dr Halton, yo<sup>r</sup> quondam ffellow Pupill & Schoolfellow<sup>5</sup>: for which favour & promotion he gave us a noble Treat both in the Hall and in his Chamber this very day. Wee only elected him (for our power reaches no further) and the Arch-bishop of Yorke (who is our Visiter) is to confirme & admitt him: So he goes to wait upon him at London in Easter weeke, and the two Senior <sup>1</sup> John Skelton entered Queen's College as batler in the ninth week of the first quarter of the year 1653, matriculated 24 June of the same year, was elected Dudley Exhibitioner of Oriel College towards the end of the year, and held the exhibition for seven years without leaving Queen's, was elected 'pauper puer' 19 June, 1656, proceeded B.A. 26 Nov. 1656, elected fellow 1 March, 1659, proceeded M.A. 4 June, 1659. He continued fellow till about 1680, having held the office of Camerarius in the year 1662-3, and of Thesaurarius from 1665 to 1668, and again in the year 1671-2. He was chaplain to Bishop Barlow of Lincoln, who collated him to the archdeaconry of Bedford 15 Feb. 1678-9, and to the prebend of Asgarby in the cathedral of Lincoln 5 Sept. 1683, which in the following year he exchanged for the prebend of Biggleswade in the same church. He was vicar of Stixwold 1666, rector of Scrayfield 1671, and of East Wickham 1680, all in the county of Lincoln, rector of Walgrave, Northants, 1681, and provost or master of the hospital of St. John's, Northampton. He died 3 April, 1704. Hearne, who calls him E. Skelton (ed. Doble, ii. 68), had a bad opinion of him.

<sup>2</sup> Thomas Crosthwayt entered Queen's College as batler 17 October, 1656, was elected 'pauper puer' 13 Dec. 1660, proceeded B.A. 25 Feb. 1660-1, M.A. 14 June, 1664, elected fellow 15 Nov. 1666, B.D. 30 May, 1677, D.D. 2 Dec. 1684. He was junior proctor of the University 1672-3, Camerarius of the College 1669-70, Thesaurarius 1673-4 and from 1679 to 1681. He was appointed prebendary of Exeter by bishop Lamplugh 7 June, 1678, and elected Principal of Edmund Hall 15 Mar. 1683-4. He was deprived of the Principalship 30 Oct. 1684, either for neglecting to subscribe to a declaration required by the Act of Uniformity or for keeping his fellowship with the principalship against the Statuta Aularia. He was re-elected by the fellows of Queen's against provost Halton's wish on the 8th of November, and finally deprived in the following year. He was a non-juror, ceased to be fellow in 1692, having been deprived of his prebend in the previous year. He died 30 Jan. 1709-10, and was buried 1 Feb. in the College Chapel. Hearne calls him 'a learned orthodox Divine, and an undaunted sufferer for his Allegiance to his undoubted Sovereign, and his adherence to the Doctrine of the Church of England' (ed. In February the king of France at the head of a numerous army burst into the Spanish Netherlands, and in a few days carried Valenciennes by assault. In April Cambray surrendered, the prince of Orange was defeated at Cassel, and the city of St. Omer opened its gates to the conquerors. In November the Princee of Orange, who in 1674 had refused the hand of the Princess Mary, daughter of the Duke of York, was married to her.

<sup>5</sup> The office of Under Bursar or Camerarius was in the gift of the College. 'De Sociis tamcn et Scholaribus per Præpositum et cæteros de Collegio eligantur, secundum formam electionis Scholarium, duo aptiores et fideliores et discretiores ad omnem pecuniam dictæ aulæ undecunque provenientem recipiendam, fideliter custodiendam et juxta ordinationem Præpositi utiliter liberandam et expendendam; ad receptionem etiam librorum communium deputatorum ad profectum scholasticum et eorum custodiam; quorum alter nominetur thesaurarius, et alter camerarius.' (College Statutes, p. 23.) The only Dean mentioned in the Statutes is the Decanus capellæ (ib. p. 29), who was to be the 'primus et capitancus' of the chaplains; but the full staff of chaplains designed by the founder 'crescentibus aulæ redditibus' (ib. p. 26) was never created, and the Dean seems at this time, as now, to have been an officer nominated by the Provost to assist him in maintaining the discipline of the College.

Mr Provost to have yo<sup>r</sup> present put in the Archives where the Devils hand (which is now taken away) used to be placed<sup>1</sup>. It will become that place very well & many will take it for that, seeing 'tis so unintelligible. In lieu of yo<sup>r</sup> China-Almanack I have here sent you 2 schemes, the one whereof will acquaint you with y<sup>e</sup> Frydayes Exercise before the Act<sup>2</sup> together wth y<sup>e</sup> persons & Themes they handled. the other with y<sup>e</sup> Questions that were handled both in Divinity & Philosophy on Monday following. So that I hope by meanes of this rude & imperfect draught of that great Solemnity, youl be able to frame a compleat idea, or perfect portraiture of y<sup>e</sup> whole. All therefore that I shall add furth<sup>r</sup> in reference to the Act, is that there were severall forreigne Ambassadors att it. Some of w<sup>ch</sup> it seems have desired a Coppy of y<sup>e</sup> exercise that was done upon Fryday. So 'tis all to be printed & p<sup>r</sup>sented to them: but I suppose 'twill hardly be sold. The Duke of Ormond<sup>3</sup> (our Chancellour) was expected att y<sup>e</sup> Act (as may appear from y<sup>e</sup> lower end of y<sup>e</sup> Fryday scheme) but he did not come; yet wee look for him still this weeke or the next. 'Tis said that his Players (who were with us att y<sup>e</sup> Act & 10 dayes after) carried 6 or 700<sup>l</sup> clear gaines out of Oxõ<sup>n</sup><sup>4</sup>. They acted much att ye same rate the Kings & Dukes used to do. My L<sup>d</sup> of Lincolne<sup>5</sup> return'd to Oxõ<sup>n</sup> on Saturday after y<sup>e</sup> Act. the Boxes are amakeing to carry his Bookes in: & his Tenants & y<sup>e</sup> Gentlemen in y<sup>e</sup> County have pmiss'd him waggons, so that heel now remove before Michaelmas. As to y<sup>e</sup> Bookes you men<sup>t</sup>ion'd in yo<sup>r</sup> last they are both extant & approv'd of generally very well especially Dr Plots Nãall History<sup>6</sup> w<sup>ch</sup> he dedicates to his Ma<sup>ty</sup>, the price whereof is to y<sup>e</sup> subscribers 8<sup>s</sup> and to others 9<sup>s</sup> in sheets from y<sup>e</sup> Theater, but the Booksellers ask 11<sup>s</sup>—6<sup>d</sup> for it bound: it has a great many Cutts in it w<sup>h</sup> makes it so dear: the price of

John Weeks exhibited to John Bradshaw's studies: but Bradshaw was ungrateful and atheistical; brok into his chamber and took away that money that was intended for him.' (Clark's Wood's Life and Times, ii. 379.)

Seeing you were pleas'd to add one late obligacōn to all yo<sup>r</sup> former by sending a noble Token<sup>1</sup> to M<sup>r</sup> Machell & my self. I think my self really bound to repeat my thanks & to acknowledge that in writeing, which I despair of requiteing, and for which I should blush to offerr at a retaliation, if I were not assured that yo<sup>r</sup> goodness would be as ready to pardon defects as 'tis to conferr kindnesses. Yo<sup>r</sup> Present to y<sup>e</sup> College is (according to what I hinted in my last) laid up in y<sup>e</sup> Archives<sup>2</sup>: where 'tis as secure from being stolen, as from being read and und<sup>r</sup>stood. The B<sup>p</sup> of Lincolns<sup>3</sup> Bookes (w<sup>ch</sup> filled 10 waggons) were remov'd to Bugden<sup>4</sup> 3 weekes ago, but he himself continues with us still, upon w<sup>ch</sup> some made an Animadversion That he was no hard Student of late, because he did not follow his Bookes. Wee long to see him a Student againe, but wee doubt heel set up his staff with us this winter, seeing Madam tellus (to borrow an expression from a Northern Orbilius<sup>5</sup>) is already clad in white. I Suppose you have heard that Mr Machell is upon his year of Grace, haveing gott Kirkby Thure<sup>6</sup> in y<sup>e</sup> North. He is not return'd to Oxon since he was in y<sup>e</sup> North. So that I joyn'd our Token with Mr Musgrave's<sup>7</sup>

He was elected Pauper puer 15 July, 1659, proceeded B.A. 26 July, 1659, M.A. 5 May, 1662, was elected fellow 12 Dec. 1662. He was rector of Salkeld, Cumberland, 1669, canon and archdeacon of Carlisle 1669, canon of Durham and rector of Whitburn, co. A nephew of his, Philip, son of Sir Christopher, had entered as Upper Commoner in the previous July, and matriculated on Dec. 15. It was probably on his account that the Token came from the archdeacon.

He was eldest son of John Lamplugh of Lamplugh, and entered Gray's Inn 9 Feb. 1642, after the death of his father in 1636. He is the Colonel Lamplugh referred to in n. 9, p. 5. His eldest son was Thomas, who entered Queen's College as commoner 19 May, and matriculated 23 June, 1676, aged 18. It was on his account that the Token had been sent, probably by the father.

He was elected Panper puer 11 December, 1669, proceeded B.A. the following 8 February, and M.A. 28 June, 1673. In the list of fellows in the College Entrance Book he appears as having been elected fellow in the first term of 1674, on the same day as Thomas Dixon (see n. 1, p. 215), but the election is not recorded in the Collcge Register. He became rector of Newnham with Mapledurwell, Hants, 1679, and of Dogmersfield in the same county in 1680.

He was elected 'in pauperem puerum' 23 June, 1663, proceeded B.A. 3 May, 1666, and M.A. 9 Nov. 1669. He was elected 'in scholarem perpetuum seu socium' 17 October, 1670. His name first appears as Mill in the College Books where he signs his name at the election of Timothy Halton to be provost, 7 April, 1677. (See Appendix G.) He became chaplain to Lamplugh, bp. of Exeter, and prebendary of that cathedral 1677, rector of Bletchington 1681, proceeded B.D. 8 July, 1680, and D.D. 8 December, 1681. He was appointed Principal of Edmund Hall 1685, and Prebendary of Canterbury 1704. He was chaplain in ordinary to Charles II. He died 23 June, 1707. NOBLE SR,

Although many do esteem it a more generous thing to begg in y<sup>e</sup> behalfe of a friend then to move for one selfe, yet y<sup>e</sup> contrary I beleive is more in fashion. The Death of y<sup>e</sup> late Arch-Bishop<sup>4</sup> will surely make great alterations in our Church preferments; & many who wish well both to our Church & state (& have also a reall kindness for Queens College) hope that my Lord of London<sup>5</sup> will be translated unto Canterbury, which may occasion many removes. It may be presumed, that y<sup>e</sup> Bishops of Carlile<sup>6</sup> & Chester<sup>7</sup>, & y<sup>e</sup> Dean of Durham<sup>8</sup>, do

Yor late lines (dated May y<sup>e</sup> 4th) give me a new occasion of thanking of you not only for them, but also for the honour & service you did me in yo<sup>r</sup> recomendacõ of me to Sr George Fletcher<sup>3</sup>. I fancied you were instrumentall in directing him in his choice, & Mr Provost was pleas'd to second you therein, So that I have a double obligacõ upon me to looke after him; and I shall endeavour to discharge both. As for the time of yo<sup>r</sup> Sons coming up, I think the next terme<sup>4</sup> (weh begins on y<sup>e</sup> 30th of this month & ends about the 13 of July) may be a proper & beneficiall time for his admittance, because those of y<sup>e</sup> foundation<sup>5</sup> who are entred in that Terme (if they lose no time)

<sup>4</sup> Trinity or Act Term, which at this time began on the Wednesday after Trinity Sunday, and ended on the Saturday after the Comitia, or later if so decreed by the Congregation of Regents. For the Comitia or Act see Appendix I. It was held on the Monday after the seventh of July.

Heel gett the Terme if hees entred in any part of it even the last day: heel surely shake hands with his Ague<sup>3</sup> before it goe out. Tho' you designe him for a foundation man, yet perhaps you may have some thoughts of makeing him a Coñoner for some time as Mr Musgrave<sup>4</sup> (the Archdeacon of Carlile) was, who gott y<sup>e</sup> slavery & trouble of being poor child 3 or 4 yeares over, by waiteing att ye high table 3 weekes or a month or some such thing<sup>5</sup>. I beleive Mr Provost will advise you for the best if you consult him, or entertaine any doubts hereupon. But perhaps I have rais'd a scruple where there is none & shall therefore forbear. I perceive Mr Stewardson<sup>6</sup> brings up Mr Simpson's<sup>7</sup> son this weeke, so that wee shall have choice of

<sup>2</sup> Regency literally means keeping school. For two years after proceeding to his degree a Master of Arts was bound to keep school, or, as the phrase was, was a necessary regent. By the time the Laudian Statutes were passed one of the two years was regularly dispensed with, but down to recent times a trace of this obligation remained in the call from time to time made on Masters of Arts to come and make up a house in the Congregation of Regents, wherein degrees are ordinarily conferred. The admission of Inceptors to Regency took place immediately after the Act in each year. The Regents ad placitum who with the necessary Regents constituted the Congregation were the Professors and Public Lecturers, the resident Doctors, the heads of Colleges or their deputies, the Masters of the Schools, the Deans and Censors of Colleges. Dispensation from the second year of necessary Regency did not exclude such necessary Regents from the Congregation.

<sup>7</sup> James Simpson, junior, mercer, was admitted a freeman of Kendal 1660. He was Mayor of Kendal in 1670 and again in 1682. He occurs as one of the Senior Aldermen in Charles II's charter granted to Kendal in 1684. (A Booke off Recorde of Kirkbiekendall, edited by Chancellor Ferguson, Kendal, 1892, pp. 25, 61, 365.) He proceeded B.A. 15 December, 1682, under which date Wood (Fasti, ii. 383) has this account of him:—'Son of James Simpson senior Alderman of the corporation of Kendal in Westmorland, was born, and bred in the free school, there, and being put aside from being tabarder of his coll. when batch. of arts, he retired to his native place in discontent, and there concluded his last day. He hath written Moral Considerations touching the Duty of Contentedness under Afflictions, Oxon. 1686, in 6 sh. in Oct. Written by way of letter to the most affectionate and best of fathers Mr. Jam. Simpson. To this letter are added Two Prayers, one for Submission to the divine Will, another for Contentment. This ingenious and religious young man died in his father's house, 20 Decemb. 1684, and was buried the day following in the middle isle of the parish church of Kendal before mentioned, on the west side of the pulpit.'

<sup>3</sup> It appears from Wood's Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 404, 412, 422, 424, that Dragoons (Red coates) were quartered in Oxford May, 1678; they left Oxford 27 June and returned 2 July. 'About the 5th of November one of them was clapt up in the Castle as suspected to be either a preist or a monke.' Being very vigilant 27 Nov. to quench a fire they had 5*/i* given to them as a reward. Dec. 6, a programma was stuck up in every College hall under the vicechancellor's hand that no scholar abuse the soldiers (dragoons under Sir John Talbot's commands) in the night watches that they keep at the Gild Hall, Peniless Bench and at most Inns doors where the officers lye. The burial of four soldiers is recorded ib. 429. The story of a tailor's wife being killed by a dragoon is told ib. p. 433. It appears from a letter of Sir John Lowther (R. P. 1951) that a regiment of foot consisted of 1000 men, a regiment of horse of 490, and a regiment of dragoons of 960.

<sup>5</sup> The story of the origin of this dispute which arose from a quarrel, 4 Aug. 1677, between George Barbour, a proproctor of Oriel College, and a citizen called Philip Dodwell is told by Wood, Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 381. It was Tuesday, Oct. 30, 1678, before there was 'a hearing at Westminster between the two bodies, who were ordered to compromise the business among themselves; and so there was an end of Dodwell's business.' WORTHY SR :

In answer to your last by y<sup>e</sup> Post I writt to you on y<sup>e</sup> 20th of this month, att w<sup>ch</sup> time I gave you the best informacōn I could concerning y<sup>e</sup> most convenient time for yo<sup>r</sup> Son to come up in after his recovery : but upon sight of yo<sup>r</sup> letter to Mr Stewardson <sup>1</sup> (and his p<sup>p</sup>oseall of y<sup>e</sup> thing) wee have taken new measures, and seeing yo<sup>r</sup> Son was Senior in y<sup>e</sup> Class to the other two <sup>2</sup> w<sup>ch</sup> Mr Stewardson brought up, I gott leave of Mr Provost to enter yo<sup>r</sup> Son first on y<sup>e</sup> same side, (sc. amongst the Batlers <sup>3</sup>) So (through Mr Provosts favour & kindness) heel have Seniority let him come when he pleases. Yet I would not have him to lose the ensueing Terme, w<sup>ch</sup> (as I told you in my last) begins on Thursday next & ends just after Act. The sooner he comes up the better. The Provost designs to go to London shortly but heel be back againe in a weeke or ten dayes time. After his returne wee shall have an election for Tabiters <sup>4</sup>. I have no oth<sup>r</sup> newes to send you

<sup>2</sup> The two brought up by Mr. Stewardson were Richard Simpson for whom see n. 7, p. 235, and Robert Harrison, who entered Queen's College as a batler 27 May, 1678, and matriculated with Simpson 28 June of the same year, aged 15. He proceeded B.A. the same day as Simpson 15 Dec. 1682, and his record is thus given by Wood (Fasti, ii. 383) :—'the son of Joh. Har. of the corporation of Kendal, hath written A strange Relation of the sudden and violent Tempest, which hapned at Oxford, May 31. An. 1682. Together with an Enquiry into the probable cause and usual Consequences of such like Tempests and Storms. Oxon. 1682. He hath also written another book, which is not yet extant, entit. Mercurius Oxonio-Academicus, &c. taken mostly from Hist. & Antiq. Univ. Oxon. and said to be written by a well-wisher to astron. and astrology. He is now schoolmaster of Carlisle.' The Relation of the Tempest is in Bodley, Wood 515 (33).

L.L.D. Fellow of this College, and since Secretary of State.' (Wood's Colleges and Halls, ed. Gntch, i. 151.) The building is in Loggan's picture of the College in the lower right-hand corner. It forms the north-eastern corner of the College and is now incorporated with the subsequent buildings and forms the easternmost half of staircases 3 and 4 in the hack quadrangle. Williamson's crest, which with his arms formerly appeared under the pediment now facing eastwards, may still be seen under a niche on the northern front of his building. Besides defraying the cost of this building, and many other gifts during his life, he also hequeathed 6000*l*. for buildings.

<sup>4</sup> '10 June, M., voted in Convocation that no Act should be celebrated this yeare, under pretence that there was no Doctor proceeded; hut the tru reason was, that (the town and Universitie heing at variance) the Universitie would not contribute to their enrichment, to pluck out the Universitie's eyes. I heard this at the Bath, Th. 20th June.—Another reason was that the red coat dragoons watched and warded every night and kept guard at their officers' doors, and the University knew not hut that they might abuse the strangers that came to the Act.' REV. THOMAS DIXON TO DANIEL FLEMING (2029).

Oxōñ June the 18 (78).

I recd yo<sup>r</sup>s 2 dayes ago by one of those many Travellers who tooke Oxōñ in their way to London of late. The inclosed I deliver'd according to their respective directions. M<sup>r</sup> Provost p<sup>r</sup>sents his Service & respects to you. I fancy the kindness you thankt him for in yo<sup>r</sup> last is but a præludium to those greater ones he has in store for you. And for my owne share you have already by yo<sup>r</sup> obligatōns anticipated all the favo<sup>r</sup>s I can show eith<sup>r</sup> you or yo<sup>r</sup>s. So that so small a Curtesy as my last was (especially considering that my father had seconded yo<sup>r</sup> engagem<sup>t</sup>s by his injunctions in relation to yo<sup>r</sup> welfare & concerns) needed not so large an acknowledgem<sup>t</sup> (if any att all) from you. As to the Bookes that may be requisite for yo<sup>r</sup> Son to bring up with him, severall Schoole-Bookes (whether of Poetry, Greeke & Latin, or Oratory or for Languages) will be usefull for him.

London in 1832. For the discussion of the authorship of this book and the other works of the author of the Whole Duty of Man see Dr. Macray's article on Dorothy, Lady Pakington, in D. N. B.

<sup>2</sup> Antony Tunstall entered Queen's College as batler 8 May, and was matriculated 17 May, 1672, aged 17. He was son of Nicholas, born at Selshyde, Cumberland, according to the University Register, but probably at Selside near Kendal in Westmorland. He proceeded B.A. 4 July, 1677, and was elected 'in pauperem puerum' 10 July, 1677. He proceeded M.A. 8 July, 1680, and was elected fellow 6 November, and admitted 21 December, 1680. He was made prebendary of Exeter by Bishop Lamplugh 22 Oct. 1686, and presented by the same bishop to the rectory and vicarage of Cheriton Bishop in 1687, but died while still a fellow in his year of grace 13 Jan. 1687-8. His will was proved at Oxford 1 Feb. of the same year.

I need not name any, because I know not what he has read or is furnish'd withall, but Mr Stewardson<sup>1</sup> is able to direct you herein. If the Lexicons or Dictionaries (or any other Bookes of a generall use) which he has, be usefull att p<sup>r</sup>sent (or may be serviceable in a short time) to any of yo<sup>r</sup> other children, wee can have them as cheap (or cheaper) than any you can send for & save the expence of carriage. Since money was scarce<sup>2</sup> Bookes of all sorts are growne pretty plentifull att the second hand in y<sup>e</sup> Stationers Shops. So that I think it will not be convenient to load the carrier wth may bookes, the carriage of money being less burthensome. Yet I think it will not be amiss to furnish yo<sup>r</sup> Son pretty well with cloathes both wollen & Linnen, & particularly wth purple Cotten for a studding Gowne<sup>3</sup> & wth Sheets, as also wth all y<sup>e</sup> materialls & appurtenances of a bed (excepting feathers & hangings). All which may be safely sent (any weeke) by y<sup>e</sup> Kendall carrier<sup>4</sup> to Northampton & so by one Hickman<sup>5</sup> to Oxōn, or else Burnyatts<sup>6</sup> (who I suppose will be for Oxōn shortly now) may take care of them if he can bring them in time. He usually comes up before Act, and (if he come att all) he is like to come up before Act this year, because wee are to have none : It was put to y<sup>e</sup> Convocation whether wee should have one or no, and it was carried in y<sup>e</sup> Negative by an hundred votes & upwards<sup>7</sup>. The Masters of Art were not <sup>2</sup> 'The English currency at the close of the seventeenth century contained coins that went back to the Plantagenets, coins of the debased issues of Henry VIII and Edward VI, coins of all countries in the world. It was a sort of numismatic exhibition, to illustrate Gresham's law, that bad money drives out good. The newer-milled money issued since 1663 was of course hoarded or exported; and the more of it issued, the higher was the premium on clipping the old light money, the 'hammered' coins, or melting down and exporting the new broad pieces. It has been with good reason doubted "if all the misery inflicted in a quarter of a century by bad Kings, bad Ministers, bad Parliaments and bad Judges was equal to the misery caused in a single year by bad crowns and bad shillings".' (A. L. Smith, in Traill's Social England, iv. 527 sq.) We shall find many references in the Fleming letters to the inconveniences caused by this state of things.

<sup>2</sup> John Wallis, educated at Cambridge, incorporated at Exeter College in 1649, in which year he was elected Savilian professor of geometry, became keeper of the archives in 1654, and held both offices till his death in 1703. He incurred Wood's wrath for submitting to the parliamentary visitors, and for refusing Wood access to the archives. As keeper of the archives he was much employed in University business. Besides his reputation as a mathematician he was celebrated for his skill in deciphering, having been employed to decipher Charles I's correspondence taken at Naseby, and by William III to decipher intercepted correspondence. His life is in Athenæ, and in D. N. B.

<sup>3</sup> John Venn, son of Simon, of Lidiat St. Lawrence, Somerset, pleb., matriculated from Balliol College 10 May, 1662, aged 15; B.A. 1666, M.A. 1669, elected master 24 April, 1678, B.D. and D.D. 1685, vice-chancellor, 1686-7, died 8 Oct. 1687 at his birth-place, and buried there. His wife was Catharine Low, niece of Lord Chancellor Clarendon. Wood's report of him is:—'spent most of his time in bibbing and smoaking, and nothing of a gent. to carry him off.' (Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 448.)

<sup>4</sup> Thomas Goode or Good matriculated from Balliol College, 20 Feb. 1627-8, aged 18; B.A. 1628, M.A. 1631, fellow 1629-58, master 1672-8, B.D. 1639, D.D. 1660; canon of Hereford 1660, where he died 9 Apr. 1678, and was buried in the cathedral. His life is in Athenæ, and D. N. B. He tried to stop the Balliol men drinking ale at the Split Crow. (Davis's History of Balliol, p. 150.)

<sup>5</sup> George Croyden, son of George, of Temple Combe, Somerset, gent., elected from Westminster School 1634 to Christ Church, whence he matriculated 1 Sept., aged 18, B.A. 1638, M.A. 1641. He was undermaster of Westminster, censor of Ch. Ch., submitted to the parliamentary visitors, and was reported as absent with leave March 1651. He visited Paris and Padua where he was created LL.D. 1657. He incorporated at Christ Church as Doctor of Laws, was made canon 1666, and treasurer, died 14 June, 1678, and was buried in the Cathedral. 'Dr. Thomas Lockey who was canon of the fifth prebendship, was removed to Dr. Croyden's prebendship (the 4th); and on 11 July William Jane succeeded Dr. Lockey.' (Wood's Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 408.)

<sup>6</sup> William Jane, son of Joseph of Liskeard, Cornwall, M.P. for Liskeard, who lodged Charles I for six nights at his house and wrote ΕΙΚΩΝ ΑΚΛΑΣΤΟΣ a defence of ΕΙΚΩΝ ΒΑΣΙΛΙΚΗ against ΕΙΚΟΝΟΚΛΑΣΤΗΣ, was elected student of Christ Church from Westminster 1660, matriculated 5 Dec. aged 16; B.A. 1664, M.A. 1667, B.D. 1674, D.D. 1679, was chaplain to Bishop Compton of Oxford and London, whose consecration sermon he preached 1674. He was canon of Christ

<sup>1</sup> Allestry did not resign his professorship till 1680. He was Richard Allestry, or Allestree, son of Robert, of Alveston in Derbyshire, and was born at Uppington in Shropshire. He matriculated from Christ Chnrch 17 Feb. 1636-7, aged 15; and was elected student the same year. He proceeded B.A. 1640, M.A. 1643, was expelled by the parliamentary visitors, took arms for the king, was taken prisoner at Dover 1659 while carrying on some negotiations between Charles and the bishops who were still in England. Became canon of Christ Church 1660, regius professor of Divinity 1663, and provost of Eton 1665. He died 28 Jan. 1680-1 and is buried in Eton College chapel. He has been mentioned above (n. 3, p. 170) as having helped to keep up the service of the Church of England during the Protectorate at Dr. Willis' house. His life is in Athenæ, and D. N. B.

<sup>3</sup> William Lancaster, born at Sockbridge hall in the parish of Barton, Westmorland, at the north end of Ulleswater, entered Queen's College as batler, 23 June, and matriculated 1 July, 1670, aged 20. He had been a schoolmaster at Barton. He was elected 'in pauperem puerum (seu Scholarem de Taberdâ)' 20 Dec. 1674, and proceeded B.A. the following 6 Feb., and M.A. 1 July, 1678. He was elected and admitted fellow 15 March, 1678-9. He was Camerarius 1685-6, and Thesaurarius from 1686 to 1691. He vacated his fellowship on his marriage in 1696. He became vicar of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, London, 1692, and archdeacon of Middlesex 1705. He was provost from 1704 to 1717 and vicchancellor 1705 to 1709. He died in Oxford of gont in the stomach 4 Feb. 1716-7, and was buried at St. Martin's-in-the-fields. His election to the provostship was disputed on the ground that he was not an actual fellow. (See A true state of the case of the election of a Provost of Queen's College in Oxford, Oxford, 1704, written by Francis Thompson, B.D., who was a fellow at the time, with material supplied by Dr. Thomas Crosthwait, for whom see n. 2, p. 223.) Wood only mentions him as a good preacher, but he figures largely in Hearne's Diaries. Hearne is at first complimentary, but changes his tone when Lancaster opposes Hudson's election as fellow, and becomes more whiggish. Hearne's favourite name for him is 'Smooth boots.' He tells us that he was one of those sent while Bachelors of Arts to France by Sir Joseph Williamson 'where he accomplish'd himself.' He came up to Oxford as tutor to Sir John Lowther of Lowther. He was a great benefactor to the College, had most to do with the collection of the money for the rebuilding, laid the foundation stone and bequeathed 1000*l.* in addition to the sums he had given in his life-time. His portrait by T. Murray is in the College hall, and was engraved by George Vertue. He appears as Sly-Boots in the 43d number of the Spectator. 'When he stood for his Master of Arts Degree one Mr. Clark of All Souls (one of y<sup>e</sup> Proctors and a pert ignorant Fellow,) denied his Grace. But when it came to be put to vote in the Congregation, he carried it against y<sup>e</sup> Proctors, there being nothing but trifling Objections made against him.' (Hearne, ed. Doble, i. 216.)

<sup>4</sup> Philip Musgrave entered Queen's College as Upper Commoner 15 July, 1676. He was elder son of Sir Christopher (for whom see n. 5, p. 28), and matriculated 15 Dec., 1676, aged 15. He was M.P. for Appleby 1685-7, and 1689, clerk of the

August the second 1678.

A pticular note of the money receiued and of whom and how disbursed when I went to Oxford wth Mr Henry Fleming to Quenes Colledge

July the 14 th 1678 Receiued of my maister . . .	15	00	00

23 Receiued for the horse sould w <sup>ch</sup> Mr Hen rid upon, saddle, and bridle . . . . .	01	05	00

<sup>2</sup> This account is written by John Bankes on two long strips of paper now (1903) pinned together. The road by which Bankes took Henry Fleming ran from Rydal to Kendal (15 miles), thence along the London and Carlisle road by Lancaster (24 miles) and Garstang to Preston (21 miles), to Wigan (17 miles), thence by Brewerton or Brereton-green (see n. 1, p. 66) (32 miles) to Newcastle under Lime (13 miles). At Darlestone bridge (8 miles) the Carlisle road runs into the road from Holyhead to London. Thence they passed by Litchfield (25 miles) to Coleshill (14 miles); thence by Coventry (12 miles), when they left the Holyhead road, to Southam (13 miles); whence by Banbury (14 miles) to Oxford (23 miles). They thus accomplished their journey of 231 miles in 5½ days, an average of something over 40 miles a day. On Bankes' return journey the route was the same, but his stoppages were at Southam (37 miles), Coleshill (25 miles), Newcastle (47 miles), Warrington (32 miles), Garstang (41 miles), thence 34 miles would take him to Kendal and 15 more to Rydal.

<sup>3</sup> It seems that Bankes ran short of cash at Oxford and borrowed this sum of Henry Fleming of Coniston, who may have been travelling with Burnyeats the carrier. From the way he is mentioned he does not seem to have been a near relative.

It is more likely however that 'pair of' is used idiomatically as in 'pair of seissors' for a single thing of a complicated kind; so pair of compasses, and perhaps pair of ink-horns above, p. 39.

of the University and of the Colleges mainly consisted of fees. Entrance fees, degree fees and the terminal payments were originally a multitude of small payments to a number of major or minor officials, and even when they were consolidated for the student they were for some time divided as before among the officials. Salaries have now as a rule taken the place of fees.

In Hearne's day the matriculation fee for the son 'armigeri' was 16s. 6d., 'Generosi' 10s. 6d. Clerici 9s. 6d. Plebei 6s. 8d. Pauperis 3s. 8d. This last is deleted by Hearne from the printed list, and below is substituted 'Privilegiatus aut serviens' 2s. 2d. (Bodl. MS. Rawlinson, Hearne's Diaries, 161.)

<sup>5</sup> Aditus ad Logicam. In vsum eorum qui primò Academiam salutant. Autore S. S. Artium Magistro. Anno Domini, 1613. (Bodl. 12°.) Samuel Smith entered Magdalen Hall as commoner 1604, became fellow of Magdalen College 1608, proceeded B.A. 1609, M.A. 1612, B.M. 1620, appointed junior proctor 28 Apr. of that year and died 17 June. His Aditus was published originally in 1613 and went through many editions. Mr. Madau (Early Oxford Press, p. 93) says that the first edition was not printed in Oxford.

Studio atque operâ Josephi Hill. Lond. 1663. (Bodl. 8°.) The Queen's College Library edition is Corn. Schrevelii Lexicon Mannale Græco-Latinum & Latino-Græcum, Editio tertia, auctior multo et emendatior. Lugduni Batavorum, Ex Officina Francisci Hackii. A° MDCLXI. Hill (1625-1707) was fellow of Magdalene College, Cambridge, became a nonconformist minister and died at Rotterdam. He added 8000 words to the Dutch Original. The Lexicon held its place till well into the nineteenth century. The Latin interpretations were translated into English by J. R. Major, afterwards Headmaster of King's College School, and a second edition was published in 1831. It was eventually superseded by Donnegan's Lexicon published 1826, and Liddell and Scott 1843.

<sup>2</sup> The Bodleian has a copy of the following book: Elegantiae Poeticae in Locos communes digestæ. Editio Novissima. Oxoniæ in Theatro Sheldoniano 1679. An engraved title with bust, two figures and a representation of the Sheldonian Theatre. (Bodley, sm. 8°.) This is probably the book referred to by Wood (Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii) as follows:—'Advertisement to Booksellers. Whereas the four Oxford cullies having run themselves and porter out of breath and finding that their ill-shap'd testaments etc. will not answer their expectation, they have lately among other things pirated a certain book called "Elegantiae Poeticae" and offer'd it to sale for 1s 4d in quires: this is to give notice that of the true proprietors of the copy the said book may be had at 12d a single book in quires of a more perfect edition, having three sheets more of matter than the Oxford print.' This is a printed slip preserved by Wood, MS. 516 (12), and stated by him to have been 'brought down to Oxford by a London bookseller and dispersed there in stationers' shops about 10 Mar. 1679-80.' The four 'cullies' were Moses Pitt, William Leak, Peter Parker and Thomas Guy, London Printers, who were authorized by the University to print bibles at the Theatre at Oxford (Wood, Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 170, n. 3). Blumdiel's was probably the book pirated. It has been suggested by Mr. Madan that Blumdiel may be Dutch for 'flosculi,' 'Flosculi Elegantiarum Poeticarum' being one of the sub-titles of the pirate edition.

<sup>2</sup> A Scriptural Catechism; or, The Duty of Man Laid down in express words of Scripture, chiefly intended For the benefit of the Younger sort. Divided into two Parts: The first containing the chief Principles of our Christian Belief; The second instructing us in our Duty to God and Man, according to the method observed in the Excellent Book, entituled, The whole Duty of Man, To which is added Some Private Devotions in express words of Scripture; with devout Collects for several occasions. London; Printed by H. C. for Moses Pitt at the Angel in St. Paul's Church-yard, 1676 (Bodl. 8<sup>o</sup>.) The dedicatory epistle is signed R. E.

<sup>3</sup> Institutio Graecae Grammatices Compendiaria, the celebrated Greek Grammar for the use of Westminster School, based on an earlier one by his predecessor Dr. Grant, published by Camden the antiquary in 1597, when Headmaster of the school. It became very popular. The Bodleian has an edition of it adapted for use in Germany. The British Museum has at least twenty-eight editions coming down to 1825.

<sup>4</sup> William Lily (1468-1522), born at Odiham, Hants; demy of Magdalen College 1486, visited Jerusalem and made some stay in Rhodes where he acquired the Greek tongue, visited Rome where he studied under Sulpitius and Pomponius Laetus, taught in London and was selected by Colet as the first High Master of St. Paul's School, 1512. The Grammar with which his name is associated was the joint production of Colet and himself. The 'Propria quæ maribus' and 'As in præsentī' were added by John Ritwise, Usher and afterwards successor to Lily at St. Paul's School. Erasmus' name appears in the title of some editions. After various modifications it assumed a fairly permanent form in 1574, as Brevissimæ Institutio seu ratio grammatices cognoscendæ. An Edition in English was produced almost at the same time (the earliest copy in the British Museum Catalogue is dated 1577) with the Title, A shorte Introduction of Grammar, generally to be used; compyled and set forth for the bringing up of all those that intend to attayne the knowledge of the Latine tongue. Countless editions of both appeared down to the middle of the nineteenth century.

<sup>5</sup> Mark Lewis was Master in a school conducted on improved principles by A. Bret at Tottenham High Cross, Middlesex. The book referred to is not in the Bodleian, and in the British Museum the title-page is imperfect. It seems to be Rudimenta Grammaticæ Puerilis, or the Rudiments of the Latin and Greek Tongues &c. (An Apologie for a Grammar printed about twenty years since . . . and reprinted for the use of a private school &c.) 8vo. London, 1671.

Goodbid, for Tho. Passinger, at the Three Bibles, on London Bridge, 1677. (Bodl. 8°.) Newton became a commoner of Edmund Hall in 1637, proceeded B.A. 1641, and M.A. 1642. His reputation was as a mathematician and astronomer. He became D.D. 1660, rector of Ross 1661, canon of Hereford 1673, and died 1678. Yors dated July y<sup>e</sup> 6 I recd: by y<sup>e</sup> Post on y<sup>e</sup> 14. and did not doubt but that (according to what you hinted therein) the things sent by y<sup>e</sup> Kendall carrier would have arriv'd at Oxōñ before y<sup>r</sup> son. excellent. There is a row of houses at Bath called the Paragon, and we have lately heard of Paragon umbrella-frames. At this time it seems to have been used for some stuff of which petticoats, hangings, gowns (as here) could be made. Dr. Murray has kindly given me references to Pepys (ed. Wheatley), i. 86, 'took my wife by land to bny some Paragon for a petticoat'; to the London Gazette for 1674, No. 82, col. 4, 'Hangings for a room of Green Paragon'; and to D'Urfey, Pills to Purge Melancholy (ed. 1872), iii. 173, 'The Plowman, the Squire, the erranter Clown, At home she subdued in her Paragon Gown.' He adds, Nothing is more evanescent than the fauzy namcs of fabrics, and when they arc by chance preserved in literature, they are never described.

<sup>5</sup> This sum with the 15*l*. paid to John Bankes at starting makes up the 19 00 07 which is the sum of Bankes' disbursements (p. 250). It differs from the amount there estimated by Bankes as payable 02 00 00 to Henry Fleming of Conyston and 00 15 07 to himself by the 01 05 00 received by him (p. 247) for the horse which young Henry had ridden on, its saddle and bridle.

WORTHY SR.

<sup>2</sup> For D<sup>s</sup> see n. 8, p. 228. Hugh Todd entered Queen's College as batler 2 March, 1671-2, and matriculated 29th of the same month, aged 14. He was born at Blencow in Cmberland. He was elected 'in pauperem puerum' 10 June, and proceeded B.A. 4 July, 1677. In October, 1678, 'after a somewhat exciting struggle and several prorogations of the election,' he was elected as 'a staunch Churchman' fellow of University College against William Johnson, B.A., whose election the master, Obadiah Walker, had attempted to secure. (Carr, History of University College, p. 137.) He was vicar of Kirkland 1684, made canon of Carlisle by Bp. Thomas Smith, and vicar of Stanwix 1685, rector of Arthuret 1688, and vicar of St. Andrew's, Penrith, 1699. He fought with Bishop Nicolson as to the right of visitation of the chapter of Carlisle and was excommunicated by the bishop. He wrote among other things 'Collections for a history of the county of Cumberland,' of which he gave the MS. to Queen's College. It is an edition by Todd of Denton's 'Accompt of Estates and Families in Cumberland,' which has been printed by Chancellor Ferguson, Kendal, 1887. The same editor also printed, Kendal, 1890, Todd's Account of the City and Diocese of Carlisle; and Kendal, 1891, his Notitia Ecclesiae Cathedralis Carloliensis, and his Notitia Prioratus de Wedderhal. Todd proceeded M.A. 2 July, 1679, B. & D.D. 12 Dec. 1692, and died 6 Oct. 1728. His life is in D. N. B.

<sup>3</sup> Edward Norryes entered Queen's College, as Upper Commoner, 24 June, 1650, and matriculated 9 Dec. He was second son of Sir Francis Norreys of Weston-on-the-Green, Oxon. He was M.P. for Oxfordshire in 6 parliaments 1675-9, and 1700-8, and for Oxford in 4 parliaments 1689-1700. He was knighted 22 Nov. 1662, and died in October, 1713.

<sup>4</sup> There were two scrjcants-at-law called Holloway living in Oxford at this time, Charles who was over eighty years of age and died 29 Nov. 1679, and Richard who is probably the person here referred to. He was scholar of Winchester 1640, aged 14, matriculated from New College 3 Mar. 1642-3, aged 15, son of John Holloway, steward of New College, and official to the archdeacon of Berks. He was expelled from his fellowship with his father by the parliamentary visitors for non-sbmission, became barrister of Inner Temple 1653, recorder of Wallingford 1666, benchcr 1671, serjeant-at-law 1677, was knighted and made judge of King's bench 1683, declared for the seven bishops and was therefore dismissed 1688, and died at Oxford 1699. He drew up Anthony Wood's will. His life is in D. N. B.

<sup>5</sup> 1678 was a busy year for Williamson. At the end of 1677 he had been elected president of the Royal Society. He presided at every meeting of the council, and generally managed in addition to preside at the ordinary meetings. The events were preparing which led to his losing in the February following his office of Secretary of State, and at the end of the year he was married to Lady O'Brien. So his hands in August were probably quite full.

by reason that Mr Mill<sup>1</sup> (the Bursar) is not return'd from London whither he went about a fortnight ago to preach before y<sup>e</sup> King in Dr Smiths<sup>2</sup> course of Christ Church as some say. He is seeking for p<sup>r</sup>ferm<sup>t</sup> att Court haveing displeas'd y<sup>e</sup> Provost att home, as I may safely tell you under the Rose. Perhaps you may hear more from other hands. I forgott to acquaint you in my last how that the Vice-chancellour, feareing Dr Busby's Proposealls<sup>3</sup> about y<sup>e</sup> setting a Catechetical Lecture among us for y<sup>e</sup> younger sort, might not take in y<sup>e</sup> Vacation, has deferr'd y<sup>e</sup> menconing of it in Convocation till Michaelmas Terme. Oither Colleges are like to scruple att it because the Lecturer (according to y<sup>e</sup> proposealls) is like to be for y<sup>e</sup> most part of Ch: Church, & too much power seemes to be given him in hindering degrees<sup>4</sup>. If I can gett a Copy of ye Proposealls I shall send them to you. I know not how to give you a state of y<sup>e</sup> University's case<sup>5</sup>, Neither do I know well how it begun. As farr as I can undrstand a Townsman that refus'd to give one of y<sup>e</sup> Pro-Proctors a civill answer & to acquaint him where he had been after 9 of y<sup>e</sup> Clock & also to pay his 40<sup>s</sup> for his refractoriness was y<sup>e</sup> occasion of all. So

<sup>2</sup> Henry Smith was elected from Westminster to Oxford 1656, and matriculated from Christ Church 23 July in that year. He proceeded B.A. 1659-60, M.A. 1662, was junior proctor 1670, proceeded B.D. 1671-2, D.D. 1674, became canon of Christ Church 1675, on the translation of Bishop Compton from Oxford to London, was vicar of Holme Lacy, co. Hereford, 1662-9, rector of Burthorpe, co. Gloucester, 1688 till his death 21 Oct. 1702. His name as treasurer of Christ Church was inscribed on Great Tom when it was re-cast. He was son of John Smyth sometime alderman and mayor of Oxford, and a member of the long parliament; and was one of the commissioners appointed 1685 by John Dolben archbishop of York to examine the fellows of Queen's about a decree that was made by a majority of them against Provost Halton.

<sup>3</sup> Richard Busby, the celebrated schoolmaster, elected to Oxford from Westminster 1624, matriculated from Christ Church 10 Feb. 1625-6, aged 18; proceeded B.A. 1628, M.A. 1631, headmaster of Westminster 1638, prebendary of Wells 1639, D.D. 1660, canon of Westminster 1660, died 1695, and buried in Westminster Abbey. The Proposals for his catechetical lecture were before the University for some years, and were finally rejected by Convocation on the grounds here set forth by Dixon 17 June, 1682. (See Wood's Life and Times, ed. Clark, iii. 21, 22.)

<sup>4</sup> The lecturer was to be given a veto on the D.D. degree of those who had attended his lectures. The consent of the Regius Professor of Divinity for inception in Divinity had been from early times required. (See Clark's Register of the University of Oxford, II. i. 143.)

<sup>7</sup> It is from collections in this sense of abstracts, or summaries, that the academic use of the word for a terminal examination seems to be derived. The former use is now obsolete but was common in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Murray (s.v.) among other passages quotes from F. At Oriel College in 1857, on Thursdays, declamations alternately in Latin and English were practised in the College hall before the assembled undergraduates in the presence of the Dean, two undergraduates taking the different sides on some controversial subject. <sup>1</sup> Robert Bradley, born at Bonefire (?) Westmorland, son of Roger, entered Queen's College as battler 22 Apr. matriculated 4 May, 1668, aged 15. He proceeded B.A. 19 Feb. 1673-4, and M.A. 27 June, 1677. He was clected fellow 15 March, 1678-9. There is no evidence in the College Register of his having been a tabcrdar. He continued fellow till the autumn of 1687, when he was promoted to the Rectory of Church Oakley, near Basingstoke, Hants. He died there in 1721, his successor Samuel Read having been instituted 13 Oct.

KIND Sr :

In my last by Burnyatts<sup>3</sup> I forgott to acquaint you that I rec<sup>d</sup> Ten pounds by him, but I shall give you an acc<sup>t</sup> of it when 'tis disburs'd. Yor Son is both frugall & studious, & all that I find amiss in him is

I hope disputeing in y<sup>e</sup> Hall<sup>1</sup> will put some briskness & mettall into him, & teach him to wrangle: He is one of the three that yo<sup>r</sup> Nephew Fletcher<sup>2</sup> calls his Juniors in y<sup>e</sup> Hall, So that they must endeavour to baffle him & then heel cease to stand upon his Seniority or att least to triumph in it. He deserves also all the encouragem<sup>t</sup> that may be, because he is willing to do anything & frequents Prayers & Disputa<sup>t</sup>ions as much any one, though of much less Quality & honour than himselfe. He has another fellow-Pupill of y<sup>e</sup> same order<sup>3</sup> that keepest pace with him, & they have combin'd to sett patterns to all y<sup>e</sup> rest of their Table: I hope theyl continue this their emula<sup>t</sup>ion, & that yo<sup>r</sup> Son will also excite others of his degree to y<sup>e</sup> same excellency & p<sup>e</sup>fection. <sup>1</sup> See n. 1, p. 263.

<sup>2</sup> See n. 1, p. 237. There are four names in the College entrance-book between Fletcher and Henry Fleming, so it is not possible to say who were the Juniors who ought to endeavour to 'baffle' him. Baffle seems to be here used in one of its earlier but now obsolete senses of 'treat with contumely,' or 'confound.' See Murray, s.v.

<sup>3</sup> This may have been Patricius Highmore, who was a year senior to Henry, having entered as batler Oct. 14, who was admitted taberdar on the same day, 16 Dec. 1682, and died in the following year.

<sup>5</sup> Edmund Halley entered Queen's College as commoner 25 June, and matriculated 24 July, 1673. His father's name was Edmond. He was born at Haggerston, 29 Oct. 1656. He was fellow and secretary of the Royal Society, Savilian professor of Astronomy 1703-42, created D.C.L. 16 Oct. 1710. He was made astronomer-royal in 1720, and died 14 Jan. 1741-2. He lived at one time in the brick house in New College Lane which stands back from the road, next to the cloister, afterwards occupied by Bishop Jacobson and by Professor Donkin. He was educated at St. Paul's School. He first observed in 1680 the comet which bears his name. His life is in D. N. B.

He returned to Dantzic, started an Astronomical Observatory in his house, where he first studied the phases of the moon, and then enlarged his instruments so as to be able to study the fixed stars. He died on his birthday in 1687. His collected works presented by him are in the Bodleian Library, as I am informed by Dr. Macray. See also Annals of the Bodleian Library, ed. 2, p. 134.

<sup>3</sup> This is The Answer of the Chancellor, Masters and Scholars of the University of Oxford, To the Petition, Articles of Grievance, and Reasons of the City of Oxon. Presented to the Honourable Committee, for Regulating the University of Oxford the 24. of July 1649. Oxford, Printed by H. Hall Printer to the University. 1649. (Bodl. sm. 4<sup>o</sup>.) The petition of the Major, Aldermen, Bayliffs, and Commonalties of the City of Oxon, is prefixed. A second edition was issued in 1678, and is probably the book referred to by Dixon. The title-page is the same with the addition of 'The second Edition,' and 'and are to be sold by Ric. Davis.' Wood's copy has on the title-page in his handwriting 'By Dr. Gerard Langbaine of Qu. Coll. an. 1649. This Edition was published at Oxon 7 Feb. 1677 upon certaine differences then on foot between y<sup>e</sup> University & Towne.' It was reprinted 1690 by James Harrington in his Defence of the Rights and Priviledges of the University of Oxford.

<sup>4</sup> Gerard Langbaine (1609–58) son of William, b. at Barton Kirke, Westmorland, and educated at Blencow School, entered Queen's College as hateller 17 Apr. 1625, elected 'in munus servientis ad mensam' 17 June, 1626, taberdar 10 June, 1630, fellow 30 Oct. 1633, provost 11 March, 1645–6. He matriculated 21 Nov. 1628, proceeded B.A. 24 July, 1630, M.A. 27 June, 1633, D.D. 22 June, 1646. He held a Dudley Exhibition (see n. 2, p. 119) from Oriel College from 6 Oct. 1627, to 3 July, 1630. He was elected keeper of the archives 1644. He was an active royalist, but was befriended by Philip Herbert, Earl of Pembroke, and retained by the parliamentary visitors in his provostship. At the time of his election as provost Oxford was surrounded by armies and it was impossible to obtain his confirmation by the archbishop of York, and so by the King's permission he was confirmed by the bishop of Oxford, and Drs. Steward, Fell and Ducke. He published an edition of Longinus, and a number of other works with and without his name, and left a large collection of notes in MS. He married Elizabeth Sunnybank, widow of Christopher Potter his predecessor in the provostship. One of his sons Gerard was the author of An Account of the English Dramatic Poets.

not, if I did, you may dispose of them as you think fitt. As for the other loose papers, youll quickly find what they are about. The greatest Newes I have to send you is that Mr Walker <sup>1</sup> (Master of University College) who put out the life of King Alfred <sup>2</sup>, & writt the education of young Gentlemen <sup>3</sup> & some Añotations on y<sup>e</sup> Scriptures <sup>4</sup> is much suspected of late to be a Papist, & there are severall things given in ag<sup>t</sup> him to y<sup>e</sup> Parliament by y<sup>e</sup> Arch-Deacon of Midle-Sex <sup>5</sup>: & that w<sup>ch</sup> adds some p<sup>b</sup>ability to y<sup>e</sup> thing is his refuseall to take y<sup>e</sup> oath of Allegiance & Supremacy all along. If he should happen to prove a Papist in good earnest it would reflect mightily upon y<sup>e</sup> University. It seemes y<sup>e</sup> Parliam<sup>t</sup> have taken notice that severall great Witts of both or Nurseries have been spirited away lately by them <sup>6</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> Obadiah Walker, matriculated from University College 5 April, 1633, son of William of Worsborodale, Yorkshire, pleb., aged 16. He proceeded B.A. 1635, M.A. 1638. He was fellow of his college 1635-48, and was expelled for non-submission to the parliamentary visitors. He was restored to his fellowship 1660, and was master of the college from 1676 till 1688, when he was deprived as a papist, and imprisoned for a time in the Tower of London. He died 31 January, 1699, aged 86, and was buried in St. Pancras church.

Anno Dom. MDCLXXVIII. (Bodl. fol.) According to Wood (Athenæ, iv. 443) this translation was done by Obadiah Walker, but Hearn in his English edition of the Life, p. 225, says it was made by Christopher Wase, superior beadle of the civil law. Walker, in any case, added notes and appendices, in which, says Wood, 'he endeavours to make K. Alfred founder of his coll., but altogether mistaken.'

<sup>4</sup> A Paraphrase and Annotations upon The Epistles of St. Paul written to the Romans, Corinthians and Hebrews. At the Theater in Oxford. M.DC.LXXV. Each Epistle is dealt with separately and has a half-title. A Paraphrase upon St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans. The First of Epistle of S. Paul to the Corinthians Paraphras'd, and so on. The pagination is continuous 1-167 to the end of II Corinthians. The Paraphrase upon the Hebrews is separately paged 1-55. Probably at a later date he continued his work with separate half-titles for Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, I Thessalonians, II Thessalonians, The two Epistles to Timothy, The two Epistles to Titus and Philemon. Curiously enough these are paged continuously 169-348. They were republished by Bishop Jacobson when he was Regius Professor of Divinity in 1852.

I hope their late Hellish projects will' make us proof ag<sup>t</sup> al their enchantm<sup>ts</sup> for y<sup>e</sup> future. He remained in the Tower but a few hours, for Charles with unusual energy and decision lost no time in apprising the commons that he had ordered his secretary's release. At the same time the offensive commissions were recalled. Williamson's continuance in office, however, was not considered altogether desirable (cf. Wood, Life and Times, ii. 438). The newsletters on 10 Feb. announced "Sir Joseph Williamson is turned out, but is to be repaid what his secretaryship cost him." As a matter of fact he received from his successor, Sunderland, 6,000*l.* and five hundred guineas.' (D. N. B., s.v.)

<sup>4</sup> Probably Christopher Philipson, of Crook or Thwatterden Hall in the parish of Kendal. He was knight of the shire for Westmorland from 1679 to 1681, in which year he was knighted by Charles II at Windsor. He belonged to a younger branch of the family settled at Calgarth. His grandmother was a Hudlestone of Millom, with which family the Flemings intermarried more than once, hence probably he is called cousin below, CLVI, p. 272.

* <sup>1</sup> Cripps, in his Old English Plate, ed. 3, 1886, has a good picture of the Queen's College horn, but his account of it has several blunders. It is never called 'poculm caritatis,' though these words are used when it is passed round on the greater festivals of the college, nor is it likely that it was ever used in the college as a trumpet. The college was to be summoned to dinner 'per clarionem' not 'per cornu.' The horn is formed of buffalo-horn, is 19½ inches high, the horn being 25 inches long, and is said to have been presented to the college by 'Rob. Eglesfeild o<sup>r</sup> worthy found.' Cripps thinks the cover with the eagle to be of later work than the bands of the horn. In a list preserved of 'plate in D<sup>r</sup> Francis's time,' who was provost 1561-3, it appears as 'j bugle horn with a cover.'

<sup>3</sup> The Wilsons of Dallam Tower in the parish of Beethom, Westmorland, were closely connected with the Flemings. Edward, here mentioned, had for his second wife Dorothy Kirkby, sister of D. F.'s mother. Edward, his son, was about this time married to Catherine, D. F.'s daughter, and his son, a third Edward, married Dorothy, Sir William Fleming's daughter and D. F.'s granddaughter. This £500 must not be confounded with a similar sum bequeathed by Henry Wilson of Underley near Kirkby Lonsdale, the founder of the Wilson Exhibitions in Queen's College.

The last I sent you was by yo<sup>r</sup> Cosen Philipson of Crooke<sup>1</sup>, whom I do not question but you have seen ere this, if he gott well home as I hope he did. These are to wish you as happy a New year, as the Under Graduates have done to us already in their large bundle of Epistles<sup>2</sup>, in some of which they wish us the enjoym<sup>t</sup> of our health & happiness ad Græcas Calendas: & in others that wee may be free from the headach & all other pangs (but that of y<sup>e</sup> braine, whereby they suppose us capable of being deliver'd of some rare off-spring or

But wee dare not pmiss ourselves thus much in these wavering & troublesome times, wherein all things are in danger of being turn'd topsie turvie. According to y<sup>e</sup> present prospect of things this seemes to be y<sup>e</sup> condition of our affaires, & unless the Parliamt<sup>t</sup> sitt againe att y<sup>e</sup> time appointed<sup>2</sup>, the issue is like to be dreadfull. The late prorogation (brought to pass as is said by the Dutchess of Yorke<sup>3</sup>) put us all in a fright, & 'tis said that y<sup>e</sup> King himself was not well pleas'd in his serious reflections upon it afterwards, which if true, will I hope be a meanes of preventing y<sup>e</sup> like for y<sup>e</sup> future: But I need not furnish you with any Politick remarks. All that I shall add more is That a new Booke of the B<sup>p</sup> of Lincolnes<sup>4</sup> is lately come out, 'Tis writt by way of a letter & licens'd by y<sup>e</sup> B<sup>p</sup> of London<sup>5</sup>, The designe of it is to show the inconsistency of Popery with Monarchicall Govern<sup>t</sup> & particularly with ours of this Nation. It came downe to Oxõn last night. The price of it is 2<sup>s</sup> in sheets, though 'tis but a thin Quarto.

<sup>1</sup> The Platonic year, or the great year, is a period of time determined by the revolution of the eqninoxes; or the space wherein the stars and constellations return to their former places, in respect of the equinoxes. The Platonic year, according to Tycho Brahe is 25816; according to Ricciolus 25920; according to Cassini 24800 years. This period, which is more than five times the age of the world, once accomplished, it was an opinion among the ancients, that the world was to begin anew, and the same series of things to turn over again. (Chambers' Cyclopædia.) Dr. Murray kindly gave me this quotation. Like the Greek Calends the Platonic year seems used for a date in the future impossibly far off.

<sup>6</sup> There are two earldoms in the O'Brien family, Thomond and Inchiquin, both whose heirs seem at this time to have borne the courtesy title of Lord O'Brien. This is certainly Williamson's stepson Donogh, grandson of the seventh Earl of Thomond, baptised 16 Sep. 1663 at Great Billing, son of Henry Lord O'Brien or Ibrackan, by Katharine, Baroness Clifton de Leighton Bromswold in her own right, only surviving sister and heir of Charles Stuart, Duke of Richmond, the last of the line of Stuart nearest to the royal line, the husband of 'la belle Stnart.' The young Lord O'Brien married in 1682, Sophia sixth daughter of Thomas first Duke of Leeds, and was drowned 5 May in the same year in the ship 'Gloucester' while attending James, Duke of York, to Scotland.

<sup>1</sup> John Edisbury, b. at Pentreclawdd, co. Denbigh, son of John, esq., matriculated from Brasenose College 9 Nov. 1661, aged 15; proceeded B.A. 1665, M.A. 1668, B.C.L. and D.C.L. 1672, an advocate of Doctors' Commons 1672, a master in chancery 1684-1709. He and Finch were the successful candidates, he getting 245 votes and Finch 201 while Lamphire got 209. The vicechancellor continuing the election so that those who had only given one vote might give a second if they pleased, Finch was returned as elected with Edisbury, Lamphire eventually acquiescing. See the whole story in Wood's Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 443. Wood disliked Edisbury and says he 'carried it by the juniors and potmen, he being one himself.'

<sup>2</sup> Henry Yerbury, b. at Trowbridge, Wilts, son of Edward, matriculated from Magdalen Hall 20 May, 1642, aged 14, demy of Magdalen College 1642-7, fellow 1647-8, when he was turned out of his fellowship by the parliamentary visitors for non-submission. He had proceeded B.A. 7 Feb. 1645-6. During the Commonwealth he went abroad, became D.M. of Padua in 1654, was restored to his fellowship 1660, which he held till 25 March, 1686, when he died and was buried in the College chapel. Bloxam (v. 176 sqq.) has some details about his college squabbles. He became D.M. of Oxford 1658-9, and of Cambridge 1668.

<sup>3</sup> John Lamphire, b. at Winchester, son of George, entered Winchester College as a scholar in 1627, was elected scholar of New College, whence he matriculated 19 Aug. 1634, aged 20; was fellow 1636-48, when he was bursar, and expelled by the parliamentary visitors, was restored in 1660, proceeded B.A. 1638, M.A. 1641-2, was created D.M. 1660. He was made Camden professor of ancient history 1660, principal of New Inn Hall 1662, and transferred to Hart Hall 1663, holding the principalship with the professorship till his death 30 March, 1688, aged 74. He was buried in the chapel of New College. He was really elected burgess of the University on this occasion with Dr. Edisbury, but eventually acquiesced in the return of Heneage Finch. He was Antony Wood's doctor, and is described by him as a public-spirited man, active in promoting street-repairs and the like.

<sup>6</sup> Laurence Hyde, son of Edward, Earl of Clarendon, afterwards Earl of Rochester, had now been burgess of the University since 1661. He was first Lord of the Treasury 1679-84, and again 1685-7, the principal instrument of the high Tory reaction during the last years of Charles II. He was made M.A. by diploma 4 Feb. 1660-1, and created D.C.L. 1700. He was lord-lieutenant of Ireland 1700-3, and high steward of the University 1709-11. He died suddenly 2 May, 1711, and was buried in Westminster Abbey.

<sup>1</sup> Heneage Finch, second son of the first Earl of Nottingham, educated at Westminster and at Christ Church, where he matriculated 18 Nov. 1664, aged 15. He was barrister of the Inner Temple, where he was known as 'the silver-tongued Finch,' K.C. 1677, solicitor-general 1678-9, conducted Lord Russell's prosecution 1683, 'with more of a vicious eloquence than law,' removed by James II 1686, one of the counsel for the seven bishops 1688, M.P. for the University of Oxford 1679, for Guildford 1685, and for the University again in 1689 and in subsequent parliaments except 1698 till he was made Baron of Gernsey or Guernsey 1703, and privy councillor. He was created Earl of Aylesford 1714, was for a short time Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and died 1719. His father, of the same name, 'the Chancellour,' was a prominent politician in the reign of Charles II, and figures as Amri in Dryden's Absalom and Achitophel. He was created Earl of Nottingham in 1681, and died in 1682. For the robbery of his mace see n. 5, p. 219. The lives of both father and son are in D. N. B.

<sup>5</sup> Gilbert Wharton entered Queen's College as a batler 11 May, and matriculated 26 October, 1660. He proceeded B.A. 15 Oct. 1664, M.A. 7 May, 1668, B.D. 19 July, 1677. He was elected taberdar 23 June, 1663, fellow 4 March, 1668-9, and admitted the same day. He was camerarius in 1674-5, and thesaurarius 1676-7, and was rector of St. Clement's, Oxford, from 1674, till his death, while still a fellow, in February 1678-9. He was buried in the old chapel.

<sup>6</sup> This may be either (1) Edwin Sandys of Esthwaite, son of Samuel (for whom see n. 3, p. 16) who 'lived some time at Kendal in Westmorland, where he granted some land to the free-school there, which is still known by the name of Sandys's close or field' (West's Antiquities of Furness, ed. W. Close, Ulverston, 1805, p. 331); or (2) Thomas Sandes, of Kendal, who founded an exhibition at Queen's College for a scholar from Kendal (Nicholson's Annals of Kendal, p. 192). Wharton appears from A Boke off Recorde of Kirkbiekendall to have been a not uncommon name at Kendal in the seventeenth century.

<sup>8</sup> William Rooke, b. at Workington, Cumberland, entered Queen's College 11 Oct. as batler, and matriculated 22 Oct. 1669, aged 17, son of J. He proceeded B.A. 16 May, 1674; M.A. 30 Oct. 1677; B.D. 12 Apr. 1690. His election as taberdar is omitted from the College Register. He was elected and admitted fellow 15 March, 1678-9. He was camerarius from 1683 to 1685, and thesaurarius 1690-1 and again 1693-4. He was vicar of Plumstead 1691, which apparently did not vacate his fellowship, and being senior fellow was presented by the College to the rectory of Hedley, Hants, in 1695.

<sup>9</sup> Two persons of the name of Robert Sheepherd entered Queen's College as batlers on successive days, 25 and 26 March, 1670. They both matriculated 17 May, 1670; were both elected 'in pauperes pueros (seu scholares de taberdâ)' 10 Dec. 1674, as Shepheard sen. and Shepheard jun.; and both proceeded to the degree of B.A. 6 Feb. 1674-5. The senior was son of Christopher, was born at Kentmire in Westmorland, and was 19 at the time of his matriculation. The junior who is the person mentioned in the text was born at Caldbeck, in Cumberland, son of Richard, and was 18 when he was matriculated. He proceeded M.A. 1 July, 1678, and was elected fellow, as Dixon says, with the four others 15 March, 1678-9. He only enjoyed his fellowship for a year, his name disappears from the Long Roll for the fourth quarter of 1679-80, and administration of his property was granted at Oxford 8 Mar. 1680.

<sup>1</sup> George Tully was born at Carlisle. His father was Isaac, a merchant and mayor of Carlisle, who wrote 'A Narrative of the Siege of Carlisle in 1644 and 1645,' which is one of Jefferson's Carlisle Tracts. Isaac's will is in Cumbd. & Westmd. Archaeological Transactions, xi. 114 sqq., proved 1661, in which his son George is mentioned as not yet of age. George entered Queen's College as batler 11 May, and matriculated 17 May, 1670, aged 17. He proceeded B.A. 6 Feb. 1674-5, M.A. 1 July, 1678. He was elected taberdar 10 Dec. 1674, and fellow, as here described, 15 Mareh, 1678-9. He continued fellow till the middle of 1682. He was chaplain to Richard Sterne, archbishop of York (1664-83), who had been bishop of Carlisle (1660-4), was canon and subdean of York 1680, preacher of St. Nicholas in Newcastle-upon-Tyne, rector of Gateshead, co. Durham, 1691 until his death 1695. There is an unfavourable account of him in Hearne, ed. Doble, ii. 94; and a favourable one in Wood's Athenæ, ed. Bliss, iv. 423. There is a notice of him also in D. N. B. at the end of the life of his more celebrated uncle Thomas, who was fellow of Queen's 1643, and principal of St. Edmund Hall 1658.

<sup>3</sup> Richard Compton, entered Queen's College as batler 15 March, and matriculated 26 Mareh, 1669, aged 16. He was son of Richard and born at Brough Sowerby in Westmorland, proceeded B.A. 19 February, 1673, M.A. 27 June, 1677. He was, it would seem from Dixon's statement, a taberdar of the College, but his election is not in the College Register, which was at this time kept with less than its usual accuracy, was born at Greystock, Cumberland. His father's name was Miles. He proceeded B.A. 14 May, 1672; M.A. 1 July, 1675; B.D. 21 Oct. 1684. His election as taberdar is not in the College Register. He was elected fellow 3 Feb. 1675-6. He was senior proctor of the University in 1681, with Richard Oliver of St. John's as his colleague. It was at this time usual to elect one of the Proctors, usually the Senior, to White's Professorship of Moral Philosophy, and Halton seems to have held it as a sinecure from 1682 to 1687. He was camerarius in 1681-2, and thesaurarius from 1682 to 1686. He vacated his fellowship at the end of 1683 on his promotion to the rectory of Sulhamstead Abbots with Sulhamstead Bannister, Berks. Foster (Al. Ox. s.v.) says he was made prebendary of St. David's in 1682, where Timothy had been prebendary 1665-71, and was still canon residentiary since 1668 and archdeacon of Brecon since 1671. A William Halton held Timothy's prebend of Clydey from 1673 to 1688, but John's name is not in the lists in Jones and Freeman's History and Antiquities of St. David's, London, 1856. Le Neve does not give the prebendaries before 1714.

<sup>8</sup> Sir John Lowther, of Lowther, second baronet, son of Col. John Lowther, eldest son of the first baronet by his first wife, Mary, daughter of Sir Richard Fletcher of Hutton, was born 25 April, 1655, at Haekthorpe Hall, in Lowther parish, Westmorland. His mother was Elizabeth, daughter, and coheiress of Sir Henry Bellingham of Levens, in eo. Westmorland, bart. He entered Queen's College as Upper Commoner 23 June, the same day that William Lancaster entered as batler, and matriculated 12 July, 1670. Some letters concerning his entrance and stay at Queen's College are in Appendix K. He succeeded his grandfather in the haronety in 1675, was barrister-at-law Inner Temple 1677, M.P. for Westmorland in seven parliaments between 1677 and 1696, and was a zealous promoter of the Revolution. He was made a privy concillor 19 Feb. 1688-9, raised to the peerage as Viscount Lonsdale, and Baron Lowther 28 May, 1696, and died 10 July, 1700.

<sup>2</sup> Thomas Tullie was horn at Carlisle 22 July, 1620, entered Queen's College as batler in Michaelmas Term, and matriculated 17 Octoher, 1634. His father's name was George, and he was brother to Isaac the mayor, who wrote the account of the siege. He proceeded B.A. 4 July, 1639, M.A. 1 Nov. 1642, B.D. 23 Jnly, 1657, and D.D. 9 Nov. 1660. He was elected taherdar 16 May, 1639, fellow 23 Novemb. 1643, and principal of Edmund Hall 22 Dec. 1658. He was presented to the rectory of Grittleton in Wiltshire in 1657, hnt was allowed to keep his fellowship with it till his election to Edmund Hall, because it was doubtful whether he would get any emolument from the living. He was Dudley Exhibitioner at Oriel College (see n. 2, p. 119) from 1636 to 1639. He was master of Tethury grammar school, chaplain in ordinary to Charles II, and dean of Ripon from April 1675 until his death on the following 14 January. He submitted to the parliamentary visitors. He wrote a poem in French in the volume of Oxford Poems on the return of Queen Mary from Holland in 1643. His life is in Athenæ, and in D. N. B.

<sup>3</sup> Bernard Gilpin, son of Alan, born at Strickland, Westmorland, entered Qneen's College as hatler in Jannary, and matriculated 13 Feb. 1673-4, aged 18. He procceded B.A. 5 July, 1678.

<sup>4</sup> 'An entry in the Register Book' of St. Bees School 'shows that on June 29th, 1679, Mr. Bernard Gilpin produced an Instrument to the governors present, whereby it appeared that Timothy Halton, the then Provost, had appointed him school-master. I have striven in vain to find his position in the Gilpin family, to which his Christian name indicates, heyond doubt, that he must have belonged. His occupancy of his office was very brief. He was hurried at St. Bees, May 19th, 1681.' (Jackson's Papers and Pedigrees, ii. 205.) He was perhaps the son of Alan and Dorothy Strickland who married him as her second husband and whose maiden name is unknown. If so he was grandson of Martin, son of William, the eldest brother of the Apostle of the North. (See Jackson's Pedigree of the Gilpins in his edition of the Memoirs of Dr. Richard Gilpin, Lond. 1879.)

Mr Naylor<sup>1</sup> (a newcastle man) fellow of University College. So that yor Ambassadour comes attended wth a noble retinue: Being so honoured I am afraid heel scarce condescend to be a poor Carrier. The greatest University Newes I have to send you by him is, That the University has lately bought in some houses close by the Theater<sup>2</sup> where they designe to build an elaboratory<sup>3</sup> & a Repository for John Tredaskins<sup>4</sup> (& other) Rarities. The houses being pull'd down, & some of them bordering too near upon Exeter Boghouse; it unfortunately fell out that in digging they undermin'd y<sup>e</sup> said necessary house & caus'd such an inundation that some of had much ado to escape wth y<sup>e</sup> safety of their lives, & were glad to leave their clothes swimming behind them. 'Tis very offensive still to y<sup>e</sup> places entered Queen's College as batler 3 July, 1675, having matriculated the previous day aged 16. He proceeded B.A. 17 July, 1680. If Dixon is using 'poor child' as the ordinary equivalent for taberdar, he must be another such whose election has been omitted in the College Register. The Entrance Book says he was Rector of Newnham, but he is rather with Foster (Al. Ox. s.v.) to be identified with the vicar of Uldale 1684-97, Addingham 1697-8, and Torpenhow 1698-1728, whose son Thomas was afterwards a member of the College. He exchanged Addingham for Torpenhow with Nicolson afterwards bishop of Carlisle, and rebuilt the vicarages of both places. His father Edward was perhaps the person who sold to Ann, Countess of Pembroke, Dorset and Montgomery, the Rent or Freeland with which she endowed the Mayor of Appleby to repair the Church, Town Hall, Schoolhouse, and Bridge of Appleby. See Nicolson's Miscellany Accounts of the Diocese of Carlisle, i, 77, 79, 90, 234, where he calls Thomas Brother Nevinson, as husband of his Sister Grace. (Bishop Nicolson's Diaries, Cumbd. & Westmd. Transactions, New Series, i. 19.)

<sup>1</sup> John Naylor, born at Newcastle, son of the Rev. Thomas, vicar of St. Nicholas, Newcastle-on-Tyne, matriculated from University College 12 July, 1672, aged 16. He proceeded B.A. 1676, M.A. 1678-9. He was fellow of the College, and in 1684 prevented the election at Obadiah Walker's instigation of Thomas Deane by unexpectedly returning to College 'fere fortuito ad mediam noctem ante diem electionis.' (Carr's History of University College, p. 138.) Hearne (ed. Doble, i. 85) does not approve of him, 'a Huge great lubberly Fellow' only fit in Dr. Radcliffe's opinion for cleaving wood.

<sup>4</sup> D. F. had seen these 'Rarities' in London (see p. 60, and n. 5 there, and p. 80). This was the beginning of the old Ashmolean Museum. The site cost the University 560*l.* (See Wood's Life and Times, ed. Clark, iv. 78.) Elias Ashmole offered his curiosities to the University in 1677, and the Museum was formally opened by the Duke and Duchess of York and the Princess Anne 21 May, 1683. (Wood's Life and Times, ed. Clark, iii. 55.)

adjacent, & 'tis possible y<sup>e</sup> Terræ-filius<sup>1</sup> may make a Nosegay of it att y<sup>e</sup> Act. Mr Norris of Exeter<sup>2</sup> & Mr Barrow of Corpus Christi<sup>3</sup> are lately chose Proctors for y<sup>e</sup> ensueing year. You may see in a Cycle<sup>4</sup> att y<sup>e</sup> end of y<sup>e</sup> Statutes what Colleges those officers are to be of for these 20 yeares & upwards. one of them is to be of our College 2 years hence<sup>5</sup>. Wee have an account out of Scotland of a barbarous & horrid assassinacon lately comitted upon y<sup>e</sup> Archbishop of St Andrews<sup>6</sup>. The Presbyterians in both kingdoms begin to drive furiously & high. I wish y<sup>e</sup> Church well secur'd from y<sup>e</sup> Kirk as well

<sup>3</sup> Hugh Barrow, matriculated from Christ Church 3 July, 1663, elected scholar of Corpus Christi College 6 Oct. 1663, fellow 1673, B.A. 1666-7, M.A. 1669-70, B.D. 1681, 'rector of Heyford Purcells, or Heyford ad Pontem near Bister in Oxfordshire, hath written A brief account of the Nullity of K. James's Title, and of the Obligation of the present Oaths of Allegiance. Lond. 1689 qu. He is a learned man and able to write other things, which would, without doubt, be more pleasing to the sober part of scholars.' (Wood, Fasti, ii. 380.)

<sup>4</sup> The two Proctors of the University were anciently elected in Convocation; but, the election having become very tumultuous, the method was changed by an ordinance of King Charles I, and from the year 1629 the choice was made within the several Colleges according to a cycle of twenty-three years. (Historical Register, p. 28.) In the original edition of the Laudian Statutes the Cycle is twice referred to, but is not set out. In the quarto edition of the Statutes published in 1768 the Cycle appears after the Statuta Aularia which were at the end of the original printed code. The Epinomis, which is printed at the end of Griffiths and Shadwell's edition, is added in writing at the end of the vellum copy of the original code belonging to Queen's College. But the Book of Statutes to which Dixon here refers is probably not the full body of them but the 'Statuta Selecta è Corpore Statutorum Vniversitatis Oxon. Vt in promptu & ad manum sint, quæ magis ad usum (præcipuè Iuniorum) facere videntur. Excusa cum Licentiâ Typis Guil: Turner, Typographi Vniversitatis, pro Guil: Webb, An. Dom. 1638,' published anonymously by Thomas Crosfield, Fellow of Queen's College. It was reprinted with the title Parecholæ, siue Excerpta è Corpore Statutorum Vniversitatis Oxoniensis, in 1661, 1674, 1682, 1693, and frequently in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries; and in the middle of the latter century was given to undergraduates at matriculation. In the edition of 1671, which was probably the one to which Dixon was referring, the ordo sive series electionis Procuratorum, followed by the Statuta Carolina which prescribed it, comes at the end of the book, after the Epinomis.

<sup>8</sup> This seems to be the Bateman mentioned below in Dixon's Account, No. CLXXXII, p. 315. If he was a carrier, he probably belonged to the family of Bateman living at this time at Bleas Hall, about four miles from Kendal on the upper road to Kirkby Lonsdale. Henry Bateman, whose name is carved over one of the doorways at Bleas, was a carrier to and from London and York with pack-horses, for which there was extensive stabling upon the premises. He might, of course, have been possibly an employé of Mr. Simpson, but his presence at Oxford renders sent it to London, soe that it was a litle longer in coming, and cost me 1<sup>s</sup> and 6<sup>d</sup> for the carrage of it from London, which he promised to pay. REV. THOMAS DIXON TO DANIEL FLEMING (2191).

WORTHY Sr:

These are only to acquaint you that wee are all well, & that upon y<sup>e</sup> good Newes of y<sup>e</sup> Scots being quell'd<sup>2</sup> wee are like to have an Act<sup>1</sup>, in wch Solemnity they may possibly receive a second brush & be assaulted by smartness of Witt & Dröllery as they have been already by dint of Sword, & I hope theyl not be able to meet wth another Indulgence after all, 'Tis pittie wee are but like to have one Terræfilius<sup>3</sup> to encounter with them & the Docters: heel be over-this unlikely. Bateman was a well-known name in Kendal at this time. There are monuments to members of the Blcase Hall family in Kendal church. Nicholas Bateman was a benefactor to Kendal church, and Henry to the chapel of Old Hutton in which township Blease Hall is situated. (See Nicholson's Annals of Kendal, 117, 219; Nicolson & Burn, i. 108; Bellasis' Westmorland Church Notes, ii. 5, 6.)

<sup>1</sup> There was an Act in 1679 on July 11, and twenty-three Cambridge masters of arts were incorporated after it. The programme is preserved in MS. Wood 276 A no. CCCXCXVIII, in the Bodleian Library. (Clark's Wood's Life and Times, ii. 456.)

'Tis said that one Mr Hamond<sup>2</sup> (the B<sup>r</sup> of Oxon's<sup>3</sup> chaplaine) has kist y<sup>e</sup> Kings hand for his Canons place & that he is like to carry it notwithstanding y<sup>e</sup> Caveat that the Earle of Anglesey<sup>4</sup> has put in upon y<sup>e</sup> account of Dr Squib<sup>5</sup> his Chaplain, for whom they say he p<sup>r</sup>tends a former grant of his Mat<sup>r</sup>s: & that the bussiness has been debated at y<sup>e</sup> Councill Table. <sup>1</sup> Thomas Lockey, elected from Westminster to Christ Church 1618, student 1621, B.A. 1622, M.A. 1625, B.D. 1634, deprived of his tutorship and suspended from preaching by the parliamentary visitors for 'a very scandalouse sermon before the Universitie' 1651, prebendary of Chichester 1639-51, and of Salisbury 1660, librarian of the Bodleian 1660-5, canon of Christ Church 1665, died 29 June, 1679, buried in the cathedral where there is a monument to him. His portrait is in the Bodleian. Wood (Fasti, ii. 242) speaks of his reputation as a collector. His epitaph says that he had been twice at Rome.

<sup>2</sup> Wood says that the news of Lockey's death was concealed 'to give Hammond time to ride to London to get the canonry' (Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 455). John Hammond was elected from Westminster to Christ Church 1658, proceeded B.A. 1662, M.A. 1664, B.D. 1679, D.D. 1680. He had been chaplain to William Fuller, Barlow's predecessor in the bishopric of Lincoln, and promoted by him to a prebend at Lincoln, and to the archdeaconry of Huntingdon. He resigned his archdeaconry in 1701 on his appointment to the rectory of Chalfont St. Giles', Bucks. He was installed canon of Christ Church 8 July, 1679, and died 25 May, 1723, aged 83. He gave to Christ Church the statue of Bishop Fell which has been replaced in the north-east corner of Tom Quad by a new one given by Dean Liddell, and the bust of Dean Aldrich formerly in the chapter house, now in the library.

<sup>4</sup> Arthur Annesley, Viscount Valentia and Baron Mountmorris in the peerage of Ireland, was created Earl of Anglesey and Baron Annesley 1661. He was born in Dublin, educated at Magdalen College, Oxford (see Bloxam, ii. p. cvi), was M.P. for co. Radnor 1645-53. He acted as Commissioner for the parliament for the government of Ireland, but after the execution of Charles I changed sides. Burnet calls him 'a man of a grave deportment.' He was Lord Privy Seal 1673-82, and died 6 Apr. 1686.

<sup>2</sup> Henry Beeson was elected scholar of Winchester 1644, fellow of New College 1649, proceeded B.C.L. 1653, D.C.L. 1661. He refused to submit to the parliamentary visitors and was expelled. He was headmaster of Winchester 1658-79, and warden of New College from 1679 till his death in 1701. In spite of his non-submission, for which see Burrows' Register of the Visitors, 56, 92, Wood (Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 460) says 'he had run with the times.'

favourite place of resort for invalids for a long time. Sir Christopher Hatton went there for his health in Queen Elizabeth's time.

<sup>1</sup> William Wright, son of Martin who had been a goldsmith and alderman of the city. He was the leading civic authority, a prominent Whig and obnoxious to the court. He was suspected of being privy to the Rye-house plot. His house and land attached to it stood on the city wall within what are now the precincts of Exeter College. He was M.P. for Oxford in the last three parliaments of Charles II's reign, and died 1693. According to Wood (Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 439) he was a great 'cocker.' On this occasion George Pudsey lost it but by 20 votes. He was recorder and unsuccessful Tory Candidate now and at the next election, but was returned to James II's parliament in 1685.

<sup>4</sup> Charles Perrott, of St. John's College (to be distinguished from the Oriel man of the same name, for whom see n. 1, p. 184), entered 1657, proceeded B.A. 1661, B.C.L. 1664, D.C.L. 1669. He was fellow of his college, an advocate of Doctors' Commons, and M.P. for the University in the last three parliaments of Charles II, and died 10 June, 1686. Hearne calls his epitaph in St. John's College chapel 'long, tedious and fulsome' (ed. Dobie, iii. 398). Wood (Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 460), describing the election says, 'the black pot men carried it for Perot, a thorough paced soaker.'

<sup>5</sup> William Oldys, son of a vicar of Adderbury who was killed by the parliamentary soldiers in 1644-5, entered Winchester as a scholar 1648, was fellow of New College 1655-71, B.C.L. 1661, D.C.L. 1667. He was an advocate of Doctors' Commons, and was again an unsuccessful candidate for Burgess of the University when Sir Leoline Jenkins died, being defeated by George Clarke of All Souls, the benefactor to Worcester College.

<sup>6</sup> James Lane, 'a young and conceited person and absent' (Wood's Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 460), son of George first viscount Lancsborough, matriculated as gentleman-commoner from Christ Church 1667, B.A. 1670 and created M.A. the same year. A surreptitious edition of 'Bchemoth,' which had been suppressed in 1668, appeared in 1679, and an autobiography in Latin verse, 'Vita carmine expressa.' In 1678 appeared the 'Decameron Physiologicum,' his last defence of his mathematical heresies on the subject of the squaring of the circle, the cubing of the sphere and the doubling of the cube, and a new edition of 'De Mirabilibus Pecci,' with an English translation by A Person of Quality. HONOUR<sup>d</sup>ED SR:

Though you happen'd to be from home att Burnyatts's coming up: yet I must not omitt this opportunity of his returne, & of acquainting you with y<sup>e</sup> small & inconsiderable transactions that have happen'd amongst us of late. The greatest whereof (as to Colledge affaires) is that wee have admitted one Mr Nicholson <sup>1</sup> (whom Sr Joseph has sent both into Germany & France) into our Society: hee's a Relation of Mr Skeltons <sup>2</sup> & was his Scholler first & mine afterwards, hee's so well skill'd in y<sup>e</sup> Saxon Language <sup>3</sup> that Sr Joseph has founded a Saxon Lecture in our Colledge which he reades every Wednesday in Terme time. <sup>1</sup> See n. 8, p. 228.

<sup>3</sup> This may have been the beginning of the movement which by the end of the century made the College 'a nest of Saxonists.' Edmund Gibson, bishop of London, and Christopher Rawlinson are espeecially mentioned by Wordsworth (Scholæ Academicæ, p. 159). Edward Thwaites, Regius Professor of Greek, did much to advance the study. 24 March, 1698-9, he writes to Wanley, 'We want Saxon Lexicons. I have fifteen young students in that language, and but one Somner for them all.' He had a great deal to do with the new edition of Somner brought ont by Thomas Benson, one of his pupils. Nieolson continued to show his interest in the language. He made Benson his chaplain, and assisted pecuniarily a brother of Thwaites who at the beginning of the next century was, as a taberdar, studying Saxon. See Nichols' Literary Anecdotes, iv. 141.

<sup>6</sup> Dixon seems here to be completely mistaken. No Canon of Christ Church had at this time recently died. Speed died at Godalming where he was vicar

Mr Godolphin<sup>1</sup> (lately fellow of All Souls College & now fellow of Eaton) is to succeed him, w<sup>ch</sup> if true will disgust the Christchurch men much that forreigners should breake in upon them. On Tuesday last after much expectation we had an election for poor children; and there only gott in hus three<sup>3</sup> who came last from Kendal school, we had some Seniours, but haueing noe hopes of getting in, they did not stand. I was very sorry to part with my Cousen Henry<sup>4</sup> soe soon, who went from Oxford on Saturday last.

REV. THOMAS DIXON TO DANIEL FLEMING (2239).

These are to wish you (& all wth you) a merry & happy new year, & to acquaint you that yo<sup>r</sup> son is listed upon the foundation being made poor child on Tuesday last<sup>1</sup>, about the time I hinted att in my last. He had 2 Juniors (that came up before him sc: Simson<sup>2</sup> & Harrison)<sup>3</sup> admitted with him, so that heel escape some hard service by y<sup>e</sup> bargaine<sup>4</sup>: He must now think of nothing but being Provost & mind his bussiness accordingly. The chancellours son of Carlile<sup>5</sup>

<sup>5</sup> The Chancellor of Carlisle 1667-83 was Roland Nicholls who was educated at St. Paul's School, from which he received an exhibition to Queen's College which he entered as batler in Easter Term 1630, matriculating 4 Nov. 1631, aged 17. He proceeded B.A. 23 Jan. 1633-4, M.A. 10 Nov. 1636. He was chaplain of Magdalen College 1641-7, and proceeded thence B.D. 17 June, 1646. According to Bloxam (ii. 134) he was ejected by the Parliamentary visitors 1647. At the restoration he was made rector of Aikton in Cumberland, and promoted to be chancellor of the diocese as above. His name is spelt Raughlin, for Roland, in the register of the matriculation of his son Thomas, who entered Queen's College as batler 7 May, matriculated 16 May, 1678, and proceeded B.A. 9 Feb. 1681-2. There is no mention of a Clerk among the junior members of the College in the Founder's Statutes.

(who was his senior) was made Clarke the same day, I suppose hees not design'd to be of the foundation any further being somewhat sickly. Yor Nephew<sup>1</sup> left us on y<sup>e</sup> 20th of this month, on which day I went along with him (and the other Gentleman of y<sup>e</sup> same Table whom I men<sup>c</sup>ond in my last) as farr as Windsor, whither yo<sup>r</sup> Nephews curiosity (not knowing when he might have an opportunity to see it again) led him to see the place & an house of y<sup>e</sup> Duke of Buckingham<sup>2</sup> about 6 miles of. I understand they got well to London after I parted wth them & I hope to hear hees safely arriv'd in y<sup>e</sup> North about a fortnight hence. The Bp of Oxōn<sup>3</sup> & our Provost<sup>4</sup> (as also the provost of Eaton<sup>5</sup>) wonders he should take such a journey att this time of y<sup>a</sup> year, but I endeavour'd to satisfy them all, & am very well satisfy'd myself with what Sr George writt, to whom I have writt att large this Post in answer thereto. I have given him my sentiments of his son & I hope heel answer them all. I must confess hees no great Scholler, yet hees very willing to learne, being studiously & vertuously inclin'd, & of so good a temper & obligeing deportment as none more. All the newes I have to send you is that M<sup>r</sup> Walker<sup>6</sup> of University College has a Book printing in y<sup>e</sup> Theater about y<sup>e</sup> Offices of Christ<sup>7</sup> & that the College has lately given the Provost a parsonage (call'd Wayhill)<sup>8</sup> lately vacant

<sup>7</sup> The reference is probably to Of the Benefits of onr Savionr, Jesus Christ to Mankind. 1 Cor. i. 31, 32. [Jesus Christ] is made unto us Wisdom, and Righteousness, and Sanctification, and Redemption. He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord [Jesns Christ.] At the Theater in Oxford, MDCLXXX. Wood, in his notice of Obadiah Walker (Athenæ, iv. 442), mentions it under the name of God's Benefits to Mankind, Oxon. 1680. qn., and says it had been ascribed to the Author of the Whole Duty of Man. Mr. Carr does not mention it in his list of Walker's works in D. N. B., s.v. The Book is however in the Bodleian Library, as above, and is catalogued under Walker's name.

REV. THOMAS DIXON TO DANIEL FLEMING (2245).

Oxon Jan. 22 <sup>7</sup>/<sub>8</sub>.

WORTHY SR:

I can do no less than returne you my hearty thanks by the Bearer of whom I rec<sup>d</sup> so kind a letter & so large a Token<sup>5</sup> from you.

<sup>2</sup> There is mention in The Sedbergh School Register, p. 47, of a William Thomson as Usher at Sedbergh in 1681, who may be the man mentioned here. I have not been able to identify him further unless he is the Mr. Thomson, headmaster of Kirkby Lonsdale school, who sent up William Rogerson to St. John's College, Cambridge, in 1697. (Admissions to St. John's College, Cambridge, pt. ii. p. 144.)

<sup>3</sup> Dalegarth, in Eskdale, the seat of the Stanleys. Edward Stanley was at this time the head of the family. He was high sheriff for Cumberland at the revolution and proclaimed King William III. His son, John, built Ponsonby Hall near Calder Bridge and removed thither from Dalegarth in 1687. His son, Edward, married George Fleming's youngest daughter. John may have been at Sedbergh now, and the Flemings have gone home with him for the holidays. There were Stanleys at Sedbergh early in the eighteenth century, and the register is at this time of course imperfect. It does not contain Daniel Fleming's name, and puts George's entrance between 1680 and 1690.

<sup>5</sup> See n. 1, p. 112. It would seem from D. F.'s accounts that all he sent by Simpson, who is 'the Bearer,' was five shillings to Henry. Simpson seems to have doubled (see CLXXX) the gift to Henry and to have added a large Token for Dixon.

If wee had not been a great company of good fellows which<sup>1</sup> should not have been able to gett it (and what Mr Simpson<sup>2</sup> added to it) spent: but wee conquer'd it at last, & hope that his Mat<sup>y</sup> & yo<sup>r</sup> self will be the healthier for our remembrance. The greatest newes I have to send you is, That upon a controversy w<sup>ch</sup> lately arose betwixt the University & the London Booksellers about Printing some sort of Bibles<sup>3</sup>, a debate was held a long time att Councill Table, but the bussiness was referr'd to the Co<sup>m</sup>mon Law, where 'tis verily beleiv'd the University Booksellers (whereof Moses Pit<sup>4</sup> is now the cheifest) will carry it, & thereby enjoy a liberty of Printing the said Bibles, the Prohibitory Act<sup>5</sup> whereby they were limited & restrain'd pro tempore being lately expired. A fuller account whereof, as also of the particulars relateing to yo<sup>r</sup> Queries about Moses Pits new Atlas<sup>6</sup>, is to be had in y<sup>e</sup> printed & written Papers w<sup>ch</sup> I have now also sent you, & which were co<sup>m</sup>municated to me by one who is concern'd in y<sup>e</sup> said Atlas, sc. by one Mr Hugh Tod<sup>7</sup> (the ministers Son of Hutton<sup>8</sup>)

<sup>3</sup> 'The matter in dispute is the right of printing Bibles in small forms.' (Letter from Bp. Fell to Abp. Saneroft, Gutch's Collectanea Curiosa, i. 270.) Other documents with reference to this dispute follow this letter in the same book.

<sup>4</sup> William Leak, Peter Parker, and Thomas Guy were Pitt's partners, and the four were authorised by the University 26 Sept. 1678 to print Bibles at the Theatre at Oxford. (Wood's Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 170.) The Company of London Stationers had purchased from the University in 1636, for three years, the 'forbearance of the printing of bibles' on the part of the University. Similar arrangements were made in 1661, 1664 and 1669. In 1672 the arrangement was not renewed, and in 1678 the University began to print bibles again.

<sup>6</sup> The first volume of Pitt's English Atlas appeared in 1680. Besides Nicolson and Todd, Richard Peers, Thomas Lane and Obadiah Walker had a hand in it. It was to have been in eleven volumes, but only four and the text of the fifth appeared. It was not successful from a pecuniary point of view. In 1685 Pitt was arrested on a suit for 1000*l.*, and he was imprisoned in the Fleet from 1689 to 1691. He died before the end of the century. His life is in D. N. B.

<sup>8</sup> Hutton in the Forest, five and a half miles north-west of Penrith, is the parish in which the Fletchers were lords of the manor. Hugh's father Thomas was ejected by Cromwell's sequestrators, and imprisoned at Carlisle. The crimes laid against him were, that he used the Lord's prayer, baptized children, visited the sick, and sometimes preached privately to his parishioners and others. He seems to have been restored after the accession of Charles II, as a young brother of Hugh's, who matriculated from Queen's in 1683, was born at Hinton in 1666.

<sup>1</sup> The Terms or Quarters for the purposes of account at Queen's College seem from early times to have been, as at present, Nat. (Nativity, from 21 Dec. to 25 March), Pasch. (Easter, from 25 March to 24 June), Vac. or Mag. Vac. (Long Vacation, from 24 June to 29 Sept.), and Mich. (Michaelmas, from 29 Sept. to 21 Dec.). In the earliest Long Rolls what is now called Vac. was called Joh. Bapt., i. e. St. John Baptist or Midsummer.

<sup>2</sup> Henry Fleming seems to have paid in 1679 the same amount for his chamber, 6s. 8d., as Henry Brougham in 1657. Brougham as a commoner paid a pound a quarter for tuition, while Fleming as a batler paid only ten shillings. The latter's charge for Bedmaker, Laundress and Barber also is only 6s. 6d., while Brougham paid 11s. 6d. under the same heads. See XL, p. 107, XLIII, p. 110, and other accounts to LX, p. 125.

Your letter dated y<sup>e</sup> 19 of April I received with the enclosed, which according to your order I delivered immediately after it came to my hand. I haue been soe very sore troubl'd at this late and sad accident which befell me, that I haue not known this long time what to write to you; but now hoping the business is fully ended (because that this week Mr Provost put all in their places again, which he had before put out) I make bold to trouble you. We are now (I hope all very well again, yet I belive for my part I shall never forgett my bad fortune; though I had as little reason to be troubled as any of them, seing I was less faulty, for I was never taken by Mr Provost, because I left the company about an hour before they were taken, but they thinking to clear themselves told of all that had ever been there; such company I hope for the future I shall ever endeavour to avoide. We haue expected the Dean of Carlile<sup>1</sup> all this week, but he is not come yet. Soe with my duty to your selfe and my love to my brothers and sisters I rest

I hope the scarcity of remarkeable occurrences that have happen'd of late amongst us, will apologize for my long silence & plead my excuse. 'Twere well if I could make amends att length; but I doubt I shall fall short. The greatest newes I have to send you is, That the Deane of Carlisle arriv'd att Oxōñ last night<sup>1</sup>, & designs to continue with us till after Act<sup>2</sup>. He makes use of part of the Vicechancellours Lodgings for himself & his Retinue, but his horses are at the Angell<sup>3</sup>. I designe to wait upon him shortly though I have no acquaintance with him: yo<sup>r</sup> son also & some others will p<sup>r</sup>sent him with Epistles<sup>4</sup>. <sup>5</sup> Thomas Braithwait, Brathwayt, or Braithwaite entered Queen's College as batler 28 September, and matriculated 15 Nov. 1639, aged 18. His father's name was Gawen. He proceeded B.A. 28 Nov. 1644, and M.A. 8 Jly, 1647. He was elected scholar on the foundation of Henry Wilson 23 Jan. 1646-7, and fellow 10 Feb. 1647-8 to be admitted as soon as possible. He does not seem to have enjoyed any emolument as fellow before the beginning of 1649. He was presented to the living of Enham in 1651, and afterwards to the rectory of Oakley near Basingstoke. He was father of Thomas, born at Enham, who entered Queen's College as a commoner 16 March, 1679-80, matriculating the same day, and was afterwards fellow of New College, warden 1703-12, and vicchancellor 1709-11.

Lugduni, Sumptibus Antonii Pillehottæ, sub signo Sanctissimæ Trinitatis. M.DCXX. Cum privilegio Regis. (Bodl. sm. 8°.)

<sup>3</sup> This may be either Philipp Cluverii Introductionis in Universam Geographiam, tam Veterem quam Novam Libri VI. Accessit P. Bertii Breviarium Orbis terrarum. Amstelodami, Apud Elzevirios. 1677. (Bodl. 12°.) or An Introduction into Geography, both Ancient and Moderne, comprised in Sixe Bookes by Philip Cluverius, together with severall incidentall remarques, newly added. Oxford, Printed by Leonard Lichfield, Printer to the University for Rob. Blagrave. Anno Domini. 1657. (Bodl. sm. 8°.) The translator was H. S. and he dated his dedication to Henry Chester of Lillington, from Oxford 28 Apr. 1657. The maps are in the quarto editions of which the earliest in the Bodleian is dated Leyden 1624. There are three Amsterdam editions between 1629 and 1677 and another 1729. The Queen's College copy of 1697 has no maps, but may have lost them. An edition dated 1711 has them. Some of the later Amsterdam editions have no date of publication.

<sup>4</sup> Ethica, sive Summa Moralis Disciplinæ, In Tres Partes divisa. Authore Fr. Eustachio A S. Paulo. Cum duplici Indice locupletissimo. Londini Typis J. R. Impensis Joh. 1674. He was made D.D. in Dublin, went to Oxford 1675, where he published this and some controversial works, and died in Ireland 1682 when occupied in the production of an Old Testament in Irish. His life is in D. N. B.

<sup>2</sup> The Edition in Queen's College library has for its colophon:—Huc usque p̄ducte sunt questiones Buridani morales: robustiori etati p̄cipue p̄legende. q̄s Egidius' delfus socius Sorbonicus: atq; in sacris litteris baccalarius formatns emendatus imprimi curauit. He arrived on Wednesday, Sept. 8, and 'was received with solemnity in the university, and took up his lodgings in the dean's apartment in Ch. Ch. The next day being conducted to the public schools by the bishop and others, and thence to the apodyterium, he was there habited in scarlet with some of his retinue: Thence he was conducted by the beadles and Dr. Morison the botanic professor (who at that time executed the office of the king's professor of phys. then absent) to the Theatre where the convocation was solemnized: And coming near to the vicech. scat, the said doctor presented him with a little speech; which being done the vicech. created him 'doctor of physic 'with another, and then was conducted to his seat of state on the right hand of the vicechancellor. All which, with the creation of some of his retinue being finish'd, the orator complemented him with another speech in the name of the university. The next day his highness left Oxon, went to Hampton-court, and just at his arrival there (Sept. 12) news was

REV. THOMAS DIXON TO DANIEL FLEMING (2322).

Honored Sr.

Since my safe arriveall at Oxon (about 10 dayes ago) I have been extraordinary bussy in composeing a Sermon for S<sup>t</sup> Maries (that dreadfull place) against this day<sup>6</sup>: or else I should have thought myself brought to him that his father died suddenly at Edingen between Manheim and Frankendale on the 7th of the said month.' (Wood, Fasti, ii. 378.)

<sup>1</sup> Thursday, Sept. 16. 'The duke of Monmouth at Oxon racing in Port Meed by the meanes of Lord Lovelace. Sept. 17, F, there againe. The University took no notice of him. Alderman Wright with a crew cried out "God save him and the Protestant religion."' (Wood's Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 496.)

<sup>6</sup> Under the Laudian Code there was to be a Latin Sermon at the beginning of each term, to be preached in turn by the Theological Professors & the other graduates in Theology in Deacon's orders at the least, or failing such by a person appointed by the vicechancellor. (Griffiths and Shadwell, p. 158.) The tenth of obleig'd, both in civility & gratitude, to have writt to you e're this. And I doubt still whether even so important an affair will be able to begg my excuse, considering the addition of your late signall kindnesses to those unparallell'd obligacōns I had receiv'd from you before. I must therefore still rely upon yo<sup>r</sup> goodness, & hope for a favourable construction of so grand an omission. I p<sup>r</sup>esented yo<sup>r</sup> service to Mr. Vicechancellour<sup>1</sup> att my returne, notwithstanding the want of a Comission from you, by reason of yo<sup>r</sup> urgent occasions beyond the Fells the day before I sett forward<sup>2</sup>. I went upon a strong p<sup>r</sup>esumption, & should be apt to do the like again upon the like occasion. The greatest newes I have heard since I came to Towne (or rather before for it was told to us att Warwick) is, concerning the D. of Monmouths reception (or rather non-reception) by our University<sup>3</sup>, where it seemes he was not long ago: and som'what before his arriveall my L<sup>d</sup> Lovelace<sup>4</sup> sent to the B<sup>p</sup> of Oxōn<sup>5</sup> to acquaint him who was comeing to Towne: and the B<sup>p</sup> sent the messenger to the Vicechancellour, to whom when he had deliver'd his message, & acquainted him that his Grace was comeing to Towne, he reply'd, he hoped he was well, & so dismiss'd him: But he was caress'd by y<sup>e</sup> Towne & afterwards diverted with 2 or 3 Races in Portmeed<sup>6</sup>, where he lost the Plate (of my L<sup>d</sup> Lovelace's) which he run for himself, but had better luck afterwards. The Prince Palatine<sup>7</sup> (who I suppose was recomēded to the University by his Mat<sup>y</sup> not long before) found other entertainment. He had severall speeches made to him & some Feasts made for him. A flying report has been sett abroad lately as if the Parliam<sup>t</sup>

October was the first day of Michaelmas Term, and Dixon had probably been appointed by Timothy Halton who was vicechancellor.

<sup>4</sup> Robert Feild, matriculated from Trinity College 31 March, 1653, B.A. 1656, M.A. 1669, B. and D.D. 1673, 'suh-dean of York, to which he had been collated on the 3d of Sept. 1670, on the death of Dr. Anth. Elcocke, and on the 27th of Apr. 1675 he was collated to the archdeaconry of Clieveland, on the death of John Neile D.D. who was also dean of Rippon and prebendary of York. He died on the 9th of Sept. 1680, aged 42 years, and was hurried in the cathedral church of York, in that chappel wherein his patron and benefactor Dr Rich. Sterne archbishop of that place was afterwards hurried. In his subdeanery succeeded George Tully M.A. of Qu. College in this university, and in his archdeaconry John Lake D.D. of Camhr. afterwards bish. of the isle of Man, &c.' (Wood, Fasti, ii. 336.)

<sup>5</sup> Thomas Tenison, fellow of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, chaplain to Charles II, rector of Bracon Ash, Norfolk, and of Holywell, Hunts 1661, succeeded William Lloyd as Rector of St. Martin's in the fields 8 Oct. 1680, was archdeacon of London, 1689, and rector of St. James', Westminster, vacated St. Martin's on his promotion to the hishopric of Lincoln 1691, became archbishop of Canterhury 1694, and died 14 Dec. 1715. 'He hath published several sermons, and other matters of divinity, as also several things against popery in the reign of James II. which shew him to be a learned man; besides his hook called The Creed of Tho. Hobbes of Malmshury.' (Wood, Fasti, ii. 279.) He was succeeded at St. Martin's in the fields by William Lancaster.

<sup>6</sup> The initial is an attempt to produce the effect of the Welsh pronunciation. The prelate is William Lloyd, who matriculated from Oriel College 25 March, 1639, aged 11, was fellow of Jesus College, B.A. 1642, M.A. 1646, B. and D.D. 1667. He was one of the seven bishops committed to the Tower by James II, and was made lord almoner hy William III. He was bishop of St. Asaph 1680-92, of Coventry and Lichfield 1692-1700, and of Worcester 1700, till he died 30 Aug. 1717, aged 91. Wood (Athenæ, iv. 716) gives him a good character. Hearne on the other hand says 'He was a great Chronologer & a good Scholar, hut of very bad Principles wth respect to the Monarchy of England'; and adds 'Had it pleased God to have taken him off before the Revolution (w<sup>ch</sup> he always mightly defended), it might have heen of service to this poor Church & Nation.' (vi. 87.)

<sup>7</sup> The parish of St. Martin's in the fields was originally taken out of that of St. Margaret's, Westminster. Before 1786 St. Paul's, Covent Garden; St. Anne's, Soho; St. James's, Piccadilly; and St. George's, Hanover Square, had heen carved out of it. There seems to have been a chapel on the site of the present church from very early times. Bishop Lloyd's church was huilt by Henry VIII, and enlarged by Prince Henry, son of James I. In 1721 the old church was taken down and replaced by the present building erected by Gibbs, the architect of the Radcliffe Camera, at a cost of nearly £60,000.

knows no bounds or limitts to yo<sup>r</sup> favours: I must therefore put none to my gratefull resentments<sup>1</sup>. I have litle newes to send you, but that wee have lately elected 2 new Fellows, sc: Mr Tonstall<sup>2</sup> & Mr Cock<sup>3</sup>, they are to be admitted on St Thomas day, before w<sup>ch</sup> time wee shall also elect some Tabiters. Mr Ward<sup>4</sup> has accepted lately of a College Parsonage, call'd Hampton Poyle<sup>5</sup>, about 4 miles of Oxōn, worth 100<sup>t</sup> p. añū. All his Seniors (being 5) refus'd it: his year of Grace is to extend till St Tho: day come a Twelvemonth. Mr Skelton<sup>6</sup> is recover'd of his late dangerous distemper, his Patron the B<sup>p</sup> of Lincolne<sup>7</sup> was to go up to y<sup>e</sup> Parliam<sup>t</sup> the begiñing of this week: It seemes the B<sup>ps</sup> were unanimous as to the Dukes Bill<sup>8</sup>: but I need not informe you in Publick Newes. I have sent yo<sup>r</sup> Sons Accounts since Lady Day last inclos'd herein<sup>9</sup>, & have spoke to him to send you a Catalogue of y<sup>e</sup> Bookes I have p<sup>d</sup> for<sup>10</sup>. He continues civill<sup>11</sup>, carefull & studious.

<sup>1</sup> Resentment seems originally to have meant merely an answering of the feelings to something affecting them strongly. Ogilvie s. v. quotes from Jeremy Taylor 'It is a greater wonder that so many of them die with so little resentment of their danger.' It thence came to be used, as here, for the feeling towards the person regarded as having produced the impression; so he quotes from Barrow 'That thanksgiving whereby we should express an affectionate resentment of our obligations to him for the nnnumberless great benefits we receive from him.'

<sup>3</sup> John Cock, born at Kendall, entered Queen's College as batler 20 May, matriculated 23 May, 1672, aged 17; B.A. 4 July, 1677; M.A. 8 Jnly, 1680, elected 'in panperem puerum' 10 June, 1677, 'in socinm' 6 Nov., admitted 21 Dec. 1680. 'He was a very good, popular Preacher, & snpply'd the Cure at Newbury for some time: by w<sup>ch</sup> means he got the living of Thatcham near Newbury, where he now (9 Nov. 1706) lives with very good Reputation, discharging y<sup>e</sup> Dnty of a faithfull Pastor.' (Hearne, ed. Doble, i. 304.)

Your letter with 15<sup>s</sup> I received<sup>4</sup>, and alsoe the cloth which my brother W<sup>m</sup><sup>5</sup> sent me for a suite with buttons silk &c, which will doe very well. I see by your letter that you received the catologue of my bookes which I sent<sup>6</sup>, and I doe not question but that Mr Dixon when he was down did satisfy you in the usefulness of them, and the price. Knowing very well that scholars here are very much cheated in buying any thing, unless they pay present mony, though their tutors be never so carefull; I could desier you that you would be pleased (not that I want any for my own purse, but for your profit) hereafter to send me the mony, of which I hope I shall give you a good account; except seven or eight pound a year to pay battels, studdy, and Tutorage<sup>7</sup>. I also received some lining which my sister Alice<sup>8</sup> sent, <sup>8</sup> Alice was D. F.'s third child and second daughter. She was christened 10 Aug. 1658, and was now, as her mother had died in 1675, and her elder sister Catherine had been married 15 August, 1677 to Edward Wilson jr. of Dallam Tower, the lady at the head of D. F.'s household.

The same Countrieman, labouringe to requite his kindenes presented vnto him a greate Aple. <sup>1</sup> In the Supplement I have included some documents from the Rydal Papers, which, though not strictly elucidating the story of the Flemings in Oxford I have yet thought possess some academical or special interest.

<sup>2</sup> John Sutton, entered Queen's College as batler in Michaelmas Term, 1613, and matriculated 23 June, 1615, aged 16. He was admitted Dudley Exhibitioner of Oriel College on the presentation of Edmund Dudley, of Yanworth, esq. 12 Oct. 1615, and proceeded B.A. 10 Dec. 1617. The Entrance Book says that he became a taberdar, and 'mortuus apud suos in Cliftō West. 1620.' As a native of Clifton he would have been a neighbour of Dudley's, Clifton being the last station on the London and North-Western Railway before the train brushes past Yanworth into Penrith station.

mans pollicie, must now be mine; ffor like as, for a great gift, he offered, only a gratefull mind; soe must I. Indead of the Quantitie of Artaxerxes his gift, I am ignorant; but for the qualitie, & free giueinge, of it, I am sure, it Could not be more bountiffully, & freely bestowed, then that which (your worshipp, did giue unto me; a stranger, and vnknowne to you. And therfore I may well say a Countrieman: And whereas he brought an Aple, I offer nothinge, but Animi grati tesseram<sup>1</sup>, as they call it, a token of a dutifull, & thankefull minde, (for that is all which I am able) beseechinge youre worshipp, to doe, as this kinge did, respect rather the gratefull minde, of the giuer of the gift, then the gifte it selfe; or as you did shaw youre liberality in bestoweinge vpon me this place, soe likewise, entreatinge you, to shaw it, in receiueinge these few lines; (for as the same writer rehearseth,) there is as well, a liberality in takeinge, as in giueinge; And in that time, it was counted, noe, lesse vertuous, & noble to receiue willingly, & with a Chearefull countenance small & meane giftes, of a power and meaner frindes, then to giue the greatest that can be devised; ffor this kinge, was not commended, because he gaue him a gift, but because he receiued the power mans Aple soe willingly; But for me thus to recognize in Multitude of wordes, is vnto your wisdom, I know but freuolous . . for I know that youre worship better, respecteth, the inward seruice intended of anie one, (whereof, I humbly beseech you, on my parte to stand assured.) then any outwarde behauour, the validitie whereof, maie many wayes, be doubted. Wherefore let it, I beseech you, stand with youre good fauour, that I may, by this my gratefull minde, contained in these few lines; confesse my selfe, for these your benefitts, bound vnto you; And for the residue thereof, when it shall seeme good, to your worshipp, to command me, I will not haue life, or abilitie, that shall not be youre, in all that may please, you to vse me; And If that, I shall vnderstand, that with these, few lines, your worship is pleased, & any parte, of my duty, discharged; I will lett noe day passe, in which I will not labour, to become more thankfull; I will yeld to noe labour soe that I may both please you, and also recompence you for your benefites: And thus beseechinge you, to excuse, this my boldnes, & to pardon me, thus with these my absent letters to molest you. And also, prayinge the Almightye, to bless you, with health, and Prosperitie & the redoublinge

<sup>3</sup> A Robson entered Queen's College in Easter Term, 1615. A conjecture in the Entrance Book supplies his Christian name as Charles, but he was probably this Joseph, who matriculated 9 June, 1615, aged 19. He does not seem to have received either of the Dndley Exhibitions filled up by Dudley this year as one was filled up in May by the appointment of Thomas Lough (for whom see n. 1, p. 68); and the other (vacated by John Sutton) by the appointment of Richard Bradley. Joseph Robson does not seem to have taken a degree.

<sup>4</sup> Thomas Dudley, son of Edmund, married at Askham 30 Jan. 1596, a Carlisle lady of the name of Middleton. The Oriel Register mistakes the name of the nominator in 1617, as it gives both the nominations in that year to Edmund Dudley.

I should rather prove a succourer of her & hers, then an exacter from her & hers, & it is my desire also. But penurie is a stopp for such pceedings: my request therfore to you is (Woll Sir) y<sup>t</sup> you would exercise your wonted pietie in granting me your letters for the exhibitioners place at Oriell Colledge w<sup>ch</sup> is now voyd<sup>1</sup>. this will be a meanes to extenuate my penurie & aggrauate your charitie. <sup>1</sup> This is probably the earlier of the two vacancies in 1617, that caused by the resignation of Robert Teesdale.

<sup>3</sup> This document seems to have come into D. F.'s hands with a good number of other Dudley papers from Yanwath at the death of Mrs. Agnes Dudley in 1671. It was perhaps the interest excited by it which induced D. F. later to buy two books now to be found in the library at Rydal Hall. (i) A Letter of Resolution to a Friend, Concerning the Marriage of Cousin Germans. By John Turner, late Fellow of Christs-Colledge in Cambridge. . . . London, Printed by H. H. for Walter Kettily, at the Bishops Head in St. Pauls Church-Yard. 1682. (ii) A Resolution of three Matrimonial Cases; I. Whether it be Lawful for a Man to Marry his deceased Wife's Sister's Daughter? II. Whether the half-blood make Kindred? III. Whether such a Marriage being made, it ought to be dissolv'd or no? By John Tnrner, late Fellow of Christ's-Colledge in Cambridge. . . . London, Printed by H. Hills Jun. for Walter Kettily at the Bishop's Head in St. Pauls Church Yard. 1684.

that hath been married, his wyfe being dead, may by the divine Lawe, marrie a cosene garmine of his former wyves, he himselfe being nothing of kinne to eyther of them. I rest

To my verie
Loving friend M<sup>r</sup>
Burton.

This maryage is not expressly forbidden in the Levit Lawe And in case she were his owne cosen german in consanguinite yet ther is no express prohibitiōe of that mariage in that degree though more remote mariages be forbidden.

But beinge but a cosen german in affinitei, I holde there is nothinge in the Lawe dyvyne that doth disalewe such mariage<sup>2</sup>.

In this case I am of the same opinione that M<sup>r</sup> Burton hath sett downe.

CHRIS WALKER<sup>3</sup>.

The lawes concerning marriage sett downe in Lev. 18. are not Leviticall, but a branch of the lawe of nature and therefore belonge to vs as well as to the Isralites. Now it is plane that in the right line comixtion is forbidden amongst all both above and downwards as father daughter grandchild great grandchild etc.

1592-3, having matriculated November 10, 1592, if the Matriculation Register is not at fault, aged 17. He was a native of Cumberland, was admitted Saint Antony Exhibitioner of Oriel 16 Jnne, 1595, on the nomination of Edmund Dudley, esq. He was one of nine elected 'pauperes pneri' of Queen's College 20 Dec. 1595 and one of three admitted the same day. He was admitted 'in perpetuum scholarem' (fellow) with 6 others 1 Mar. 1602-3. He proceeded B.A. 24 Apr. 1599, M.A. 30 June, 1602. He was thesaurarius 1606-7 and continued fellow till 1608.

<sup>1</sup> John Dudley, son of Edmund, and so younger brother of Thomas, matriculated from Queen's College, as generosi filius 17 Feb. 1586-7, aged 14. He was admitted Dudley Exhibitioner of Oriel College 3 March, 1586-7, on the presentation of Richard Dudley, esq., his grandfather. He was 'electus in pauperem puerum' 30 June, 1591, and 'admissus' 30 July, and 'liberè sponteque suâ snum locum resignavit' 2 Feb. 1593-4. He had resigned his Dudley Exhibition before 29 June, 1591. He proceeded B.A. 3 July, 1592, was admitted student of Gray's Inn 25 Apr. 1594, and was called to the bar 1601, becoming M.P. for Carlisle the same year. He married (Nicolson and Burn, i. 413) 'the bastard daughter of Sir Christopher Pickering,' who survived him and married again, so the information he is seeking is perhaps for a client, or to settle some legal dispute.

In Collateralls the first and second degrees are forbidden in the Vnæquall line as for example a brother may not marrie his sister the nephewe may not marrie his aunt nor the vncle his neece etc.

But if they be in the second degree in the equall line such as the case cosin germanes they are not prohibited to marrie as is plane in the text neither is ther any place in the scriptures phibitinge such marriages. although for my part I hold them not so convenient. yet for the lawfulnessse of them it may suffice first that ther is noe prohibition in the book of god, secondly they are warranted by an example. the daughters of Zelophehad were married to ther fathers brothers sonnes see Numb: 36 11. Now if cosin germanes be not phibited it will followe a fortiori that a man may marrie successively two cosin-germanes he himselfe beinge in noe degree of consanguinitie to either of them.

He was elected taberdar 17 Nov. 1601, admitted 29 June, 1602, and fellow 13 Dec. 1605. He proceeded B.A. 30 June, 1602; M.A. 6 June, 1605. He was made D.D. of St. Andrew's about 1618. He held his fellowship till the autumn of 1608, when he was presented to the vicarage of Barton. He was made rector of Asby 1618, and prebendary of Carlisle 1619, and held all three preferments till his death in February 1653-4. He is buried under the communion table in Barton Church. Besides his epitaph there were three copies of verses by Thomas Tully (n. 2, p. 285), Joseph Williamson (n. 3, p. 139) and Clement Ellis 'fairly transcrib'd and fastned to the wall' over his grave. acquaintance but that you know it is not so much in our power to forget as to be silent. God & nature gave you at first so much of the vantage ground over me, that I was never yet knowne to you, but as a beneficiary of yours or (if you will) an inferiour favorite & in that quality I am proud to flatter myself that I still stand with you, which I account a sufficient argument of your love to me, & engagement upon my part to honour you. this has embolden'd me to interrupt my owne silence & your ease by this paper which is no better then a petition that you wold doe me a favour & your self an honour in sending (or procureing to be sent) unto me the blazon of Dr Dudley's<sup>1</sup> coat of armes, which I presume is the same with your owne, & (it may be) both the same with the late Earle of Leicester Ambrose Dudley<sup>2</sup>. if so I could have spared my self and you this trouble, but I was loath to indulge too much to my owne opinion. The reason of

He was born 17 Dec. 1607, and married firstly, Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Snowdon, bishop of Carlisle, and secondly, Agnes, eldest daughter of Daniel Fleming of Skirwith, and paternal aunt of D. F. His second wife bore him a daughter Mary, who died young, and he sold Yanwath to Sir John Lowther 12 Feb. 1654. Sir John granted him a lease of Yanwath for his life, and after his death in London 9 Sept. 1660, his widow continued to live at Yanwath till she died 5 Oct. 1671. On her death the family papers came to D. F. and form, speaking generally, the oldest part of the Rydal papers.

<sup>1</sup> Richard Dudley, the founder of the Dudley Exhibitions at Oriel, was junior proctor of the University in 1503, and supplicated for the degree of D.D. 1508. He was principal of St. Mary Hall 1502-6, prebendary of Consumpta per mare in St. Paul's cathedral 1505, prebendary of York 1508, and of Lincoln 1508, in all three cases till his death 1536. Kennet in his notes to Wood's Fasti, i. 11 says he was ordained sub-deacon by John Maio bp. of Coventry and Lichfield 24 Sept. 1502 by letters dimissory from the hp. of London, and that he was made prebendary of Fytlework in the cathedral of Chichester 16 Jnly, 1507. Wood (loc. cit.) says he was chancellor of the church of Salisbury, but Le Neve neither names him nor leaves room for his insertion in that office. The cause of the error seems to lie in the circumstance that in the original agreement, dated 16 Dec. 22 H. 8 (1530), for founding two fellowships he is called Chaunter, i.e. Precentor of Salisbury. In Le Neve, 'Richard Adeley or Dudley was collated' Precentor of Salisbury 26 July, 1507. His relationship to the Yanwath family is not made out by Mr. Jackson (Papers and Pedigrees, ii. 150) in his pedigree of the Sutton-Dudleys of Yanwath, unless he is the Richard, A Priest, who died before 1554 who is son of Edmund Sutton, by Matilda, daughter of Thomas, eighth Baron Clifford, in which case he would be uncle to the Richard Dudley who married Dorothy Sandford, and was father of Edmund, grandfather of Thomas, and great-grandfather of Christopher, who successively nominated to the exhibitions he founded. That this was the case is made clear by the pedigrees in the possession of Oriel College.

my request is this ; Oriel College is of late much enlarged with a faire stately new building now almost finished, much of it at the charges all at the sollicitation of your cozen and countreyman Dr Tolson provost<sup>1</sup>. It is a purpose of his & the Colledge to adorne the gates, Hall & other eminent places<sup>2</sup> in the Colledge with the Armes (cutt in stone) of their principall Benefactors, in which number they doe gratefully acknowledge your predecessour Dr Dudley for one & therfore spoke to me to procure this favour from you, which I doubt not but you will freely afford, beeing a thing that tends to the honour of your family.

remainder as Earl of Warwick. Ambrose was third son of John, Duke of Northumberland, supported lady Jane Grey, and was accordingly convicted of high treason but pardoned. He distinguished himself at the battle of St. Quentin, was created 1561 Baron Lisle and Earl of Warwick, K.G. 1563, was a commissioner for the trial of Mary, Queen of Scots, 1586, was thrice married but left no offspring, died 21 Feb. 1589-90, aged about 62, from the amputation of his leg necessitated by wounds received 28 years before. He was a Puritan and was known as 'The good Lord Warwick.' His arms had twenty-one quarterings. The Sutton-Dudley shield was Or, a lion rampant, queue-fourchée, vert, armed and langued gules; Ambrose had a crescent of the last for difference. His father had been created Earl of Warwick 1547, and his eldest brother had been called to Parliament as Earl of Warwick, 1552, but the title was not held by any one from 1554 to 1561. His nearest common ancestor with Christopher Dudley was John de Sutton, fifth Baron Dudley, who died 1487. (See G. E. C.'s Peerage, vol. iii. pp. 180 sqq.)

<sup>2</sup> The 'Armes (cutt in stone)' are over the entrances to the staircases, kitchen, and passage to the back quadrangle and have been lately (1903) restored. Dudley's arms are over the door of staircase No. 2, i. e. on the south wall, south-east corner. It is the Sutton-Dudley shield without the crescent or other mark of cadency.

Dr Dawes<sup>1</sup> or my brother<sup>2</sup> will find a way to transmitt what you shall think fitt to retorne in this kind; the work is ready for it & all will be compleetly finished before Christmas. Your Cozen<sup>3</sup> Dr Tolson remembers his love to you, but has bin sometimes complaining to me of the harsh style of some of your letters for your Exhibitioners which he thought was too dictatorious and comāding. he did honestly professe that as he knew your right to be good so he did wish you might long enjoy it & for his part, for the love which he bears to you his cozen & those his countreyemen upon whom you are pleased usually to conferre those places, he does not intend to doe anything which may redound to the least prejudice of either; but is affrayd withall that other men & at other times will not stand to putt you to some trouble especially if they be any way irritated by harsher terms. You may read in this my boldnesse how confident I am of your good opinion of my syncerity & devotion to your good. I could dwell longer upon some discourse with you, but when I look back upon what I have writt already, I cannot but blush to see that I have no more room left to tell you that I am

But it was never yet my happinesse to see that letter of yours, & therfore I desire you to hold me excused in that I doe not answer it as you might expect. To prevent all misconstruction which might justly attend my conceived neglect of you, I hold it a part of duty to signify my mishap in the miscarriage of your letter, because I wold bee as farre from suspicion of a fault as from the guilt of it. For matter of books I shall be glad to be y<sup>r</sup> factor in that kind of marchandise so farre as you please to acquaint me with y<sup>r</sup> desires: & willing as occasion serves & my abilityes will permitt to testify some part of gratitude for your many favours to my self and my brother, in furnishing you with such books as you desire, expecting no other pay but your kind acceptance. For the present I send you one of small bulk but great consequence (as the times are) It is his Mat<sup>ties</sup> declaration of all that has pass'd betwixt himself & his quondam Subjects of Scotland since the pacification at the Campe<sup>1</sup>. Three of the Scotch Comissioners viz. the Earle of Dumfermlin<sup>2</sup>, Sr. Will: Douglas<sup>3</sup>, & M<sup>r</sup> Berkly<sup>4</sup>, are of late confin'd: the reason of their restraint is said to be because the Covenanters in Scotland have imprison'd the Earle of Southesk<sup>5</sup> for adhering to the

<sup>2</sup> Charles Seton, second Earl of Dumfermline or Dunfermline, subsequently took an active part on the side of the king, was High Commissioner to the general assembly of the church of Scotland 1642, was with the king at Newcastle 1646; and at the restoration was made privy councillor, extraordinary lord of session and privy seal for Scotland; he died about 1673. He was at this time one of the Commissioners appointed by the Scotch to represent their interests in London.

<sup>3</sup> Sir William Douglas, of Cavers, sheriff of Teviotdale. He was one of the Court of High Commission established in Scotland, Oct. 1634. (Baillie's Letters, i. 425.) That he was at this time one of the Scotch Commissioners appears also from Baillie (i. 269, 397). Baillie thought him 'too much inclyning the Court way.' (ib. 224.)

<sup>4</sup> Probably Robert Barclay, Provost of Irvine. He was a member of the General Assembly at Glasgow in 1638. (Baillie's Letters, i. 104, 137.) He was in London on Scotch business as late as 1646.

<sup>5</sup> David Carnegie, b. 1575, accompanied Anne, quecn of James I, into England on his accession, was knighted 1603, was an active supporter of the king's ecclesiastical policy, created 1616 Lord Carnegie of Kinnaird and 1633 Earl of Southesk. In 1654 he was fined 3000*l.* under Cromwell's act of grace, and died 1658. He, Sir Lewis Gordon, and other noted Royalists were seized and imprisoned by the Scotch in March, 1640.

He was created 1633 Earl of Loudoun, but as he immediately took part against the crown the patent was superseded till 1641 when it was allowed to pass. Clarendon calls him 'the principal manager of the rebellion.' He took a prominent part with the Covenanters, was one of their commissioners at Berwick, and was at this time serving in the same capacity at Whitehall, as he did again later in the year at Berwick. In 1641 he was made Lord Chancellor of Scotland with a pension of 1000*l.* a year. He was frequently sent to treat with the king on behalf of the Scots. He joined the Royalists in 1653, surrendered to Monk, and was excepted out of the Act of Indemnity. At the Restoration he was deprived of the chancellorship and fined 12,000*l.* Scots. He died 15 March, 1662-3. He was 'committed to the eustody of one of the sheriffs' April, 1640, as one of the signatories of the letter to the King of France. The letter is in Rushworth, iii. 1037. 'The other commissioners shared his fate though they had nothing to do with the letter.' (Gardiner, Fall of the Monarchy, vol. ii, chap. vii, p. 307.)

<sup>3</sup> Sir John Glanville (1586-1661), son of the judge of common pleas of the same name, M.P. for Plymouth 1624 till 1640, and for Bristol in 1640, reeorder of Plymouth 1614, of Bristol 1637, elected Speaker 15 April, 1640. He afterwards joined the king's side, was knighted 1641, went to Oxford with the king and was made D.C.L. 1643, imprisoned in the Tower 1645-8, died 2 Oct. 1661. His life is in D.N.B.

<sup>4</sup> The 'Secretaryes' at this time were Sir Francis Windebank, who had been secretary of state since 1632, and Sir Henry Vane the elder, who had recently been made secretary by the influence of the Marquis of Hamilton. Both their lives are in D.N.B.

<sup>5</sup> The 'Attorney' was Sir John Bankes, who had been attorney-general since 1634, and was in 1641 made chief justice of common pleas. He was of Queen's College, Oxford, where he entered as batler, in Lent Term 1604-5, matriculating 22 Feb. He was born at Keswick in Cumberland and died at Oxford 28 Dec. 1644, having been created D.C.L. 31 Jan. 1642-3.

twas true he sett his hand to the letter, but did not know the contents, in regard the originall was French, which he pretended not to understand. This answer was found very insufficient, both in prudence in case he had bin ignorant: & in truth, proved that he was not so, haveing bin a travailer in France for some years. His next subterfuge was that where it is objected they doe in that letter implore the assistance of a forraine prince, that by the word assistance they meant not any aide of men or munition, but only his friendly assistance by way of mediation to his Maty in their behalf. His third (which he now stands upon) is that this letter was writt & subscribed to before the pacification at Berwick, where they obtained a generall pardon of his Maty, & therfore whatever construction be now made of it, they are not lyable<sup>1</sup> considering the pardon precedent, justly chargeable with it. How this letter was intercepted it is not particularly knowne to us here; only that Sr Henry Vane<sup>2</sup> was a principall instrument in it. One Colvill<sup>3</sup> is in hold too, but whether this Colvill be the same man mention'd in the letters of credence is not yet certaine. The Lord Leivetenant of Ireland<sup>4</sup> after his good service done there in the parliament for the King return'd into England, but was arrested by sicknesse in his journey, & forced to stay at North-Hampton<sup>5</sup>. On thursday last<sup>6</sup> was some clashing in the Parliament. In the higher house my L. of Canterbury<sup>7</sup> moved, that in regard of the opening of the Convocation the next<sup>8</sup>, where the Bps were to be present, the house wold be pleased, according to custome, to adjourn the Session till Satterday. To which the Lord Say<sup>9</sup> replied, he saw no reason why

<sup>2</sup> This is Sir Henry Vane the elder, originally Fane (1589-1655), matriculated Brasenose College 15 June, 1604, aged 15, knighted 1615, M.P. Lostwithiel 1614, Carlisle 1621, 1624, Thetford 1628, for Wilton in the Short and in the Long Parliament 1640-53, for Kent 1654. He was now secretary of state. He approved of the impeachment of Strafford, it is said on private grounds, and transferred himself from the side of the king to that of the parliament. He was father of the younger Sir Henry Vane (1613-62). Their lives are in D. N. B.

<sup>3</sup> William Colvill or Colville, mentioned in the letter to the king of France, was taken prisoner. He was a Scotch divine and at this time minister in Edinburgh; he was afterwards principal of Edinburgh University 1652-3, and 1662-75. His life is in D. N. B.

they should not goe on notwithstanding the B<sup>rs</sup>, for (for ought he knew) there was no necessity at all of their presence in Parliament. The Lord Keeper<sup>1</sup> ended the difference, moveing that it might either be adjourn'd till Satterday, or that they wold substitute another Speaker, for himself by reason of his weaknesse & indisposition of body should not be able to attend on friday. upon this the Lords all voted for the adjournment; & (tis sayd) the Lord Say or L. Brook<sup>2</sup> his great imitator required the Clerk to write the Act in these terms That the Session was adjourned not for the L. of Canterburys sake but for the L. Keepers. Wee heare my L. of Dorsett<sup>3</sup> since ask'd my L. of Canter: what might be the reason why the L. Say was alwayes so averse from him: & that his answer was he knew no particular reason, onely it might be his jealousy of him in generall as a man whose maine aimes drove at the Churches good, & that the most part of my L. Sayes estate (200<sup>ti</sup> p<sup>añ</sup>: excepted) consisted in Church means<sup>4</sup>, & those annex'd to his temporals by such means as (he had heard) were scarce justifiable by the lawes of the Land. In the lower house of Parl: besides Speeches of the Secretaries<sup>5</sup> in behalf of the King for a suddaine supply of moneyes, wee heare of three remarkable: one by Mr Grimston<sup>6</sup>, sonne in Law to Judge Crook, who sayd Charles I, a zealous Puritan, the only adherent, according to G. E. C. (Peerage, vii. 67), of that party in the Upper House; of New College, where his family had rights, as Founder's kin. His nickname was 'Old Subtlety.' His life is in D. N. B.

those Judges that deliverd their opinions for Ship-money spoke against reason, against law, & against their owne consciences. Another by Sr Francis Seymor<sup>1</sup>, brother to the Earle of Hartford, who, in answer to such as had spoken for a supply of money to reduce the Scots to a reformation, sayd there were abuses at home that stood in more need of reformation; & in particular instanced in the toleration of recusants. The third by Sr Benjamin Rudiard<sup>2</sup>, more mild & temperate, who confess'd indeed there were many abuses in the State which cal'd for reformation, indeed more then could be reformed in one parliament, but he desired they might wisely & fairly begin with the worst first, & so hoped this parliament wold prove a teeming parliament & begett another. The King sent to the L. Mayor & Aldermen to borrow a hundred thousand pounds, & wee heare they have willingly brought in thirty thousand with promise of further supply<sup>3</sup>. So farre has this late declaration dispossess'd that citty of that opinion which they generally had before, that the Scots meant no more but the maintenance of their lawes & religion. <sup>1</sup> Francis Seymour, third son of Edward, Lord Beauchamp, and great-grandson of Edward, Duke of Somerset, the Lord Protector, was at this time M.P. for Wiltshire. In the following year he was created Baron Seymour of Trowbridge. Like the Earl of Dorset (above n. 3, p. 348) he was one of the peers in attendance on the King at Oxford. His brother William who was at this time Earl of Hertford, was made Marquess of Hertford 3 June, 1640, and restored as Duke of Somerset in 1660. Francis's grandson became William's third successor as Duke in 1675. Lord Seymour's house at Marlborough became an Inn, and has since 1842 been Marlborough College. Both the brothers' lives are in D. N. B.

<sup>3</sup> Gardiner (Fall of the Monarchy, i. ch. vii, p. 307) gives a different account of the result of the application to the Lord Mayor and Aldermen. Langbaine was probably inclined to believe what he wished. It was not till October, 1640, that anything was obtained from the city and then only 50,000*l.* out of 200,000*l.* asked for (ib. 442).

REV. GERARD LANGBAINE TO CHRISTOPHER DUDLEY (175).

KIND SIR

The ancient interest which I had in your acquaintance, with the benefitt of your later favours and the constant profession of continuance on your part, might be sufficient provocations unto me to draw from me some expressions of love & gratitude: Indeed I never wanted an inclination that way, though I have not ever bin provided of other things equally necessary to the performance of my desires; sometimes want of ability, sometimes of opportunity, but mostly an unnecessary modesty while I look'd upon you at too great a distance: this which interposed mainly betwixt me & my desires, you have taken a course to remove, by inviteing me to that which I perceive I might of my self have bin bold to doe & found welcome too. Now that you have made choyce of that book weh carryes my name in the front<sup>1</sup>, I honour your love to my selfe, but doubt whether you may not repent your choyce. The subject of the book beeing I feare not so suitable to y<sup>r</sup> genius. The French man that pretended most to wisdome (Charron<sup>2</sup> I meane) has condemn'd all divinity for dull & melancholy; if it be true, in my opinion it holds most of that polemically

Such is the argument of this book, but indeed I cannot properly call them controversyes of religion, save that the popish alchymy has sublimated the greatest part of their divinity into state pollicy. And here my authour undertakes them. if the discourse be tedious, you may read the contents before you venture upon it, & if you please be content to rest there. All my feare is how this Christian pilgrime<sup>2</sup> will passe through so many infidell soldiers; the countreyes are miserably pester'd with their rogueries & insolencies, & I doubt y<sup>r</sup> parts are not Scotfree. Last Satterday I received a letter from my Lord Keepers Chaplaine<sup>3</sup> that the King had received letters informing him that Carlile was taken<sup>4</sup>, the gent: my friend went to the Lord Generals house to know the certainty, but my Lord had heard no such matter. & wee wait for the confutation of this fable till this night the returne of o<sup>r</sup> ordinary from London. The truth is there is no truth to be expected from comon reports. But for these things I leave them to God & the State; & returne to you and myself; my brother<sup>5</sup> has often profess'd that he has received singular favours from you, for my self I shall be ready to tell another what you know of my obligations, for my sister<sup>6</sup> I have heard there was some probability she might beare subjects for the King and

I cannot find that anything special happened either in the University or College on 24 Sept. 1646. Perhaps Langbaine refers to the new state of things created by the order of the Committee for the University of Oxford, dated 2 July, 1646, inhibiting elections to places of preferment and the making or renewal of leases 'vntill the pleasure of the Parliament be made knowne therein.' Langbaine's reticence, which is exhibited in this letter, was of great service to the College 'tempore usurpationis.'

<sup>1</sup> In the Vice-Chancellor's accounts there is an allowance 'to Dr. Gerard Langbaine and Mr. Brookes for their journeys to and from London on busines for the University and abode there from Aug. 11 to Sept. 18, 1646, 14li. 18s. 11d.' (Wood's Life and Times, ed. Clark, iv. 60.) This was Nicholas Brooks who matric. from Magd. Hall 11 July, 1606, aged 18, was clerk at Magd. Coll. 1609-13, B.A. 1610, fellow of Oriel 1612, M.A. 1615-6, proctor 1625, principal of St. Mary Hall 1644. He had the degree of D.M. granted to him 13 Oct. 1646 'for the services he had done to the University in treating with the Parliament Commissioners, &c.' In 1648 he replied to the Visitors: 'I humbly conceive that as yet I cannot, without violation to such othes as I have taken to and in the Universitie, submitt unto your proposalls,' and was ordered to be expelled. The order does not seem to have been enforced. He was present at a College meeting in Oct. 1650. He resigned his fellowship 7 Mar. 1652-3, perhaps on his marriage with Mary, dau. of John Ancores of Brand, Salop. He was Principal of St. Mary Hall till 1656 and died 25 July, 1667. His monumental inscription is on south wall of nave in Lichfield Cathedral. He wrote some lines to Oliver Cromwell, printed in Oxford Verses on Peace between England and the States, 4<sup>o</sup> Oxon. 1654, p. 60, 'far better than common' (P. Bliss). I owe many of these details to the kindness of Dr. Shadwell.

<sup>2</sup> Probably John Dalston of Acornbank, for whom see n. 9, p. 4. He was son of Sir Christopher, entered Queen's College in Lent Term, 1628-9, but did not matriculate till 2 Dec. 1631, when he was 19 years of age, proceeding B.A. 24 Jan. 1631-2. He entered Gray's Inn 1 Nov. 1631, and was M.P. for Appleby 1661-78. He was an undergraduate at Queen's with Langbaine, and is very likely the Mr. Dalston of Lough's letter (p. 71), as he married a daughter of the Richard Fallowfield mentioned in the same letter.

They were also closely connected by marriage, as Sir John's first wife Mary Fletcher was sister to Bridget wife of John Patriekson, lady Fetherstonhangh's brother.

<sup>4</sup> Richard, the third son, is described as of Langwathby, a parish to the south of Kirkoswald, separated from it by the parish of Addingham. He married Katherine, daughter of William Grahme or Graham of Nunnery in the parish of Ainstable, the next parish to Kirkoswald on the north, and had two daughters. The Fetherstonhaughs still own some land in Langwathby parish.

<sup>3</sup> See above, n. 1. After Bernard Kirkbride's death she married Edward Hasell of Dalemmain, who was afterwards knighted, but had no issue by either of them. She died 18 July, 1695, and is buried in Daere Church.

<sup>4</sup> Dorothy, the eldest (according to the Visitation pedigree certified by her brother Thomas), but according to Nicolson and Burn (i. 425) third daughter of Sir Timothy, married Robert Whitfield of Randleholme. She and Jane (who was 22 years of age at her father's death) were probably already married, and therefore separately mentioned.

<sup>5</sup> Chester, after a siege of twenty weeks, surrendered to the parliamentary army 3 Feb. 1645-6, and was from that time securely held. In 1652 a Court-martial was established there, and the earl of Derby, Sir Timothy Featherstonhaugh, and col. Benbow were condemned, the two first to be beheaded severally at Bolton and Chester, and the third to be shot at Shrewsbury. On Monday, Oct. 20, Sir T. Featherstonhaugh was beheaded in Northgate-street, opposite to the abbey-gate. (Ormerod's History of Cheshire, i. 210.)

KINDE BRO

I haue receiued yours, and hope myne is come to your hand, by which you will understand some of my imployment vpon Thursday next I am for Oxford where y<sup>e</sup> Lady M G is with her son<sup>3</sup>. I find her relations inclinable but ye Lady much averse to marriage, y<sup>e</sup> next weeke I shall know more. As to your information in poynt of fashion y<sup>e</sup> stuffs that are most worne are woolin about 3<sup>s</sup> or 4<sup>s</sup> a yard some trimmed with gold button and loops, some with siluer and some with silke, The fashion grenerally worne is spanish breaches<sup>1</sup> with long coates.

<sup>3</sup> Mary, daughter of James, Lord Johnston, Earl of Hartfell in Scotland, married as her first husband Sir George Graham of Netherby, bart., who dying in February, 1657, left her with six children, of whom the eldest son Sir Richard, matriculated at Christ Church 1664, aged 15, was created M.A. 4 Feb. 1666-7, was made Viscount Preston by Charles II, adhered to James II, and was condemned to death for treason 17 Jan. 1689-90, but pardoned. Sir George was eventually successful in his suit, and she became his second wife and bore him four children. There is a letter from her to D. F. among the 'thrown out' letters at Rydal, which curiously enough also deals with clothes, in this case for a daughter who is going to be married. It is signed 'Your ever loving sister M. Fletcher.'

<sup>4</sup> In the early part of the seventeenth century 'the Spanish slop' was large and loose, but by this time the fashion there had quite changed. The Countess d'Aulnoy in her description of the son of the Alcalde of Aranda, says: 'He had black velvet breeches, buttoned by five or six buttons above the knee, without which it would have been impossible to take them off, so tight are they worn in this country.' (J. R. Planché's Cyclopædia of Costume, ii. 261; cf. also the picture of a Spanish Nobleman, circa 1690, on p. 264.)

herewith yow will receiue the draught of the inquisicon<sup>4</sup> touchinge Barton Schoole<sup>4</sup>, which I finished yesternight, butt I could not possibly sooner dispatch it

<sup>2</sup> The Dutch and English trading companies on the coast of Africa had begun quarrelling in 1663. All through 1664 there were hostile proceedings and rumours of war. (See n. 4, p. 147.) War was not declared till 22 Feb. 1664-5.

<sup>3</sup> James Bird of Brougham. He united the manor of which he only inherited a third by buying one third which had been bought in 1607 by Agnes Fleming, D. F.'s great-grandmother, and the last third from the heir of Anne, Countess of Pembroke, who had charged it with four pounds yearly for the poor of the parish of Brougham. Though he had nine sons who all arrived at man's estate, he died without an heir male; and the estate was sold by James Bird's grandchildren to John Brougham of Scales, fifth son of the Henry Brougham who was sent to College by John Fleming (for whom see n. 3, p. 104).

<sup>4</sup> For an outline of the history of Barton School see Nicolson and Burn, i. 406, and Report of Schools Inquiry Commission 1869, vol. xix. pp. 317, 318. There are two documents in the parish chest at Barton, orders of separate bodies of Commissioners under the great seal made respectively in 1667 at Penrith and in 1670 at Kendal for the regulation of the school. It appears from these that, in addition to his original gift of £30, Langbaine bought an estate at Culgaith with some money which had reached him as an augmentation. Believing it to be church property, he did not wish it to 'come amongst that litle I shall leave my wife & children' and settled it upon the school, deducting ten pounds a year from the rents to be applied to apprenticing two Barton boys. The first document establishes a new body of feoffees by adding the two Sir John Lowthers, D. F., and the Vicar of Barton for the time being to the survivors, and the heirs of those who had died, of the original governors elected by the parishioners of Barton. The second document records that a large proportion of the money collected for the building of the school had been more or less loosely lent on interest to a number of persons, and orders the recovery of these sums from the persons in whose hands they were, and that the Feoffees should 'manage and put out the same moneys at Interest upon good security untill they can bestowe it in land upon a good title.' This is the 'money which soe longe has layen at randome' of which Mr. Bird writes.

I haue hereby indeauoured to sett forth the whole history of the schoole concernes in westm̄land, which when it is found wilbe a good ground of setlem<sup>t</sup>, of those small Suñes of money which soe longe has layen at randome.

I suppose either the schoolemaster<sup>1</sup> or Wiffm Smith<sup>2</sup> will bringe this to yow, and receaue from yow such further dirēccōns for prouinge Christofer langbane<sup>3</sup> either an executor named in his ffather's will or at last such a pson as in Equity es lyable to answeare the charity, he hauinge receiued the money, who euer was named executor.

I had not tyme to make a draught of the decree, neither indeede could I soe well doe it till I understood what you would order, though I thinke I should haue aduentured on it if I had had one halfe dayes more tyme. I doe therefore desire yow (if yow thinke fitt) when the inquisicon<sup>4</sup> is signed, sett downe in short what yow intend to decre and lett Wiffm Smith, or who els from Barton atends yow, bringe a Coppy of yo<sup>r</sup> minutes to me & I will forthwith drawe a draught of the Decree & send it to yow, and then I suppose when it is ingrossed we shall easily gett it signed by your selfe & other three Com<sup>rs</sup>.

<sup>3</sup> Christopher Langbaine was son of William, Provost Langbaine's brother, for whom see n. 5, p. 351. After his father's death, who dyed 'possessed of a personal estate consistinge for the most part of Cattle and Household Stuffe,' he and his mother 'made a public sale and took the bonds and securities for the money ariseing upon sale of the said personall estate in their or the one of their names, and' 'afterwards upon the said bonds the said Christopher Langbaine did receive and convert to his own use several snmmes of money amounting in the whole to the sname of forty and seven pounds.' The father had in his hands at the time of his death thirty pounds of the school stock, and for four years after his death the widow and Christopher 'or the one of them did truely pay for the interest of the said schoole the Interest yearly due for the said thirty pounds.' On the 22d December, 1670, Christofer Langbaine had 'ncither given security for payment of the said principall sumc of Thirty Pounds heretofore remaininge in the hands of the said William Langbaine nor payed in the Interest money therefore due & arrear.' A brother Humfrey is mentioned in the Commissioners' order as having paid to Christopher twenty Pounds out of the forty-seven which Christopher converted to his own use.

I thinke we had best undertake the flinge of them our selves & not leaue them to M<sup>r</sup> knipe<sup>1</sup>, and though he keepe the Comission that will not hinder the flinge either of the inquisico<sup>n</sup> or decre, or any future pcesse thereupon. I goe to Cockermouth on Wednesday where I shall waite on the worthy Doctor<sup>2</sup>, butt doubt I shall not returne before your meetinge. The schoole booke & what other papers I haue I shall send by the schoolemaster or who els comes from Barton, if I thought the Dr would be at kendall, I would take them with me to Cockermouth, & deliuer them to him there<sup>3</sup>. If yow thinke the deferringe of the decree any way inconuenient be pleased to send back yo<sup>r</sup> direco<sup>n</sup> by the bearer, and if I returne from Cockermouth on Thursday night as phapps I may, I will before Saturday p<sup>r</sup>pare a draught of the decree, & send it to yow to kendall by the Barton men I am S<sup>r</sup>

<sup>3</sup> 'would be at kendall' seems to mean is going to be at Kendal to serve on the Commission. Bird's meaning seems to be that it is of no use troubling Smith with the papers if he is not going to be on the Commission which would be likely to meet at Kendal.

<sup>4</sup> Brougham in Westmorland, on the south side of the Eamont (which here separates Cumberland from Westmorland), along which the parish stretches till the river runs into the Eden, which separates Brougham from Kirkby Thore. It was the Brocavum of the Romans.

PROPOSAL FOR PRINTING A BIBLE<sup>4</sup>.

Endorsed: An intended Edition of the Bible at Oxford.

<sup>4</sup> This document is in the handwriting of Dr. Thomas Smith. It is probably his copy of a printed document. Its date is determined by the circumstances that Fell was not yet bishop of Oxford, which he became in 1675, and that Joseph Williamson had been knighted, which happened in 1672. 'On 1 Oct. 1671, the University assigned to Sir Leoline Jenkins, Dr. Thomas Yate, Dr. John Fell and Joseph Williamson the privilege of printing for three years from Lady Day, 1672, at a yearly rent of 200*li*.' (Wood's Life and Times, ed. Clark, ii. 170, n. 3.)

For y<sup>e</sup> performance of w<sup>ch</sup>, with the caution due to so sacred a work, y<sup>e</sup> Annotations, being drawn up by severall eminent and learned persons in the said University, will, before their being committed to y<sup>e</sup> Presse, be reviewed by divers of the Right Rev<sup>d</sup> Fathers in God y<sup>e</sup> Bishops of this Church, as also by y<sup>e</sup> Professors of Divinity in the said University.

The expediting of this work will be diligently endeavourd by the Assignes of the University for the affaire of Printing, viz: Dr Fell Deane of Christ-Church<sup>1</sup>, Dr Yates Principall of Brasen-nose Colledge<sup>2</sup>, Sr Leoline Jenkins<sup>3</sup>, & Sr Joseph Williamson<sup>4</sup>: who will take care, not onely for the performance of the particulars above-mentioned, but also that a moderate price be set upon the book, when finished.

And if, for y<sup>e</sup> support of y<sup>e</sup> expence of the Edition, and the encouragement of it, well-disposed and religious persons shall think fit to advance any summes of money, Security will be given by the said Assignes for returning to y<sup>e</sup> severall Contributors a Book, or Bookes, according to y<sup>e</sup> proportion of the Summe advanced by them, so as to be of a greater value, by at least a sixth part, then y<sup>e</sup> money by them deposited.

APPENDIX A.

DANIEL FLEMING'S RELATIONS WITH THE COMMITTEE FOR COMPOUNDING.

THE following extracts from Mrs. Green's Calendar of the Committee for Compounding throw a great deal of light on the steps taken by Fleming during his father's life, and after his death, to free the family property from sequestration. The ordinary difficulties which beset those on whom this duty devolved were greatly increased in his case by the circumstances of the family history.

Down to the beginning of the year 1643 the owner of Rydal and some, at all events, of the other family manors was John Fleming who died 27 February of that year, leaving a son, William, and two daughters, Bridget and Agnes. On William's death, as a minor, 12 May, 1649, the estates went to Daniel's father, another William, son of another Daniel who was younger brother of John<sup>1</sup>. When our series of documents begins our Daniel's father was still alive, but he died 24 May, 1653, before the sequestration was discharged.

Meanwhile other persons who supposed themselves to have liens on the property put in an appearance before the Committee, Bridget Fleming, the first William's eldest daughter, now married to Sir Jordan Crosland<sup>2</sup>, and her sister Agnes, who during the proceedings married George Collingwood<sup>3</sup>. A Bindloss<sup>4</sup> too, belonging to the family of John Fleming's mother, also appeared.

With all these interveners, and the duty of determining the degree of 'malignancy' of each of the owners through whose hands the property had passed between 1642 and 1654, it naturally took some time and trouble on the part of the Committee before they were able to grant D. F. his certificates of relief.

Mowson thus got it at 180*l.* Harland coming in after the light was out, offered 200*l.*<sup>1</sup> We think they were employed, one by Sir Jordan Crosland<sup>2</sup>, who married Fleming's eldest sister; the other by Wm. Fleming, of Skirwith, Cumberland, who holds an entail. The estate is not really worth more than 120*l.* We want directions. [1½ pages.]

II.

CALENDAR OF THE COMMITTEE FOR COMPOUNDING, Part I, p. 332.

1650.            29. Gervase Benson, Roger Bateman, and John Archer<sup>3</sup>,
Oct: 14.        County Commissioners for Westmoreland, to the Com-
Kendal.        mittee for Compounding.

We, being members of the late county committee, know that the arrears of the profits of sequestrations, and the fines and compositions set on new delinquents, were, by Act of 2 Mar. 1649, ordered to the use of the county, towards paying the forces raised therein in the late war, and discharging other public engagements. This was done, but came short to discharge the engagements, so that the committee yet owe considerable sums, which they were forced to borrow to pay the Lancashire forces the 4,000*l.* ordered, and ease this county of the burden of free quarter until it was raised, and for other charges which they were required to satisfy. There were no rents due 25 March last, but only a few 1 Aug: last, most at Michaelmas, which we are raising, and hope within 14 days to have them ready to be returned to Goldsmiths' Hall<sup>4</sup>.

The revenue will amount to more than heretofore, only we want directions touching an estate at Rydal sequestered from Wm: Fleming, for which 2,000*l.* was offered for one year, though at the utmost value it was never reputed worth more than 120*l.*; but it being in contest, this was done to gain possession. The estate lies waste, so that the profits thereof this year will scarcely amount to 50*l.* An estate in Kentmere, sequestered from [Chris.] Gilpin<sup>5</sup>, has also been much impaired for want of direction. We want a commission for George Archer to be our agent.

We being also Militia Commissioners have not been able to sit until last Thursday, but having put the forces in a posture, and they being now upon their march, we shall fall close to this business, and sit at Kendal on Wednesday week, and thence weekly until we have got the business thoroughly in hand. [2½ pages.]

Feb:
Kendal.

70. County Committee for Westmoreland, to the Committee for Compounding.

We have sent up John Archer<sup>1</sup>, our treasurer, to pass the accounts for the year. The half-year's rent due at Michaelmas was ready, and we desired your order about the sending it up, as we could not get any sent by way of return, and did not like to hazard it by the carrier; so you ordered it to remain in our hands, and as we cannot get it safely conveyed, we are forced to stay it here.

We have caused courts to be kept within several sequestered manors, and received verdicts, and find a considerable sum may be raised from general and particular fines. We desired direction as they were arbitrable, and also as to the manner of granting copies to the new tenants; but as we have received none, we have suspended further acting, and have directed Mr. Archer to solicit your advice.

The demesne of Rydal in this county being in contest, and the title in dispute, was farmed out for the last year for 2,000*l.* to John Harland, merely to keep the possession, to corroborate the title of the present occupier, but we could never get any security for payment of the money. Edw. Wilson, a member of the late committee, in a time of exigency sent them 60*l.* for the public service, 41*l.* whereof was unpaid till of late, when on his petition we allowed it out of a rent of a sequestered estate which he farms, and desire it may pass in our accounts. ## IV.

CALENDAR OF THE COMMITTEE FOR COMPOUNDING, Part III, pp. 1695-9.

25 March 1647. WM. FLEMING compounds for delinquency in being in arms against Parliament. Submitted in September, and then took the National Covenant.

15 April. Fine 110*l.*

20 April 1649. JORDAN CROSLAND, of Helmsley, co. York, compounds for delinquency in being in arms in the first and second wars.

<sup>3</sup> Mrs. Everett Green expresses in a note here her doubt whether these two Croslands are not identical. They are. Haram or Harome is a village two and a half miles from Helmsley. See n. 10, p. 10.

23 Jan. 1650. Fleming begs allowance of his title to manors, &c., in cos. Lancaster, Westmoreland, and Cumberland. His grandfather, Wm. Fleming, settled them upon himself and his heirs male, with remainder to his right heirs, and died, leaving issue, John and Daniel. John Fleming, 10 years ago, settled them on trustees till his eldest son William was 21 years of age. In 1647 they were sequestered for the supposed recusancy of William, who died a minor, when the appeal of the trustees was pending before the Barons of Exchequer. Mr. Steele<sup>1</sup>, now Recorder of London, the referee of the appellants, delivered his opinion in their favour. Petitioner claims by way of remainder, and begs reference to counsel<sup>2</sup>.

5 Dec. On Brereton's<sup>3</sup> report, order that Rydal Manor be continued under sequestration, Coniston be freed, unless the heir-at-law shew cause to the contrary within a month, and Beckermest be compounded for on petitioner's proving the will mentioned in the report, and the death of Wm. Fleming, the infant<sup>4</sup>. A month longer allowed the heir-at-law.

29 Jan. 1651. If Rydal be sequestered for recusancy only, the mansion house is not to be let; but if for delinquency and recusancy, it is to be let.

19 Feb. Bridget and Agnes Fleming, daughters of John Fleming, beg discharge of lands and tenements in co. Westmoreland, leased 30 Sept. 1648 to Lady Eleanor Lowther<sup>5</sup> and others, by their father, John Fleming, in trust till the majority of his son William, whose heirs they are.

19 Feb. County Commissioners to certify.

26 Feb. 1652. Petition of JORDAN CROSLAND, BRIDGET, his wife [née Fleming], and AGNES FLEMING<sup>6</sup>, for discharge of manors, &c. in cos. Lancaster, Westmoreland, Cumberland, and York, renewed. Wm. Fleming, the infant, was never actually possessed of the premises, which were sequestered as his. The certificate of the County Committee of Westmoreland has miscarried<sup>7</sup>.

26 Feb. Referred to the County Committees of Cumberland and Westmoreland.

23 March. Wm. Fleming, Bridget Crosland, and Agnes Fleming complain that although Wm. Fleming has appealed to the Committee for Compounding for a great part of the estate, by virtue of the entail, and is in actual prosecution thereof, and although Bridget Crosland and Agnes Fleming are prosecuting their appeals for the remainder of it, yet the whole estate is presented in the Committee for Compounding's list to Parliament as that of Wm. Fleming, the infant, deceased. Beg that the

auditor may state that the said estate is under appeal. Noted, for the petition to be transmitted to Garland [to be offered to Parliament].

4 Jan: 1653. Petitioners complain that they are likely to be prejudiced in their claims by the insertion of John Fleming's name in the last Act for Sale. The said John died 23 Feb. 1643, nearly 80 years old; for several years before his death he had not travelled a mile from Rydal, and was never sequestered. Beg relief according to the provisions of the Act.

27 Jan: Jordan Crosland complains that, although a Protestant, he has been returned by the County Committee of Lancaster as a Papist, and owner of Urswick<sup>1</sup>, co. Lancaster, and that his name is inserted in the late Act for Sale. Was never convicted of recusancy, nor ever owner of Urswick, which was first sequestered as Wm. Fleming's, after whose decease, it should have come to petitioner's wife Bridget, and her sister, Agnes Fleming, the coheirs; but they have never had possession<sup>2</sup>.

27 Jan. Committee for Compounding dismiss his petition, because he compounded without mention of any estate in co. Lancaster. The Registrar's certificate ordered to be produced.

28 Jan. Wm. Fleming, on behalf of himself and Agnes and Bridget, begs that, as owing to multiplicity of business, their cases are not heard, the Committee for Compounding will take notice of his appeal, and relieve him<sup>3</sup>.

5 April. Jordan Crosland's petition renewed.

5 April. Committee for Compounding order discharge of his lands in Yorkshire, and the County Committee of Lancashire are to certify in 3 weeks the ground of the first sequestration of Urswick, as they find it in the former County Committee's records.

5 April. Crosland being returned as of Furness, co. Lancaster, and a Papist, proceedings stayed pending further enquiries.

31 May. Wm. Fleming petitions that he applied to have the name of John Fleming, his uncle, expunged from the late Act for Sale, as never being actually sequestered, but could not be heard through multiplicity of business. Renews his petition for a certificate to the Drury House Trustees<sup>4</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> Crosland, though uniting with William Fleming, D. F.'s father, to get the property out of sequestration, seems also to have started independent petitions. His interest and that of his wife and her sister, who became Mrs. Collingwood, were not exactly the same as that of D. F.'s father, and this caused difficulties such as are referred to on p. 25. There was always a fear that Crosland or Collingwood might raise some point which would interfere with the obtaining a certificate from the Commissioners. See p. 37.

31 May. To be heard next week, the case being too long to be debated now.

3 Aug. Brereton<sup>1</sup> to state Crosland's case, and that of the Flemings, as well upon the proviso in the last Act for Sale, as upon the title allowed by the Committee for Removing Obstructions.

7 Sept. John Fleming declared to be within the said proviso, being not sequestered before 1 Dec. 1651, and the sequestration of Coniston and Beckermets manors discharged, the rents, &c., of which are to be paid to Wm. Fleming, with arrears, from 28 June 1650. The Committee for Compounding cannot, on the proof before them, discharge Rydal Manor, but leave him to make further proof.

10 March 1654. Crosland begs to compound for Rydal Manor in the third Act for Sale, having married Bridget Fleming, and had conveyance of the same from Agnes.

14 March. No further proceedings to be taken against Crosland in respect of the estate at Urswick.

31 July. Fine (not given) paid and estate discharged.

March 1654? Daniel Fleming<sup>2</sup>, of Skirwith<sup>3</sup>, co. Cumberland, begs discharge, with restitution of rents<sup>4</sup>, of Rydal Manor, Westmoreland, Beckermets, Cumberland, and Coniston, Lancashire, come to him on the death of his father, Wm. Fleming, who, in 1650, obtained allowance of his title to Coniston and Beckermets, but not to Rydal, that being referred to the Army Committee. Meanwhile his father's name being in the late Act for Sale<sup>5</sup>, he and his father appealed to the Committee for Removing Obstructions, who allowed their title 30 March 1653, and the Trustees for Sale suspended the survey.

21 March 1654. Dan. Fleming, of Coniston, Lancaster, complains that while his title to Rydal Manor, &c., depends, it is surveyed<sup>6</sup> by the Trustees, and begs that if his title be disallowed, he may compound for it. Noted as referred to Reading in order to a composition.

28 June 1650. A motion on behalf of FRANCIS<sup>7</sup>, son [? grandson] of SIR ROBERT BINDLOSS, referred to Brereton.

6 May 1652. Francis Bindloss [of Wherwell, Hants, grandson of Sir Robert, being the second son of Sir Fras. Bindloss, Bart.], begs reference to counsel of his claim to Sherburn Rectory, with two ox-gangs of land, and a tenement conveyed by John Fleming to petitioner, and lately sequestered for the delinquency of Wm. Fleming, his son, both deceased.

<sup>2</sup> D. F. now first appears in the Calendar in his father's place. It was probably to put him in a position to present this petition that his mother executed the resignation for which he paid 00-07-00, 29 May, 1654. See p. 78. This petition was probably the result of, and explains the meetings, surveys, articles and references of pp. 6 and 7.

6 May. Referred to Brereton<sup>1</sup>.

10 June. He begs reference to the County Committee of Yorkshire to certify the cause of the sequestration. Sir Rob. Bindloss, petitioner's grandfather, 18 years ago conveyed to John Fleming, deceased, and others, tithes, lands, &c., in cos. Lancaster and Durham, in trust to employ them for petitioner, in pursuance whereof, John Fleming, 10 Jan. 1626, purchased the rectory of Sherburn, co. York, for 1,500*l.* by him received out of the profits of the estate. Has but lately come of age, and has had a suit in Chancery against Fleming's executors for performance of the said trust, which is lately ordered to be performed, and 4,000*l.* awarded to petitioner, who is directed by the Court to accept the said rectory, which, in regard of his non-age, &c., is unduly sequestered, as John Fleming's estate.

10 June 1652. County Committee to certify the date and cause of sequestration, and Brereton<sup>1</sup> to report on the title.

28 July. Petition renewed, and requesting reference to counsel; some of the lands are unjustly sequestered as Edw. Norris' lands.

28 July. County Committee to certify, and Reading<sup>2</sup> to report.

31 Aug. Bindloss begs reference to the County Commissioners of Lancaster and Cumberland, and that Brereton<sup>1</sup> may report on the whole case. Granted.

14 Oct. A petition (missing) referred to the County Committee of Westmoreland to certify.

18 Nov. On report, sequestration discharged with arrears from 10 June 1652.

23 Nov. His request for arrears from 24 Dec. 1649 referred to the County Committee of York, who are to examine what augmentations are granted out of the rectory by the Committee for Plundered Ministers, and if none, they are to allow him arrears from Dec. 1649.

11 May 1654. Claim allowed<sup>3</sup>, sequestration discharged, and arrears from 31 Aug. 1652 granted.

17 Aug. 1653. The PARISHIONERS OF ULVERSTON, co. Lancaster, beg payment, with arrears, of 10*l.* a year for 20 years, allowed to their minister by John Fleming, to whom King James granted their rectory, and tithes of great value, at 42*l.* rent, on condition of their maintaining a fit chaplain; but Fleming being a Papist delinquent, the rectory is sequestered, and the agent has refused payment the last 2 years.

17 Aug. 1653. Referred to Reading<sup>2</sup>.

Aug. 1654. They petition the County Committee for Lancaster for like allowance, stating that in 1651, the estate became sequestered for the Popery and delinquency of Sir Jordan Crosland, who married Fleming's eldest daughter; they have applied to the Committee for Compounding, who wish a certificate on oath of the payments, and of there being a resident minister, but now they hear that the sequestration has been discharged, with arrears from Aug. 1652.

<sup>2</sup> John Reading, was counsel-at-law to the Committee on Compounding. He received on account of salary 5*l.* a week. He died before 4 Feb. 1657.

5 Jan. 1655. Their claim allowed on report, and the sequestration discharged, with arrears from 24 Dec. 1649.

1 June 1655. JOHN KIRBY<sup>1</sup>, of Kirkby in Furness, co. Lancaster, begs indemnity for having paid to the County Committee 40/., part of a debt of 100/., due to the late John Fleming, for which, and the rest of the debt, the executors, Jordan Crosland and George Collingwood, have arrested and imprisoned him.

1 June. Orders for delivery to him of 2 bonds of 40/ each for payment of the said 40/.

LESSEES OF THE ESTATES.

5 July 1650. THOMAS GARTH<sup>2</sup> and ANTHONY HALE beg to be admitted tenants to the Manor of Rydal, co. Westmoreland, which is under sequestration.

5 July. The County Committee to let the estate to the petitioners, they giving as good rent as any other.

9 July 1651. JOHN WINTER, of Penrith, Cumberland, petitions that Rydal Manor, Westmoreland, sequestered from the late Wm. Fleming, was posted up Nov. 1650, but not let till May 1651, and then let privately to Walter Cowper for 100/., though petitioner offered 200/ and good security. Cowper has assigned his lease to Roger Barwick, a recusant delinquent, for his master, Sir Jordan Crosland, a dangerous delinquent, who keeps possession, to the terror of the well-affected, it being a strong place, and a noted rendezvous for malignants. The late County Committee leased it for 2,000/ for 1650 to Sir Jordan, but no rent has been paid.

Being faithful and a sufferer for the Commonwealth, is troubled at this abuse, and begs examination before the County Committee for Cumberland, the County Commissioners of Westmoreland being the parties complained of; also leave to lease the estate at 200/., and the leviation<sup>3</sup> of the 2,000/ for 1650, on Sir Jordan.

9 July. County Committee for Westmoreland to certify what they know, and to survey the estate, and report how many acres it contains, and whether they have let it by the box; also to give account of what wood was felled last year, and allow no more to be felled without direction<sup>4</sup>.

3 Dec. County Committee denying the truth of the petition, and affirming that Winter himself denies writing it, the Committee for Compounding state that it was drawn and delivered by Wharton, a solicitor<sup>1</sup>, who affirms that he was instructed thereto by Winter.

15 June 1654. JOHN WILSON, of Hornby, co. Lancaster, begs the tithe-rents, for 1651 and 1652, of lands in Urswick and Ulverston, sequestered for Sir Jordan Crosland's delinquency. The lands and tithe-rents being usually farmed together, at the rent of 15*l.* a year, in 1650 offered 23*l.* a year for 7 years, but the County Committee of Lancaster refused to allow him to gather the tithe-rents, saying they have not power to farm rents, so petitioner has only the profits of the lands let but at 17*l.* a year.

15 June 1654. Referred to the County Committee.

CHAR-PYE.

The Char or Charr (Salmo Alpinus, Linn.) is believed to be extinct in Ulleswater, but is found in Windermere, Coniston, Hawes Water, Crummock, Buttermere, Ennerdale and Wastwater. Mr. Macpherson<sup>3</sup> quoting 'Jenyns, cited by Day' identifies the case and the charr which D. F. separates (LXXIII, p. 152). 'This fish,' he says, 'in its ordinary state is the case charr of Pennant; when exhibiting the bright crimson belly which it assumes before spawning, it is called the red charr; when out of season, the spawn having been shed, it is distinguished by the name of the gilt charr.'

The season for Char is from September to February and it is usual to prepare them by baking them well seasoned with spices. In the seventeenth century they were baked in pies of enormous size weighing from thirty to over sixty pounds. It is doubtful if the crusts in which the spiced baked fish was enclosed were eaten; and between 1670 and 1680 tin cases or pots seem to have been substituted for the crust. 'This way of Tinne Crusts does infinitely better,' writes Williamson to D. F. 2 Apr. 1675 (p. 202). That the potted Char of to-day is the same thing as the char-pie of those days seems clear from two quotations from Bishop Nicolson's papers which I owe to the kindness of Bishop Ware. In his list of letters written 22 March, 1707-8, occurs:—'Sir Ja. Montague with a pot of Chars; and thanks for all his favours.' In his diary, under April 3, 1708, Nicolson writes:—'Thence to Mr. Soll<sup>r</sup> Mountague, wth my thanks,' (scil. for getting his Bill about the Cathedral Statutes through the House of Commons) 'and to receive his commands for Carlisle, when again he offers his service' (as M.P.) 'and will accept my help and another Char-pye.'

In Appendix E I have transcribed all the entries in D. F.'s great book of accounts referring to char or case. They will afford full information as to the price of char, the weight of the pies or pots, the cost of their transmission to London or elsewhere, etc.

APPENDIX C.

THE EXPENSE-BOOK OF JAMES MASTER OF TRINITY COLLEGE, CAMBRIDGE.

By the courtesy of the Kent Archæological Society I am allowed to reproduce here a portion of the Expense-Book of James Master, Esq., A.D. 1646 to 1676, a transcript of which appeared in the Archæologia Cantiana, volumes xv-xviii.

The MS. is 'a vellum-covered paper-book of 196 pages, each six inches long by seven and a half broad.'

It contains all the payments of James Master from his twenty-fourth to his fifty-fourth year, 'as a Fellow-Commoner at Trinity College in Cambridge, as a law-student at Lincoln's Inn, as a Kentish bachelor of fortune,' and for the first ten years of his married life. 'It puts before us a young Kentish gentleman, of the Parliamentary party, as somewhat of a dandy, an ardent lover of horses and hawking, frequenting Newmarket when at Cambridge, and a sporting man to the end of his days.' 'At the same time he was a man who read much, and the numerous entries respecting books which he purchased are by no means the least interesting portion of his expense-diary.'

Such a document easily lends itself to comparison in the way of similarity and contrast with the accounts of D. F., and for his Cambridge life with those of Henry Brougham and of D. F.'s sons.

D. F. was of course a Cavalier and a north-countryman, Brougham matriculated as a commoner and Henry Fleming as a batler, Master was forty-four years of age before his expenses are those of a married man, but the community of tastes and circumstances multiplies resemblances between the two sets of accounts.

I have thought it best, instead of selecting items, to print a good block of the Expense-Book from the part in which the largest number of items similar to those in the Fleming accounts occur. I have chosen the beginning of the book, the expenses from November, 1646, to June, 1647, which covers the whole of Master's Cambridge life and his start in London.

The book was transcribed for the Kent Society, by Mrs. Dalison, of Hamptons, and edited by Canon W. A. Scott Robertson. The italics within square brackets are presumably his supplements to what is found in the MS.

LADY FLETCHER'S RELATIONS WITH THE COMMITTEE
FOR COMPOUNDING.

The following extract from Mrs. Everett Green's Calendar of the Committee for Compounding explains how Sir Henry Fletcher's widow came three years later to be taking out outlawries against Brackenbury<sup>4</sup>.

CALENDAR OF THE COMMITTEE FOR COMPOUNDING, PART III, pp. 1662-3.

27 Aug. 1652. John Brackenbury, of Sellaby, co. Durham, prays that he may pay in to the use of the Commonwealth the remainder of 1,000*l.*, endeavoured to be recovered from him by Lady Katherine Fletcher, for which she had a saving to compound, and that her proceedings at law against him may be stayed. By indenture dated 29 July 1640, he conveyed Sellaby lordship to Henry, afterwards Sir Henry Fletcher,

Bart., for securing 1,000*l.* to be repaid by 1 Aug. 1644; if petitioner failed to pay, Sir Henry was to pay 2,516*l.* more for the entire purchase. In 1642 Sir Henry, pretending petitioner had broken the covenants, put in suit against him a bond for 2,000*l.*, and procured a judgment. After his death as a delinquent at the battle of Chester, the County Committee, in Jan. 1646, sequestered petitioner's real and personal estate for the debt, and raised 300*l.* or 400*l.* out of it, and Lady Fletcher has brought a suit against him.

31 Aug. Henry Darley, formerly governor of Berwick, recommends Brackenbury's case.

31 Aug. Note of a saving of Lady Fletcher to compound for a debt of 1,000*l.*

1 Sept. Brackenbury is ordered to forbear payment to Lady Fletcher, who is summoned to shew cause why the 1,000*l.* should not be levied, she having neglected to compound for it, and he is to have the protection of the Committee for Compounding in attending the business.

19 Oct. Lady Fletcher pleads the late Act of Pardon as freeing the debt from seizure. She was never a delinquent, nor was the debt ever seized or sequestered. Prays she may not be denied the benefit of the lawful recovery of the debt.

19 Oct. Ordered to bring her case to a hearing.

12 Nov. She prays continuation of her saving, producing the auditor's certificate that the County Committee never received anything of the said debt.

23 Nov. Witnesses to be examined by commission to the County Committee of Durham.

24 and 25 Nov. 1652. Brackenbury summoned, and granted further protection.

6 Sept. 1653. Judgment postponed.

11 Jan. 1654. Lady Fletcher renews her petition to proceed on her saving for the 1,000*l.* due from Brackenbury.

11 Jan. Admitted to compound, unless Brackenbury shew cause to the contrary in 14 days.

APPENDIX E.

EXTRACTS FROM DANIEL FLEMING'S GREAT BOOK OF ACCOUNTS.

The Great Book of Accounts is a folio manuscript book 11 $\frac{3}{4}$ "  $\times$  7 $\frac{3}{4}$ " containing 624 pages. D. F. calls it MS. U. A booke of my owne Receipts and Disbursem<sup>ts</sup>. The first entry in it is a Receipt dated 7 June, 1656, and the last a Disbursement on 31 May, 1688.

The book was also used to contain special sets of Receipts and Disbursements, e.g. 'Receipts of y<sup>e</sup> Exchequer Estreats 1661,' the first year in which he was sheriff of Cumberland, 'A particuler of moneys due unto mee, either unreceived or unaccounted for,' 'A Particuler of y<sup>e</sup> Receipts of Dan. Fleming esq; & Mr Roger Fleming his brother, as executors to Mrs Agnes Dudley of Yainwith,' &c. These entries, where they occur, break the continuous account.

The Receipts and Disbursements are not, as is elsewhere usual, on opposite pages, but half a page, a page or more of Disbursements are followed by a page or more of the contemporary receipts. The dates of the entries are the dates of making the entries, the dates of the receipts or payments, especially if not made by himself, are generally added. In these extracts the order of the manuscript is followed, so some later receipts may in places precede some earlier disbursements.

At the end of the book are some special entries such as 'A Perticuler of what corne, when, & where, sowne at Rydall since Mar. 25, 1669,' and similar entries of corne threshed & winnowed for 1669 and following years till 1674; 'Servants Wages, what, when & to whom due'; account of his daughters' portions, and the beginning of an Index to the items of account.

Forty-four pages of extracts from the book are given in the Report on Mr. le Fleming's Manuscripts in Part VII of the Appendix to the Twelfth Report of the Historical Manuscripts Commission. I have included in my selection such entries as bear upon the subjects of the letters contained in this volume, especially such as concern education, learning, the family of Fleming and its connexions. I have left the entries in the order in which they occur in the book, but I have in one place inserted from a paper amongst the Rydal Manuscripts some entries from the detailed accounts of a visit to London, where the book of accounts only contains a summary.

<sup>8</sup> There was from early times a prevalent notion that the first unmarried person of the other sex any one met on St. Valentine's Day, 14 February, was the destined wife or hnsband as the ease might be. About D. F.'s time there would seem to have been a sort of game on St. Valentine's eve of drawing lots to determine who should be each one's Valentine for the following day. Married and single took part in the drawing, and the lady at all events had a sort of property in her Valentine till he was redeemed by a present. 'In those days Valentine's Day was a very serious ocession. All manner of devices were thought of in order to see first the one you wished to see, and not to see the one you did not wish to have as a valentine. When a young lady did you the honour of writing your name on her breast you had to pay for it' (Wheatley's Pepysiana, p. 226). In Pepys' Diary (see Wheatley's Index) may be found instances of all the different modes of gaining a valentine, (1) the ehancee of first seeing, (2) the ehooosing by lot or otherwise, and (3) the writing the name on the breast.

<sup>2</sup> For Taylor's 'Holy Living,' see n. 2, p. 85. The 'Rule and exercises of Holy Dying' was published in 12mo in 1651. It has proved even more popular than the 'Holy Living.' A twenty-first edition was published in 1710, and frequent editions appeared in the nineteenth century, no less than seven having been issued by Pickering. (D. N. B. s.v. Jeremy Taylor.)

<sup>11</sup> See n. 3, p. 91. The Woodburnes were a Furness family. 'Jan Woodburne daughter of Rodger Woodburne of Scathwaite, tourney' was born 30 June, 1654, and 'Roger Woodbourne son of Roger woodbourne of Ulverstone Attorney, borne October 23' was christened 2 November 1674. (Ulverstone Registers, pp. 127, 137.)

<sup>12</sup> Duke seems to be a nick-name. Both the families of Skelton, that of Armathwaite Castle and that of High-house seem to have intermarried with the same families as the Flemings and the Fletchers.

<sup>5</sup> Robert Jackson was of course a not uncommon name in Kendal. This is perhaps the one who was 'son of the late Samuel Jackson of Ambleside' apprenticed in 1640 to John Archer, mercer. In that case he may be the Robert Jackson who was Sworne as Alderman y<sup>e</sup> 4th of Sept. 1654 and the 'Robert Jackson, Mercer, sworne' as Mayor 30 of September, 1655. (A booke off Recorde of Kirkbie Kendall, pp. 19, 25, 271.)

<sup>6</sup> Henry, son of Richard Lowther of Ingleton, belonged to a younger branch of the Lowthers of Lowther. He was about 25 years of age at this time. He married Margaret, daughter of Miles Halton of Graystock and sister of Timothy Halton, afterwards Provost of Queen's College, Oxford. After the death of her husband she kept house for her brother in Oxford.

<sup>3</sup> See Appendix B. There is no payment for the charrs the fishing of which he rented, see above 11 Oct. 1658, if it did not belong to him.

<sup>4</sup> R.P. 358 is a letter from Thomas Dykes dated Cockermouth, Apr. 12. 59 in which he tells D.F. 'I doubt nott butt he will overcome his Distemp'; 'he cann both contractt itt upwards, and also extend itt Downwards; and wth the helpe of his maid walke a turne or tow very prettylie oue the chamb<sup>r</sup>, and this for six weeks tyme is as much as cann be expected.' The (10) means that, though entered on the 14th, the sum was actually paid on the 10th.

<sup>1</sup> Probably George Fothergill, clerk of the peace for Westmorland, to whom R. P. 1608 is addressed. He was of Tarn House, Ravenstonedale, and also Receiver of the King's Revenues. He rebuilt Tarn House in 1664, and died in 1681. He married (1) Julian, dau. of Richard Skelton, M.P. for Cumberland, and (2) Margaret Birkbeck.

<sup>2</sup> He is probably the clerk of the peace for Cumberland, as George Fothergill was of Westmorland. The Brisco pedigree does not give the occupations of the members of the family. Ten years before this two Briscos seem to have been County Commissioners for Cumberland under the Committee for Compounding. John was complained of by his colleagues for want of zeal, but petitions the Committee for recompense, stating that he 'observantly and faithfully acted according to his talent.' (Calendar of Committee for Compounding, pp. 267, 285, 304, 377, 390.) William, who is described as late County Commissioner for Cumberland, joins John Barvis in complaint of the return of sequestrations in the County and in suggesting alterations. (ib. p. 232.) This may be the William, described as of Sowterfield, who was fined £60, 25 Apr. 1650 (ib. p. 202), of which £20 was paid to the Cumberland Committee as a compensation for delinquency in the late war. The Sowterfield branch separated from the Crofton stock early in the seventeenth century; William (perhaps this one, or his father), who married the sister of Bishop Scnhouse of Carlisle (1624-6), being younger brother of John the head of the Crofton family.

By William Glisson and Anthony Gnlston, Esquires, Barristers at Law. The Bodleian has only the Second Edition published in 1679. 8°. The Epistle Dedicatory is dated Staple Inne, January 20th, 1658, and is signed Hen. Applegarth, who states in it that the Tract was written in French and translated by himself. <sup>3</sup> 'About a mile south of Kirkby Crosshouse there is an old house called now Low Hall to distinguish it from Kirkby Hall or Crosshouse (which is often called High Hall), but which was formerly known by the name of Low Barn.' It seems to have been built early in the second quarter of the seventeenth century by Roger Kirkby for a junior branch of the family, or else for a farmhouse. (See *Cumbd. and Westmd. <sup>8</sup> St. Mongah's Well is in the lower reach of Copgrove Park, four miles west-south-west of Boroughbridge, near to the gamekeeper's residence there, and in an outbuilding close to that house is an open air-bath, which is filled by water from the spring. The water contains no mineral, its chief virtue being its intense coldness. Children are dipped in two or three times and immediately taken out again. St. Mongath, Mungo, or Kentigern was a native of Scotland. (R. C. Hope's Holy Wells of England, pp. 203, 204.) The Bodleian has The York-shire Spaw, or a Treatise of four famous Medicinal Wells, viz. the Spaw, or Vitrioline-Well; the stinking, or Sulphur-Well; the dropping, or Petrifying-Well; and St Mugnus-Well, near Knaresborow in York-shire. Wherein the Judgment of Antiquity is laid down. Published by His Majesties special Command. With an Appendix, containing an Answer to the late printed Objections of the Presbyterians against the Fast of Lent. By Peter Gunning, D.D., Regius Professor, Chaplain in Ordinary to His Majesty, and Master of St. John's Colledg Cambridg. London, Printed by R. Norton for Timothy Garthwait, 1662. (Sm. 4<sup>o</sup>. Bodl.)

<sup>7</sup> This is probably A new Book of Loyal English Martyrs and Confessors, who have endured the Pains and Terrors of Death, Arraignment, etc. for the Maintenance of the just and legal Government of these Kingdoms both in Church and State, by James Heath, Student of Christ Church. Wood (Athenæ, iii. 664) says it was published 1663 in 12mo., but there seems to be some doubt about the date as Brit. Mus. Cat. puts it [1665?]. The title-page sometimes has a date later than the real date of issue in order to make the book seem a new one longer.

<sup>8</sup> Probably The History of the Life and Death of S<sup>r</sup> Thomas More, Lord High Chancellor of England, in King Henry the Eighth's time. Collected by J. H. Gent: London, Printed for George Eversden, and Henry Eversden, and are to be sold at the Maiden-head, and Grayhound in St. Pauls Church-yard, 1662. (12<sup>o</sup> Bodl.) This is the second edition. Of the first edition the Bodleian has Bishop Tanner's Copy with two title-pages. In one of them Jo: Hoddesdon is given as the author, in the other J. H. Gent. as in the second edition. The Title begins Tho. Mori Vita & Exitus. The date is 1652.

<sup>1</sup> There are at least three productions of Prynne to which the name Apology belongs. In 1644 appeared an Apology against a Pretended Calumny in answer to James Howell esq., In 1649-50, anonymously, an Apology for subscribers to the New Engagement. The one here bought is probably A moderate seasonable Apology for indulging just Christian Liberty to truly tender Consciences, Conforming to the Publike Liturgy. In, Not Bowing at, or to the Name of Jesus; and not Kneeling in the Act of receiving the Lords Supper; according to His Majesties most Gracious Declaration to all his Loving Subjects, concerning Ecclesiasticall Affairs, By William Prynne Esquire, A Bencher of Lincolnes Inne: London Printed for the Author by T. <sup>5</sup> Probably The larger Treatise concerning Tithes, Long since written and promised by Sir Hen: Spelman Knight. Together with some other Tracts of the same Authour, and a Fragment of Sir Francis Bigot Knight, all touching the same Subject. Whereunto is annexed, An Answer to a Question of a Gentleman of quality made by a Revcrend and Learned Divine living in London, concerning the settlement or abolition of Tithes by the Parliament, which caused him to doubt how to dispose of his son, whom he had designed for the Ministry. Wherein also are comprised, Some Animadversions upon a late little Pamphlet called, The Countries plea against Tithes: discovering the ignorant mistakings of the Authours of it touching the maintenance of the Ministry by such means: As also, upon the Kentish Petition. Published by Jer. Stephens B.D. According to the appointment and trust of the Author. London, Printed by M. F. for Philemon Stephens at the Gilded Lion in Pauls Church-yard. 1647. (Bodl. 4<sup>o</sup>.) There was however another book in vogue at the time ascribed to Spelman called Tythes too hot to be touched: certain learned Treatises, proving Tythes to be due by the Laws of Naturc; Reason and Scripturc, and not Jewish, Popish or Inconvenient. Sm. 4<sup>o</sup>. (London's Catalogue of Books, 1658.) T. Thorp of Reading had a copy for sale 1903.

<sup>2</sup> There is a Calendarium Catholicum for 1689 in the British Mnsenm of which there was a copy (now, 1903, missing) in the Bodleian, but I have found no trace of one for any other year. The book here meant is probably Wharton's almanack which from 1657 to 1660 appeared as Calendarium ecclesiasticum and from 1661 onwards as Calendarium Carolinum. The Almanack for 1662 is Calendarium Carolinum: or, A New Almanack After the Old Fashion. For the Yeare of Man's Creation 5611. Redemption 1662. The second after Bissextile or Leap-Year. Respecting the Meridian and Latitude of Kirkby-Kendall, where the Vertex is distant from the Equator 54°. 50'. and whose Longitude counted from the Canary-Islands is 10°. 40'. To which is added Gesta Britannorum, or a brief chronology for 61. complete years, viz. from the year 1600 untill the present 1662. Being the Fourteenth of His Majesties Reign, the Third of his Restauration. By George Wharton. Idem per diversa. London, Printed by J. G. for the Company of Stationers, 1662. (Bodl. sm. 8°.) For Wharton see n. 8, p. 409.

See n. 7, p. 84, n. 7, p. 86, and notes 2 and 7, p. 88.

<sup>4</sup> Tottridge is in Hertfordshire 2 miles from Barnet. Sir George Fletcher was married there to his first wife (see n. 8, p. 9), and his father-in-law, the first Baron Coleraine, was buried there in 1667. The manor of Astwick in the neighbouring parish of Hatfield seems to have belonged to the Hare family in the beginning of the seventeenth century. No trace is left of Lord Coleraine's place of burial.

<sup>5</sup> It would seem from this entry and what follows on Junc<sup>o</sup> 29 that this visit to London was partly at all events to get advice about D. F.'s eldest son. The Chester coach would take them on their road as far as Darlaston Bridge, 42 miles short of Chester. Thence the road to Carlisle through Kendal diverges from the Holyhead Road. See n. 6, p. 65.

<sup>3</sup> The oldest tragedy in English and in blank verse. It 'relates the efforts of Gorboduc, king of Britain, to divide his dominions between his sons Ferrex and Porrex; a fierce quarrel ensues between the princes, which ends in their deaths and in the death of their father, and leaves the land a prey to civil war.' The first three acts were written by Thomas Norton (for whom see D. N. B., s.v.) and the two last by Thomas Sackville, first Earl of Dorset and Baron Buckhurst. It was first performed on Twelfth night 1560-1 in the Inner Temple Hall, and twelve days later in the same place before Queen Elizabeth. It was first printed without authority by William Griffith in 1565 as 'The Tragedie of Gorboduc,' and five years later with authority by John Day as 'The Tragidie of Ferrex and Porrex.'

<sup>4</sup> The earliest edition of this Almanack in the Bodleian is Poor Robin. 1664. An Almanack After a New Fashion. Wherein the Reader may see (if he be not blinde) many remarkable things worthy of Observation. Containing a two-fold Kalender, Viz, The Julian or English; and the Roundheads or Fanaticks with their several Saints daies, and Observations, upon every month. Written by Poor Robin Knight of the Burnt-Island, a well-willer to the Mathematicks. Calculated for the Meridian of Saffron-Walden, where the Pole is elevated 52 degrees and 6 minutes above the Horizon. London, Printed for the Company of Stationers. (Bodl. Sm. 8°.) The British Museum has no earlier Poor Robin and in the Catalogue the authorship is ascribed to Robert Herrick, the Poet, but this tradition is contradicted by Mr. A. H. Bullen in D. N. B., s.v., and Poor Robin identified with Robert Winstanly of Saffron Walden, a brother of Henry the projector of the Eddystone Lighthouse. Mr. H. Ecroyd Smith gives an account of him and his works in Notes and Queries, 6th ser. vii. 321, and states that the Almanack was commenced by several hands, probably including Poor Robin, in 1662; but from 1663 was compiled by him alone till his death, after which it was continued by others until 1776. Several imitations were attempted later. The Bodleian copy of the 1664 Poor Robin has 47 pages.

<sup>6</sup> R. P. 488 is a letter from Thomas Smith to D. F. dated 9 June, 1662. In it he mentions 'Your Uncle John Fleming's death, whereof we had notice here on Wednesday last: he was buried on y<sup>o</sup> Sunday before, and I heare he hath made you & yo<sup>r</sup> Annt Dudley his Executors.' For John Fleming see n. 4, p. 69, n. 7, p. 78, and n. 2, p. 104. The Wednesday before June 9, 1662, was June 4. Nicolson and Burn (i. 163) say he died 30 May. He was buried at Kirkland, where Bishop Nicolson found his Epitaph and those of his father and mother. (See Nicolson's Miscellany Accounts of the Diocese of Carlile, edited by R. S. Ferguson, pp. 62, 63.)

<sup>6</sup> Hudibras. The First Part. Written in the time of the late Wars. London, Printed by J. G. for Richard Marriot, under Saint Dunstan's Church in Fleetstreet. 1663. The Imprimatur is dated Novemb. 11. 1662. Hudibras, The Second Part. By the Authour of the First. London. Printed by T. R. for John Martyn, and James Allestry at the Bell in St Pauls Church-yard, 1664. The Imprimatur is dated Novemb. 5th, 1663. Both are in Queen's College Library. On the title-page of the first part is written: The Author one Mr. Butler, steward or some way a servant to my Lord Cherbury. the Kinge after he had read the Poeme told my Lord Carbury y<sup>t</sup> he must see Hudibras (soc he called the Author) and when he came to y<sup>e</sup> Kinge he gaue him an 100 or 50<sup>li</sup>.

<sup>8</sup> It does not seem clear whether Baxter's school was kept in some room in Rydal Hall or in the village. D. F. seems in any case to have kept it in repair, see p. 453, entry under 13 Nov. 1669. He appears in Banckes' & Hall's absence to have done messages for the family at Ambleside, Kendal, and elsewhere. He seems however to have kept a regular school, as D. F.'s children get periodical allowances for the annual barring-out.

<sup>10</sup> If the Pies were all of the same size we might infer from this and the next entry that 33 charrs and the necessary amount of pastry to enclose them and the spices with which they were baked weighed 36 pounds.

<sup>2</sup> ΕΦΗΜΕΡΙΣ: or, a Diary Astronomical and Astrological For the Year of Grace 1665. It being the First after the Bissextile, or Leap-Year. Containing 1. The Motions and Aspects of the Planets, Eclipses of the Luminaries, Full Sea, Ternes and their Returns, Monthly Observations, Weather, &c. 2. A General Judgement on the Year from the Suns Ingress into the Vernal Equinox. 3. A Short Discourse of the holy Feast of Easter: With other things of necessary Use and Consequence. By John Gadbury, Φιλομαθηματικός. Non multa, sed multum. London: Printed by Ja. Cotterel, for the Company of Stationers. (Bodl. 12mo.) It is not pagged, but runs to 44 pages.

<sup>7</sup> Richard Patrickson, son of John Patrickson and Bridget, eldest daughter of Sir Richard Fletcher of Hutton and sister of Sir Henry, D. F.'s wife's father, was therefore first cousin of Mrs. Fleming. Calder Abbey was the marriage portion of Mrs. John Patrickson, having been bought by Sir Richard Fletcher from the Leighs, to whom Henry VIII granted it at the dissolution. Richard Patrickson sold it to Mr. John Tiffin of Cockermouth, who gave it to his grandson John Senhouse.

<sup>4</sup> Wad, according to Mr. J. G. Goodchild (Transactions of Cumberland Association, No. 8, p. 189), is the scientific name for Earthy Manganese. It is the local name in Westmorland for plumbago or blacklead, a form of carbon, found in Borrowdale and used at Keswick for making lead-pencils.

Devonshire, at this time belonged to Thomas Preston, who had been high sheriff of the county. His wife was Catherine, daughter of Sir Gilbert Houghton, of Houghton Tower in the same county. His cousinship was through his step-mother Margaret, daughter of Sir Thomas Strickland of Sizergh, who was sister to Dorothy, wife of John Fleming of Ridale, who died 1642 and was elder brother of Daniel, D. F.'s grandfather.

<sup>1</sup> James Cock or Cocke, mercer, appears in the records of Kendal as early as 1621, when an apprentice to him is enrolled. He was one of the twenty-four assistants and Chamberlain 1622, as Nicholas Cock had been in 1598. He was an alderman in 1624 before Charles I came in, and appears again in lists of aldermen in 1645 and 1654, and he was Mayor in 1653. He is mentioned as an Alderman in Charles I's charter of 1637. James Cock jun., probably a son, was sworn in as 'Mercer freman' in 1655, and was Mayor in 1681. Which of the two is the James Cock mentioned as Alderman in Charles II's Charter of 1684 is doubtful. (Boke of Recorde of Kirkbie Kendall, pp. 16, 18, 21, 23, 25, 37, 61, 268, 315, 365.) John Cock, fellow of Queen's 1680, for whom see n. 3, p. 331, was probably a son, though his father may have been the 'Johes Cocke,' Wright, Whiller, etc. sworn in as freeman 3 May, 1649. <sup>2</sup> See n. 16, p. 407. Applethwait is half way between Bowness and Ambleside on the shore of Lake Windermere. Calgarth the seat of the Philipsons is in the township. The play was The most pleasant Comedy of Mucedorus, the King's Sonne of Valentia, and Amadine, the King's Daughter of Arragon. With the merry Conceits of Mouse. It is said in some of the old catalogues to be Shakspeare's. It is rather a kind of droll or farce than a regular comedy, and used frequently to be performed for the diversion of country people at Christmas time. (Baker's Biographia Dramatica, iii. 61.) It was printed at least five times between 1598 and 1668. It was being represented at Witney, 3 Feb. 1657, when an accident happened by which some lives were lost and many persons wounded. (J. P. Collier's History of English Dramatic Poetry, ii. 118.)

Cowper's Hawkshead, p. 558). The cousinship is probably due to his descent from Richard Harrison of Martindale (a valley which runs up from Ulleswater to Kidsty Pike, parallel to Patterdale), who married Jane Fleming, eldest daughter of William Flemmyng, D. F.'s great-grandfather, by his first wife Margaret, daughter of Sir John Lamplugh of Lamplugh.

The first Number is dated Munday, March 6. 166 $\frac{2}{3}$ ; the twenty-eighth, Munday, October 21, 1667. The first volume, of which the Dedication to the Royal Society is signed by Henry Oldenburg, contained the twenty-two Numbers published up to Monday, February 11. 1666. Oldenburg was one of the Secretaries of the Royal Society, but the publication was not at first official. The second volume contains ten numbers, the last of which Number 32 was published Monday, February 10, 1667-8; and the third twelve numbers ending with Numb. 44, published Monday, Februar. 15, 1668-9. The pagination goes on from volume to volume. Owing to the fire of London Number 18 was printed for John Crook, Number 19 for John Crook and Mose Pits, and Number 20 for Moses Pitt, but with the twenty-first number the Printing was 'return'd to the first Printer thereof.'

<sup>6</sup> Described by J. O. Halliwell (Dict. of Archaic Words, s. v.) as 'a trivial game very common in former days, and not yet laid aside. A shilling or other smooth coin was placed on the extreme edge of the shovel-board, and propelled towards a mark by a smart stroke with the palm of the hand.' Thomas Masters of New College wrote a Latin Poem on it called 'Mensa Lubrica,' which with a translation into English verse is appended to 'D. Henrici Savillii Oratio coram Regina Elizabetha Oxoniæ habita' printed at the University Press, 1658.

<sup>7</sup> Probably Richard Brathwayt of Warcop son of George and Winifrede daughter of Sir Richard Fletcher of Hutton and aunt of D. F.'s wife. He married Mariana daughter of James Chaloner of Gisborough in Yorkshire and was at this time about thirty years of age.

<sup>8</sup> This is probably George Thomson, M.D. of Leyden, and the book referred to may be either Loimologia, a treatise on the plague of London, 1665; or Galenopale, an attack on English methods of practice, published in the same year; or Λοιμοτομία, another treatise on the plague, published 1666. present year. 1669. London, Printed for T. Basset, at the George in Fleetstreet, and Chr. Wilkinson, at the Black-boy against S. Dunstons Church. 1670. (Bodl. 12<sup>o</sup>.) Warlinson's copy ascribes the continuation to Xtoph. Wilkinson y<sup>e</sup> Bookseller.

<sup>5</sup> Miss Armitt kindly informs me that 'The Wray, Grasmere, now owned and inhabited by Mrs. Simpson, still keeps its ancient name. It lies close under Silver How, on a flat meadow. Though possessed by Sir Daniel Fleming and handed over by him to his eldest son, it formed no part (as did three other properties in Grasmere) of the Rydal Manor, but was held only by customary tenure of the Richmond fee.' It probably soon passed out of the hands of the Flemings, as no later mention is found of it in the le Fleming Papers.

<sup>2</sup> This was the first baronet, son of the old Lady Lowther, D. F.'s grand-aunt, b. 20 Feb. 1605, M.P. for Cumberland 1628-9 and again 1660, Sheriff of Cumberland 1661-2. His first wife was sister of D. F.'s wife's father. The second wife who is here mentioned was Elizabeth, widow of W. Leigh and daughter of Sir John Hare of Stow Bardolph, Norfolk. He died 1675 and was succeeded by his grandson the 'cosin' of May 28 below.

<sup>10</sup> A music-master. He taught music to D. F.'s daughters for several years, the virginals as well as the harpsichord and manichord.

<sup>11</sup> Harpsichord, a keyboard instrument of music (resembling in appearance the grand piano), in which the strings were plucked and set in vibration by quill or feather points set in jacks (upright pieces of wood fixed to the backs of the key-levers) connected by levers with the keys. Evelyn (Diary 5 Oct. 1664) speaks of it as a newly-invented instrument at that time. (Murray, s.v.) The form harpsicall is probably from a false analogy with virginal.

F.'s father's sister, and brother of the Andrew who married Catherine Lawson, see notes 7 and 8, p. 5; and n. 1, p. 105. He was a merchant at Newcastle, where he married Mary, daughter of John Emerson who was mayor there, had a large family and died 14 June, 1679. Alexander, D. F.'s youngest brother, who had also been in business at Newcastle, had died owing money as was alleged to his mother and his brothers D. F. and William and left Joseph Huddleston his Executor. Legal proceedings were taken. On 18 November, 1670, 05 09 09 is set down as expended in the matter, and on April 4, 1671, another sum of 11 13 00 is again expended: Mr. Bird was apparently employed as attorney against Huddleston. <sup>10</sup> R. P. 1146 is a letter from William Potter, dated Kendal, 19 May, 1670, sending five gallons of the best Rhenish wine that can be got, costing 3s. 8d. per gallon, besides carriage. William Potter was one of the twenty-four assistants of the town and chamberlain at the end of James I's reign. He was promoted to be Burgess in 1640, Alderman in 1650, and Mayor in 1659 and again in 1671. In the list of Mayors he is described as 'chanler,' but the different trades were not kept apart. In 1643 he was one of the Ensigns of the military force of the town. Other members of the family also have their names in the 'Boke off Recorde of Kirkbiekendall.'

<sup>3</sup> The Fords or Forths seem to have been a family of pewtcrers and brasiers in Kendal during the seventeenth century. Richard Forth was alderman and so mentioned in Charles I's charter of 1637, and Lancelot Forth was mayor in 1684 when Charles II granted his charter and again in 1708. This may be a connexion of the Mr. and Mrs. Forth or Ford with whom D. F.'s sons boarded while they were at school.

<sup>4</sup> John Girlington of Thurland Castle in Lancashire, not far from Kirkby Lonsdale, married Margaret daughter of James Duckett of Grayrigg, esq. and sister to Anthony who married Elizabeth, daughter of John Dalston of Acornbank. This would in the language of the day make Girlington a cousin, but there were other relationships between Flemings and Duckets. This John Girlington may be the Sir John Girlington, 'a strong malevolent,' who was besieged and taken prisoner in Thurland Castle by Col. Ashton in 1643.

<sup>2</sup> Possibly William, the youngest brother of Lady Bradshagh, but almost certainly William, son of Joseph, and her nephew, afterwards baronet (er. 1676), now about 17 years of age. He married, not Luey Fletcher, but Isabel, elder daughter and heir of John Stapleton, of Warter, co. York, by whom he had three sons and three daughters. (See Foster's Pedigree of Lord Muncaster.) The 'eosin' ship was probably through the Huddlestons.

<sup>3</sup> Luey, eldest daughter of Sir George Fletcher, could not have been more than sixteen years of age at this time. She married eventually, not William Pennington, but Francis Bowes, esq., son of Sir Thomas or Sir Francis Bowes.

<sup>5</sup> This may be either a law-writer (see n. 5, p. 56) or a writing-master, see n. 5, p. 199.

<sup>7</sup> For the Leyburnes of Cunswick see n. 5, p. 37. Thomas was the second son of John, for whom see p. 420, who by the death of his elder brother William, had become the head of the family. He married Dorothy, sole heir of William Lascelles of Braekenbury, co. York, and was fifty-eight years old at the time of his death.

<sup>4</sup> For Richard Kirkby see n. 1, p. 9. He had three wives and sons by all of them. Roger the eldest son would now be 24 years of age, Richard the second 16, Greville the fourth 11, and William the third some age between Richard and Greville. Either Richard or William is probably the one here tipped.

<sup>9</sup> Rendezvous, from the French, render yourselves or repair to a place, is most often used for a place appointed for the assembling of troops or ships, as in Hamlet, IV. iv. 4 'You know the rendezvous'; but occasionally, as perhaps here, for the assembly or meeting itself.

<sup>15</sup> He was Captain of his election at Westminster 1675, and elected to Cambridge 1678. Welch doubts whether he is the William Banckes who took his B.A. and M.A. from Pembroke in 1681 and 1685, or the Joseph (should be James) of Trinity, who took B.A. in 1682 and M.A. in 1686. Cambridge, was consecrated bishop of Chester 9 Feb. 167<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub> and died 16 July, 1686. He was the author of the well-known book on The Creed. His life is in D. N. B. His predecessor Wilkins had died 19 Nov. 1672.

<sup>2</sup> Richard Duckett of Gilthwaiterigg, in Staveley and Hugill, in the parish of Kendal (Nicolson and Burn, i. 139), was at this time undersheriff of Westmorland. He is mentioned in n. 1, p. 204, and was a member of the second (1670) commission on Barton School (n. 1, p. 361). Sir G. F. Duckett (Duchetiana, p. 27) has a difficulty in determining his relationships, but he almost certainly belonged legitimately or illegitimately to the Grayrigg family, for whom see n. 2, p. 206.

<sup>11</sup> These are doubtless the stone-pills first brought from Oxford April 6, 1664 (p. 420), and again 11 Aug. 1665 (p. 425). Dr. J. F. Payne kindly writes: 'What the "Stone-Pills" were it is impossible to say; no doubt some secret remedy. Possibly they contained oyster-shells, soap, or some form of alkali, like the celebrated secret remedy of Joanna Stephens; for which parliament in the eighteenth century was induced to pay a large sum. Alkalies have no doubt some efficacy, though not a very powerful one, in that disease.'

<sup>6</sup> 'One of the regulations for Kendal School was that it should be "free to all boys resident in the parish of Kendal for classics alone, excepting a voluntary payment of a cockpenny as aforetime at Shrovetide." The "Literary Rambler," who contributed a series of papers to the Kendal Chronicle in 1812 (when the custom was commonly observed), remarked: "A stranger to the customs of the country will suspect something whimsical in this name, but it has its foundation in reason; for the boys of every school were divided into parties every Shrovetide, headed by their respective captains, whom the master chose from among his pupils. This was probably done in imitation of the Romans, who appointed the principes pivenum (? juvenum) on certain occasions. These juvenile competitors contended in a match at football, and fought a cock-battle, called the captains' battle, in both which contests the youthful rivals were not more interested than their parents." Though the barbarous sport had disappeared, the payment of a cockpenny survived certainly until the middle of this century.' (Daniel Scott's Bygone Cumberland and Westmorland, p. 242.)

<sup>10</sup> See n. 10, p. 455. The Virginal was a stringed instrument played by means of a keyboard, like the modern pianoforte. It was in form like a box, or desk of wood without legs or supports, and was usually placed upon a table or stand. The strings were of metal, one for each note, and the sound was made by pieces of quill, whalebone, leather, or occasionally elastic metal, attached to slips of wood called 'jacks' which were provided with metal springs. Probably derived from virgæ. It was also called spinet, from the spines or quills with which the string was sounded, and was the precursor of the harpsichord (see n. 11, p. 455), now superseded by the pianoforte. He succeeded his brother as Duke of Norfolk, Earl of Arundel, Surrey and Norfolk in 1677. He gave to the University of Oxford the 'Arundel Marbles' which had been collected in Italy in the reign of James I by Thomas Howard, Earl of Arundel, his grandfather.

<sup>10</sup> Burgh upon Sands, in Cumberland, near where the Eden runs into the Solway Frith and where the Wall of Hadrian runs down into the sea, a lordship of the Dacres, which came to the Howards with Graystock castle. Here Edward I died.

<sup>11</sup> The Duke of Norfolk at this time was suffering from the effects of an old attack of brain fever, from which he never recovered. The Earl of Norwich, who had not yet succeeded to these lordships, was probably acting on his brother's behalf. The tenants may have been in doubt as to whom to pay, as Charles Howard, Lord Norwich's fourth brother, afterwards wrested from him at law the barony of Graystock. To Burgh the Earl seems to have succeeded without opposition, and he sold it to the Lowthers in 1689.

D. F. paid 02 01 00 to the owner on the 1st November of this year, 'my son Wilson for his horse which my son Henry ridd unto Oxford on.'

<sup>11</sup> D. F.'s eldest son was now twenty-two years of age.

<sup>14</sup> Richard Washington, 'Armerer and Hardwareman,' was admitted freeman of Kendal in 1642. He is mentioned as one of the Aldermen in Charles II's charter to the town 1684, and was mayor in 1685. He was one of the executors of Mr. James Simpson's will in 1697. There was an earlier Richard Washington

<sup>7</sup> Joseph Mead or Mede (1586-1638), biblical scholar. His works were first collected 1648, 4to, 2 parts; enlarged edition by John Worthington, folio, 2 vols. (D. N. B., s. v.) The book here bought may have been the first edition of the Works, with one of Mede's later books, all of which seem to have appeared originally in quarto.

<sup>8</sup> Daniel Rawlinson, with whom D. F. visited the school in 1672 (see p. 463 and n. 4 there), is said by Mr. H. S. Cowper (Hawkshead, p. 387) to have 'repaired and re-edited the school' in 1675 (cf. ib. p. 504).

<sup>11</sup> This was Barbara, daughter of Henry Crakenthorp, of Newbiggin in Westmorland, who was married as his second wife to Sir Richard Fletcher, kt., who was father of Sir Henry the first baronet, the husband of Catherine, lady Fletcher, whose burial is here recorded. It seems from this that the dower house of the Fletchers of Hutton was at Cockermouth, whence the family originally came.

<sup>5</sup> Johnby was a small demesne and manor in the parish of Graystock. It belonged to the Musgraves of Hayton (for whom see n. 8, p. 134). Through an heiress it came to a Yorkshire Wyvill, who sold it to Mr. William Williams, who came from St. Nicholas in Glamorganshire and was steward at Greystock Castle. (Nicolson and Burn, ii. 375.)

<sup>6</sup> The boy did not live; as at his father's death, 12 January, 1679, four daughters were coheirs the eldest of whom was married to Sir Edward Hasel knight, who for her purparty had Johnby; the second to John Winder of Lorton counsellor at law; the third to Mr. Relph of Coekermouth; and the fourth to Dr. Gibbon dean of Carlisle. <sup>3</sup> This was the fifth son of Henry Brougham of Scales (for whom see n. 3, p. 104), the third by his second wife Elizabeth, daughter of John Lamplugh, of Lamplugh. He was commonly called Commissioner Brougham, and bought back Brougham Hall from the grandchildren of James Bird (for whom see n. 3, p. 359). He succeeded to Scales Hall and had other possessions including Distington, which he sold in 1737 to Sir James Lowther, bart., whose family have benefited much by the coal under it. His heirs were four nephews, from the survivor of whom, Henry son of the youngest brother Samuel, the present Lord Brougham is descended.

<sup>4</sup> This was Catherine, daughter of Thomas Lister, of Arnolds Biggin in Yorkshire and of Mary daughter of Richard Deane of Ovenden Wood in Yorkshire. She was now about sixteen years of age, and married 9 Dec. 1680, Thomas Yorke, esq., of Richmond, M.P., and died 24 Apr. 1731. Her cousinship came through her grandmother, who was Catherine daughter of Sir Richard Fletcher of Hutton, Henry Fletcher's great-grandfather, and who married (1) Thomas Lister of Westby (of Queen's College, matr. 9 Nov. 1632), ancestor of the present Lord Ribblesdale; and (2) Sir John Assheton of Whalley Abbey. <sup>9</sup> Richard Lowther, second surviving son of the first baronet, born about 1638, of Maud's Meaburn in the parish of Crosby Ravensworth, entered Queen's College, 2 June, 1655, as Upper Commoner, subscribed 7 November. He was a major of militia and M.P. for Appleby 1689-90. On the failure of the descent of his elder brother, the baronetcy devolved on his grandson James, who in 1784 was created Earl of Lonsdale, having in 1755 inherited the estates of his cousin Sir James Lowther fourth and last baronet of Whitehaven and Sockbridge. Richard Lowther was twice married (1) to Mary, daughter of Sir Amos Meredith of Marston in Tamerton Folliott, co. Devon, (2) to Barbara, daughter of Robert Prickett of Wressle Castle, Yorkshire.

<sup>8</sup> Sir John Lowther, second baronet of Whitehaven, co. Cumberland, and of Sockbridge, co. Westmorland, was son of Christopher next brother to Sir John Lowther, first baronet of Lowther. The father had married Frances the heir of Christopher Lancaster of Sockbridge, and died when John was under two years old. He was of Balliol College (matric. 29 Oct. 1657), and M.P. for Cumberland in nine parliaments between 1665 and 1700. His wife was Jane daughter of Woolley Leigh, of Addington, co. Surrey. His line terminated on the death of his younger son James, the fourth baronet of Whitehaven, when his fortune said to be £2,000,000 devolved on his cousin, Sir James of Lowther, who was afterwards created Earl of Lonsdale.

<sup>13</sup> The king's commission for rebuilding St. Paul's Cathedral was issued 12 Nov. 1673. Among other things it authorised 'public collections throughout our realm of England and dominion of Wales.' On Aug. 18, 1678, Collections in the Diocese of Chester were reported to have brought in £100. Of the three quarters of a million expended however all but under seventy thousand pounds was raised by an imposition on coals which lasted down to 1716. (See Ellis's edition of Dugdale's History of St. Paul's Cathedral, pp. 138, 151, 179.)

<sup>3</sup> Edward Howard, eldest son of Charles first Earl of Carlisle (for whom see n. 4, p. 151), born about 1646, M.P. for Morpeth 1660-79 and again in 1679, Joint Lord Lieutenant with his father of the counties of Cumberland and Westmorland 3 Dec. 1668 to 24 Feb. 1685, Deputy Governor of Carlisle Castle 1678, M.P. co. Cumberland 1679-81, for Carlisle 1681, succeeded his father as second Earl of Carlisle 1685, Lord Lieutenant of Cumberland 1689, married 1668 Elizabeth, widow of Sir William Berkeley, daughter and co-heir of Sir William Uvedale of Wickham, Hants, and died 23 Apr. 1692.

<sup>9</sup> Henry Brougham, second son of Henry 'Cosin Henry Browham,' for whom see n. 3, p. 104, was born at Scales in Cumberland, baptised 2 March, 1665, and so was now fourteen years of age; he entered Queen's College as Bachelor 8 July, 1681, matriculating the 18th of the same month. He proceeded B.A. 18 March, 1684, M.A. 15 June, 1689, and was tabarder and fellow of the College. He was collated to the prebend of Asgarby in the cathedral church of Lincoln, died in College 29 March, 1698, and was buried in the old College Chapel.

<sup>17</sup> James Laybourne, third son of John who died 1664 and was grandfather of John who died 1679, was an officer in the French service and married in France. Nicolson and Burn (i. 146) say that Cunswick went to George, half-brother of this James and eldest son of the elder John by his second wife Mary, daughter of William Croft of Cloughton in Lancashire. 1680: Apr. 5, Paid unto Edw. Wilson <sup>9</sup> Esq; in part of my

<sup>2</sup> Sawrey is probably a village boy, at Baxter's school, and the payment may be as the result of a cockfight or with a view to one. As Shrove Tuesday was this year on February 24, the former alternative is the more likely.

<sup>11</sup> Daniel Wilson, eldest surviving son of his father, married Elizabeth, daughter of William Crowle, esq., of Hull, granddaughter as it would seem of Eleanor Kirkby (for whom see n. 5, p. 15). He was M.P. for Westmorland for nearly forty years, and is represented as a man of the strictest honour and integrity. He was father of the Edward Wilson who married Dorothy, daughter of Sir William Fleming, bart., D. F.'s eldest son. (Sayer's Westmorland, i. 333.)

'The name was of old applied not only to the first peak (counting from the lake) of the range, but to the whole descending slope, with scar and meadow to the lake's brim...The "Scar" with "scar-foot" seems to have been used in the seventeenth century for the precipitous face of the Nab alone; now the summit (a short climb of 1,250 ft.) is called Nab Scar.'

After his death they were all sold by his widow and daughters for £15,000 to Sir Christopher Musgrave of Edenhall. Penrith would have been a good centre from which to deal with these properties. I have not discovered a Dacre house at Penrith.

APPENDIX F.

THE ORDER OF THE ROYAL OAK.

A reference in one of Fleming's letters to Williamson (p. 188) to the order of the Royal Oak set me upon an enquiry as to where a list of those designated to receive it was to be found. I have in my possession a manuscript volume which professes to contain 'The Claims of y<sup>e</sup> Lords Knights & Gentlemen who Compounded in y<sup>e</sup> time of King Charles 1st, being a Recital giving a particular account of their Estates y<sup>t</sup> were put under Sequestration' etc. 'And a List of Such Persons Names who were deemd fit & Qualified at y<sup>e</sup> Restoration to be made Knights of y<sup>e</sup> Royal Oak with y<sup>e</sup> value of their estates as there given,' but the volume is filled with the Claims of Delinquents, and if the list of the Knights of the Royal Oak was ever added it must have been in a second volume.

After unsuccessful enquiry in many of what I considered likely quarters I lighted almost by chance upon the following reference in the Catalogue of the printed Books in the British Museum.

ROYAL OAK, Knights of the. A list of such persons names who were deemed fit at the Restoration, to be made Knights of the Royal Oak. See England Baronets. The English Baronetage, etc. vol. 4. 1741. 4<sup>o</sup>.

The book turned out to be an octavo, the fourth volume of the 1741 edition of Wotton's English Baronetage. The list begins on page 363, and is said to be printed from a MS. of Peter le Neve, Esq.; Norroy, now among the Collection of Mr. Joseph Ames.

The list is printed from the book. I had hoped to have collated it with the manuscript, but Sir Edward Maunde Thompson, in telling me that it was not in the British Museum, was kind enough to send me the following memorandum prepared by Mr. G. F. Warner.

'In Le Neve's Sale, 173<sup>9</sup><sub>1</sub>, lot 897, bought by Bacon 5/6.

In T. S. Bacon's Sale, 173<sup>9</sup><sub>7</sub>, lot 1273, bought by [Ames?].

In Jos. Ames' Sale, 1760, lot 147, bought for 1/- by Sir Peter Thompson.

In Thompson's Sale, 1815, lot 956, no purchaser's name.

Cannot trace it any further.'

I have thought the document worth reproducing, as Wotton's Baronetage, though not a rare book, is not within the reach of every one; and there is a good deal of historical interest in what aimed at being a complete list of untitled Cavaliers who had deserved highly of the new king.

The account of the order as given in a note in Wotton is: 'This order was intended, by King Charles II. as a reward to several of his followers; and the knights of it, were to wear a silver medal, with a device of the King in the Oak, pendent to a ribbon, about their necks; but it was thought proper to lay it aside, lest it might create heats and animosities, and open those wounds afresh, which at that time were thought prudent should be healed; and as no list of them was ever published, we thought such a curiosity would be acceptable to the publick, tho' not immediately relating to the Order of Baronets.'

I have not thought it necessary to annotate the names except in the counties of Cumberland and Westmorland, or where the persons are in some other way connected with subjects introduced into the book, nor have I burdened the Index at the end of the volume with any other names.

As I am going to press I find the list occurs also in the Appendix, p. 688 of the first volume of Burke's Commoners, omitting however the Derbyshire names, and making some other slight inaccuracies.

F. dated 12 Mar. 1676 asking him to make some convenient arrangements for the election of a M.P. for Westmorland owing to the incapaeitiation of Sir Thomas Strickland; to which letter R. P. 1843 is a reply from Gabetis promising compliance with D. F.'s wishes. He was probably under-sheriff for the county, as in a poetical inscription on the East Wall of Brough Church he is said to have been 'Sheriffe' 'Forty years and More.' He died 25 Mar. 1694, aged 86. ## BARLOW'S RESIGNATION AND HALTON'S ELECTION.

The official documents connected with Barlow's resignation of the Provostship and Halton's election thereto, as transcribed in the College Register, seem of sufficient interest, as samples of such documents, to warrant their reproduction here.

notario publico in hac parte teste idoneo, lecta et publicata fuit voluntaria

<sup>1</sup> Benjamin Cooper, son of William, born at Hallam, Notts., matriculated from Merton College 16 Apr. 1641, aged 18; B.A. 1647, M.A. 1648. His reply to the visitors was: 'I shall not deny or oppose the power of Parliament, but, not knowing what their power is in the Universitie concerning this Visitation, I cannot give any positive Answer to this Question.' In a list of 14 July, 1648, he is marked Neg. as refusing to submit, and was accordingly reported to the Committee of Lords and Commons. He was registrar of the University from 1659 to 1701. He married a daughter of the Rev. Vincent Coventry, rector of Begbroke, who was sister to Joan, wife of John Snell, the benefactor to Balliol College, who died in Cooper's house in Holywell. He was a notary public, and so needed to witness deeds of an international character. College elections were deemed of this character, and at New College a notary was present even at the elections of scholars till a very recent date.

<sup>1</sup> For the elaborate regulations laid down in the statutes for the election of a Provost and the occasion on which the whole course of proceeding had to be gone through see Letters of Radcliffe and James (O. H. S. ix), pp. xxiii, xxiv, where the passage in the statutes is quoted from Statutes, pp. 8-10. The conditions involved in 'de legitimo Matrimonio procreatum et in ætate legitima existentem' are not in the Statutes, which seem in one place to contemplate 'illegitimi' being Fellows, and so presumably candidates for the Provostship.

APPENDIX H.

OXFORD ALMANACKS.

The Oxford Almanack of 1677, which Kirkby had enquired for (p. 222), is an allegorical plate  $21\frac{1}{2}$  inches by 19. The Almanack proper is in the right-hand upper corner,  $13\frac{1}{2}$  inches by 13. It is being displayed by an angel or genius over whom two cupids are holding up a laurel-wreathed oval, on which the arms of the University are impaled with those of the city. A broad ribbon above has in two lines the words 'THE OXFORD ALMANACK For the Year of our Lord God 1677.' The lower part of the plate is occupied by a landscape with, in the background, a general view of Oxford from the south-west. In front to the left on a circular platform approached by three steps two female figures are seated, one with crown and sceptre, her right arm resting on a globe on which the royal arms of the time are engraved. The other seated figure, rather behind the former, seems to support her. A third figure on the right leans upon the arm of the seat on which the two former are seated. On the bottom step in the lower left-hand corner facing to the right is a draped figure seated on a stool, of which one leg, a lion's, only is visible; and at her feet is seated a partially draped figure holding a comic mask in her right hand. The five persons now described are looking at something of the nature of a horoscope on a large square board held by a sixth figure, who kneels on the lowest step. In the centre of the plate towards Oxford through the intervening meadows flows the Thames, which issues at the right-hand lower corner of the plate from a cylindrical jar, against which leans a male figure bearded and half-draped, supporting himself on the jar by his left arm, which holds a cornucopia, while with the right he holds out a palm-branch to three nearly nude female figures with jars in front of him. He is seated in front of the angular opening of a cave in which the upper part of a nude satyr is visible who is blowing a conch.

The almanack is of the usual type, with the phases of the moon, the Sunday Letters, &c. in separate columns: (1) the Saints dayes and fixed festivals; (2) Movable Feasts Term beg. & retur.; (3) Dom. of y<sup>e</sup> Moo; (4) Sun risin; the third column containing the signs of the zodiac, and the fourth in hours and minutes the time of sunrise. The explanations of the four columns are given above the enumeration of the days in February.

Below the almanack proper in five columns of unequal width are:—

i. ii. The Regal Table since the Conque.

iii. Times excepted from Marriag. From Advent Sunday untill the eight day after Epiphany. From Septuagesima Sunday untill eight dayes after Easter. From Rogation Sunday untill seven dayes after Whitsuntide. And in all these the latter term is taken inclusively.

The Moon will be Eclipsed on the seventh of May about a quarter of an hour after three in the morning.

iv. A Table of Interest at six in the Hundred Pound.

This is set out for terms of 1, 2, 3, 6, 12 months for sums of 10, 20, &c. to 90, 100, 200, 300, 400, and 500 pounds.

v. A table divided into four columns.

(1) Moons age.

(2) Moon at South.

(3) The cheif ports in or about England.

(4) Differen. of Tid.

Below this table runs:—

The use of this Table. Having found the Moons age in the first column & her Southing over against it in the second. See in the third Column what Moon makes high water at the Port which you inquire for & these two last Sums added together shew the hour & minute of high water.

This was a sheet Almanack, belonging to the famous series begun in 1674 and continued in every year, with one exception, up to the present day. That exception was 1675, though there are in the Bodleian Library two somewhat similar designs, both by Michael Burghers, which seem to be intended for that year.

From the first these Almanacks excited widespread interest, not only in their place of origin, but in London and elsewhere. The amount of information, which was free from the baneful influences of astrology and prognostication, the excellence of the engraving, the picture-like appearance, the shape, convenient for hanging up in the study or office, these were the points that challenged favourable comparison with all rivals and secured undoubted popularity. It was not the smallness of the issue that obliged Mr. Dixon in 1677 to write, that 'all y<sup>e</sup> Oxford Almanacks are bought up or sent to London' (p. 222), for the sheets were printed in large quantities. In the year 1718 Burghers was able to tell Hearne that the University received 75<sup>li</sup> clear profit from the Almanack, which implies a sale of six or seven hundred copies at the least. Indeed its success seems to have annoyed Hearne, who writes in his diary, 'Oct. 20. 1725. Memorandum that on Monday last Broadstock began to work off the plate of the Oxford Almanack for 1726, so long (viz. a whole year) are they now before they can prepare this little trifling work, about which more noise and clutter is made than if an hundred books of learning were printed by the University, whereas they nowadays print just nothing but these almanacks, with shame be it spoken.' The demand was so great that the editors found it necessary in many years to have two plates engraved, and it may have been to increase their popularity that they were printed on silk as well. The sheet published in 1674 was unusually large, but since 1676 they have generally been of the large folio size now issued.

From 1676 till 1722, with the exception of 1716, the style, in accordance with the classical taste of the time, was allegorical. That representations of buildings were not introduced is perhaps owing to the publication in 1675 of Loggan's Oxonia Illustrata, which contained forty splendid plates of College and University buildings. The draughtsman of the Almanacks at this time, Michael Burghers, who was Loggan's pupil, was perhaps unwilling to challenge direct comparison with his master. As events turned out, allegory, in times when political feeling ran so high, could not be used without danger. Vigilant eyes detected political innuendo in the design for 1706, which was asserted to be a reflection on Queen Anne and Lord Godolphin. Next year the plate was tame and feeble enough. Again, over the issue of 1711, feeling ran high, resulting, however, in nothing more serious than a pamphlet war. If one writer saw classical deities making the scene propitious, the other saw in them the Pretender and High Church crushing the liberties of the nation. If the one saw Charity with her three children, venturing forth to see what reception her nurslings would meet with in the world, the other saw only a poor Revolution widow with fatherless children in tears and consternation. No doubt the change made in 1716, already referred to above, proved a welcome one. The Almanack of the year was a representation, some years before it was built, with some fidelity of detail, of the Radcliffe Library standing where it does at present. This is of considerable interest, as for several years later the space between Brasenose and All Souls was still occupied by houses. It is not positively known whether Dr. Radcliffe, who died late in 1714, ever contemplated such a plan, nor does it seem likely that the architect Gibbs had yet been appointed. With this notable exception the allegorical style continued to 1723, when a proposed restoration of Brasenose in the Greek style, with magnificent frontage both to the High Street and to the Radcliffe Square, was presented.

In the following year (1724) began the long and well-known series of Oxford buildings. The practice thus introduced was disturbed, unfortunately for the peace of all concerned, in 1754. This was the year of the memorable Oxfordshire election, when political feeling ran very high, and when a parliamentary enquiry into the validity of the election was threatened. A harmless design for 1755, by Samuel Wale, officially styled 'Science leading man from Ignorance and Vice to Virtue and Faith,' was perverted in the public opinion into the most pronounced of political manifestoes. Five times only since this unfortunate issue, and never since 1765, has the Almanack run the risk of incurring these suspicions. From that time forward it has presented its purchasers with views in Oxford and the immediate neighbourhood.

The editing of the Almanacks was not without difficulties, and has not been free from mistakes. In 1684 St. Matthias's Day was wrongly placed on Feb. 24, and evoked an Essay on the subject from Dr. John Wallis, which was published in 1719. In 1724 the editors presented only three Sundays in Advent, and they repeated the error in 1791.

A list of designers and engravers from 1674 to 1870 is appended so far as they can be ascertained. The doubtful names are in italics:—

APPENDIX I.

. THE COMITIA OR ACT.

The ordinary admission to the superior degrees in any faculty consists of a license to incept. The actual inception till quite recently only took place once a year. Before the Laudian legislation incepting involved two sets of disputations, one 'in Vesperis' on a Saturday, one 'in Comitiiis' on the following Monday. In 1568 the Comitia were fixed to be always on the Monday after the 7th July, the vespers on the preceding Saturday. Mr. Andrew Clark has gathered probably all that can be found about these earlier Acts in his Register of the University of Oxford, vol. ii. Part i, especially pp. 82 sqq.

The Act as kept in the reign of Charles II was regulated by the provisions of the Laudian code, which doubtless in most respects followed the earlier practice with such modifications as experience showed to be desirable. The regulations are contained in Titulus VII, and in Griffiths and Shadwell's edition are to be found on pages 67 to 79.

At eight o'clock on the Saturday morning the Prælectors in Arts meet together in the north chapel of St. Mary's Church and proceed together, led by the Bedels of the faculty, to the Schools and deliver their lectures. In the other faculties the readers were to deliver their lectures in the schools at their usual hours except that the Margaret Professor was to deliver his lectures at eight, not at nine, and the Professors of Medicine, Hebrew, Greek and History were to lecture at nine. During these lectures, the Inceptors in the several faculties were to go the rounds of the schools bareheaded and to invite the Prælectors to be present at the Vesperies and Comitia, they giving their assent by saying simply Interero. The Inceptors in Theology, Law and Medicine were also to obtain the blessing of their Professors, the Professor of Theology giving this also to the Inceptors in other faculties.

The afternoon of the Saturday from one to five was spent in Disputations, held for the Artists in the Nave of St. Mary's Church, for the Medical men, Lawyers and Theologians in the schools assigned to the several faculties.

In Arts three questions previously selected and approved by Congregation were discussed, the person to answer being nominated from those about to incept by the Senior Proctor, who was also to oppose him in all the questions and to sum up in the first, a Proproctor and the Terræ-filius in the second, and the Junior Proctor in the third. A fine of 3s. 4d. was inflicted on every one about to incept who was not present at these disputations from the beginning to the end. Each of the Inceptors was expected to hand in to the Senior Proctor the three Questions with a few lines (versiculis) unfolding their sense, some of which were read out at the end of the disputations by the Senior Proctor with his own reflexions upon them.

The Inceptors were then all sworn in these two forms :

The provisions are analogous for the disputations in the higher faculties. Resident Doctors in each faculty are to oppose the Inceptors and may, if necessary, be summoned to do so under penalty of xls. for failure. A special provision is made in the faculty of Theology for the Vice-Chancellor or the head of a College being a D.D. to keep time and limit the Disputations as the Regius Professor will be too busy with the Arguments to pay attention to this. In the Law disputations a prominent part is taken by one of the students who has the title of Moderator.

The day was to close with Vespertial suppers to which the senior Inceptor in Theology, Law and Medicine was to ask the other senior Doctors in his faculty. If there was no Inceptor in any one of these faculties, the Doctors of that faculty dined with the senior Inceptor in another faculty, and if there was no Inceptor in any of these faculties the senior Inceptor in Arts (who was senior to be determined by the Proctor) was to ask all the Doctors to supper.

On the Sunday between the Vesperies and the Act, sermons were to be preached morning and afternoon. The Preacher was to be appointed by the Vice-Chancellor who might, but need not, appoint one of those about to incept in Divinity.

On the Monday Morning there was to be Divine Service in the East Chapel of St. Mary's Church performed by the Vicar of St. Mary's or his Deputy. After which the Vice-Chancellor, Inceptors, and Proctors, preceded by the Bedels, were to make their offerings at the Communion Table. Absence from the service or refusal to make an offering was to be punished by the Vice-Chancellor at his discretion, and the offender was also to be fined vs.

For the exercises which followed a stage was erected in the western part of the Nave of the Church. Thither after the Prayers and Offerings the Proctors, the Inceptors and the others who were to take part in the exercises of the Artists went up. The Physicians occupied the north seats, the Lawyers the south, the Theologians the east, the Musicians if there were any sat in the Organ gallery.

In the Disputations in the Comitia the Inceptors who at the Vesperies generally acted as Respondents become Opponents. In Arts the duty of responding falls to the Magister Replicans, the Respondent of the previous year or a substitute provided by the Proctor. The first Opponent was after his disputation created Master by the Senior Proctor who acted as Father of the Comitia for the Artists by giving him a book, a cap and a kiss. The Disputations were continued by the Senior Proctor, the Terræ-filius, and a Proproctor, and concluded by the Junior Proctor. If absent from these disputations an Inceptor was fined 3s. 4d.

The Music Act followed. The Candidate had to exhibit one or two songs in six or eight parts with vocal and instrumental illustration. He was admitted to his degree by one of the Savilian Professors, a Doctor if possible; if both or neither were Doctors then either of them in alternate years.

Then followed the Medical Exercises. First the Inceptors were created Doctors by the Regius Professor who gave to each a Book, a Cap, a Ring and a Kiss. This was followed by the Disputations. The Respondent who might be an Inceptor or a Student in Medicine of a specified standing, designated for the purpose, and acquiring thereby special privileges, gave his view on the three questions, the Inceptors in turns dealing separately with one of them. After the completion of each Inceptor's disputation he took the same oaths as the Artists had taken at the Vesperies.

The Law exercises came next, and were performed like those in Medicine, except that the Respondent was in this case the person who had been Moderator at the Vesperies, acquiring thereby the same privileges as the Respondent in Medicine.

Then came the Theological Exercises, like those of the two preceding faculties, with this addition that the Regius Professor, and the Proctors had in this case the duty of seeing that the Inceptors had on gaiters (Ocreis sint induti). A Respondent in this faculty was selected in the same way and had the same privileges as in the other faculties.

The Comitia concluded with a speech given by the Vice-Chancellor at the invitation of the Proctors on the events of the year, benefactions to the University and anything else redounding to the credit of the University.

At the end of the Comitia a Congregation was held in the Congregation house to dispense the newly created Doctors and Masters from taking off their garters, shoes and stockings.

On the Tuesday after the Comitia a latin sermon 'ad Clerum' was to be preached at St. Mary's at eight o'clock in the morning by a graduate in Theology designated by the Vice-Chancellor.

Of the Actors in Arts at the Vesperies the Senior Proctor nominated the Respondent and the Proproctor, the Junior Proctor the Terræ-filius. For the Comitia the Senior Proctor nominated the Terræ-filius, the Junior Proctor the first Opponent. The Respondent in the Vesperies received two shillings and sixpence, in consideration whereof he was bound to act as Magister Replicans at the Comitia of the following year and to give bail to do so.

All the questions proposed for disputation had to be approved by Congregation. The speeches introductory to the disputations were to be short and not to be read.

There were also statutable provisions for order and decency in language, dress and behaviour.

The Proceedings thus prescribed in the Laudian Code seem to have continued in theory without alteration till the middle of the nineteenth century. They are set out as describing the existing state of things by Ayliffe (1723) in his Ancient and Present State of the University of Oxford, vol. ii. p. 131, and by Salmon (1744) in his Present State of the Universities, pp. 273 sqq.

It seems not unlikely that arrangements so elaborate would in course of time fail to be carried out in their entirety.

The failure of Candidates for the superior degrees, and other causes, sometimes occasioned the suspension of an Act; and the special Acts which were celebrated on such occasions as the visit of the Chancellor, or of a Royal person, or on coronation day, detracted from the lustre of the ordinary Act and perhaps gave occasion to its gradual decline.

The transference of the more important of the Act Ceremonies to the Sheldonian Theatre in 1669 gave occasion to the starting of a literary and musical performance, a sort of festival of dedication called the Encaenia. In 1670 it was ordered and a statute was passed and added as an eighth subsection to Titulus VII that there should be an annual performance of this kind on the Friday before the Act, and though at first it was only held in those years in which an Act was celebrated, it eventually took its place, so far as providing an attraction to persons outside the University was concerned.

Besides its Academic functions the Act had occasioned the concourse of a great number of people. Visitors from Cambridge and elsewhere resorted to Oxford at this time; and then and then only professional actors were allowed, shows of all kinds were exhibited as at a fair, and special precautions had to be taken against rowdyism.

Other modifications of the statute introduced in course of time were the division among the inceptors in each faculty of the vesperial supper, enacted in 1670, the change of the day of the Comitia to the first Tuesday in July, of the Vesperies to the Saturday preceding, and of the Sermon 'ad Clerum' to the Wednesday following the Comitia, and the abolition of the oath against the reconciliation of Henry Simeon in 1827.

With the exception of these provisions the Laudian Statute remained on the Statute Book till Titulus VII disappeared with some other Tituli under the provisions of a statute approved by Convocation 26 Feb. 1856. Mr. Charles Neate, then senior Fellow of Oriel College, is said to have been the only person who opposed the statute.

JOHN LOWTHER OF LOWTHER AT QUEEN'S COLLEGE.

Three of the four following letters are excerpted in the seventh part of the Appendix to the Thirteenth Report of the Historical Manuscripts Commission. I am able, through the courtesy of Lord Lonsdale, to present a complete and exact transcript of them.

PROVOST BARLOW TO SIR JOHN LOWTHER, BART.

I receaved yours, and returne my respects, and hartly thanks for your kindnes to the Colledge and me; and for your good opinion of both; which appeares in this, that you are pleased to trust vs with y<sup>e</sup> Education of your Grand-child, the heire and hopes of your ancient and worthy family. S<sup>r</sup> whenever you shall be pleased to send him hither he shall be very welcome, and you may be sure, he shall haue the best accomodation y<sup>e</sup> Coll. can give him. For placeinge him in y<sup>e</sup> Coll. be pleased to know, y<sup>t</sup> we haue two ranks of Gentlemen in the Colledge. 1. Those we call Coñunars, w<sup>h</sup> are Gentlemen of inferior quality vsually (though many times men of higher birth and fortune, will haue their sonnes and heires in that ranke). 2. Vpper-Coñunars, which vsually are Baronetts or knights sonnes, or Gentlemen of greater fortunes; these haue some honorary priuiledges aboue ordinary Coñunars, but are not (as in all other Houses generally) freed from any exercise the meanest gentlemen vndergoe: for we conceaue, and (by experience find and) know it to be true, that to exempt them from any beneficiall exercise, is not a priuiledge, but indeed an injury and Losse to them: seeinge it is really a depriuinge them of the just meanes of attaineinge learninge, w<sup>ch</sup> is the end they and we should aime att. I doe (with submission to your prudence) thinke it most convenient to make your Grandchild

Vpper-Coñunar; it is some more honor, and benefitt to him, seeinge he will be rank'd amongst Gentlemen of better birth and fortune, and soe (in reason and probabilytie) of more ingenuous breeding and ciuility. For a Tutor, in case you know any in our Colledge to whom you would coñmend him, lett me know it, and your coñmands shall be obey'd; otherwise if you shall be pleased to referr it to me, I shall coñmend him to such a one, as shall carefully indeauer to direct and instruct him in the grounds of Religion and good Literature. But whoeuer be his Tutor, I shall (God willinge) diligently ouersee and take care of both, and assist thê in attaineinge the end they aime att (piety and learninge). Though my imployments here, are neither few nor little; yet (if you giue me leaue) I shall at convenient times (priuately) read ouer the grounds of Diuinity to him, that soe he may haue a better Vnderstandinge and comp<sup>h</sup>ension of the reason of that Religion, which alone is, or can be a just foundation of true comfort here, and of our hopes of a better life hereafter: this (next vnder Gods blessinge) beeing the likeliest Antidote to p<sup>r</sup>serue him from y<sup>t</sup> impiety and Atheisme w<sup>ch</sup> p<sup>r</sup>uaile too much amongst vs, and will (I feare) pull downe some further calamity and judgements vpon vs. Lastly, to send a seruant to attend him, will be some charge (though, to you, that be inconsiderable) and indeed (which is considerable) to noe purpose: for he must haue a boy (assign'd by his Tutor) to be his seruitor, who must be a gowne-man and a scholar, and will be able to doe all his little buisnesses for him; and he may chuse such a seruiter as is a very good scholar and sober student, and soe be helpfull to him in his studies. Very few Gentlemen, (though heires to very great fortunes) keepe any men to attend them here; and those few w<sup>ch</sup> sometimes doe, those servants haueinge nothinge to doe themselues, coñmonly make their maisters more Idle. But I referre this (as all other things) to your prudence. I begg your pardon for this rude, and (I feare) impertinent scribe. God Almighty blesse you, all yours, and

I receaued yours; and 'tis true, I vnderstood your meaninge, (wher you mention'd sendinge a man to waite on your Grandchild here) to be of a Cloake-man; and such persons (haueinge vsually little or noe buisnes with bookes) beeing coñmonly idle themselues, concurre many times to make their maisters soe too. But, it seemes, I misunderstood your meaninge, for you intended to send a younge mā, a scholar, who might waite on him as his seruitor: and (as to this) my Cosin D<sup>r</sup> Smith, said truely, that such a person will be very convenient to come with him; for a seruitor, who is a Gown-man, he must haue; and 'twill be much better that he haue one of whose fidelity and industry he is (by experience) assured, then a stranger. besides, that boy (if borne in our Country) will be capable of any p<sup>r</sup>ferment in our Colledge, and if (by his Ciuility and proficiency in good Literature) he proue worthy, he shall not want it. My respects remember'd, I shall giue you noe further trouble. God Allmighty blesse you, all yours, and

I know you may wonder (and haue too much reason for it) that I should lett your seruant returne without a letter. It was (I confesse) my calamity, but not my crime; for your man was gone, before I knew he was about to goe: soe y<sup>t</sup> now I am compell'd to write (by y<sup>e</sup> Post) to London firste, and soe to Lowther. your Grandchild came safe hither, and is admitted; I commended him to one of our fellowes (M<sup>r</sup> Denton) to take care of him as a Tutor; whom I knew to be a very serious and sober person, a good scholar, and one who is not longe since returned frō Constantinople, where he has beene about 3 yeares Chaplaine to our Ambassador there. I y<sup>e</sup> rather chose M<sup>r</sup> Denton for his Tutor, because (besides his learninge and prudence) he had not other scholars to trouble him, and soe might (as he promised me he would) spend more time in directinge and instructinge his Pupill, in the grounds of Religion and good Literature. He has (att present) a little, but convenient Lodgeinge neare his Tutor; ere longe (I doubt not) better will fall, and then he shall be better provided for. I know how much it concernes your family and Country, that your grand-child be carefully bredd to the knowledge and Loue of Learninge and Ciuility, and it shall be my prayer and indeauor y<sup>t</sup> he may be soe. REV. HENRY DENTON TO SIR JOHN LOWTHER, BARONET.

I am very sorry for y<sup>r</sup> so long, & severe indisposition which I hope will daily abate by winters decease; and that the return of the spring will give a resurrection to y<sup>r</sup> health. In y<sup>e</sup> mean time I shall not discontinue my prayers to God for it. y<sup>r</sup> grandchild continues his application to his studies not onely with diligence, but delight. Onely he has by an accident common to men who are in y<sup>e</sup> vigour of their youth in iesting with an other Gentleman sprein'd his legge. But without any further hurt then some five dayes confinement to his chamber, which to him that can entertain himself all day with his book is no punishment. I am very well satisfy'd with y<sup>r</sup> intentions of making him his own purse bearer, because as I do not distrust his discretion, so will it ease mee. The accounts of his expences had come long ago, but that wee stay till y<sup>e</sup> casting up of y<sup>e</sup> quarters battells, without w<sup>h</sup> the account would be very imperfect. But these I hope to finish within a week, & then you shall further hear from

APPENDIX L.

INSCRIPTION TO ALICE FLEMING AND JOHN KIRKBY.

I owe this Inscription to the kindness of the Hon. Eleanor, Lady Leighton-Warren, a descendant of D. F., who lent me for transcription a copy of the Inscription which is preserved at Tabley House.

To the living Memory of ALICE FLEMING of Conistone Hall in the County Palatine of Lancaster Widow (late Wife of William Fleming of Conistone Hall afforesaid Esq<sup>r</sup>. deceased and eldest Daughter of Roger Kirkby of Kirkby in the said County Esq<sup>r</sup>.) and of JOHN KIRKBY Gentleman her second Brother was this Monument by her three sorrowful Sons S<sup>r</sup>. Daniel Fleming Knight Roger Fleming and William Fleming Gentlemen for their dear Mother and Uncle here erected. the said John Kirkby (having lived above Thirty years with his Sister afforesaid and having given to the Churches and poor of Kirkby and Conistone afforesaid one hundred and fifty pounds) dyed a Batchelor at Conistone Hall afformentioned September the 28<sup>o</sup>. A: D: 1680. and was buried near unto this place the next day. and the said Alice Fleming dyed also (having outlived her late Husband twenty seven years and survived five of her eight Children) at Conistone Hall afforesaid Feb<sup>y</sup>. the 26<sup>o</sup>. A: D. 1680 and was buried in this Church close by her said Brother Feb<sup>y</sup>. the 28<sup>o</sup>. 1680. in the same Grave where the Lady Bold (second Wife of John Fleming Esq<sup>r</sup>. deceased Uncle to the said William Fleming Esq<sup>r</sup>.) had about fifty five years before been interred.

EPITAPH.

Spectator stay, and view this sacred Ground
See it contains such Love on Earth scarce found a Brother and a Sister and you see
She seeks to find him in Mortality
First he did leave us; then she stay'd and try'd to live without him: lik'd it not and dy'd.
Here they lye buried whose religious Zeal appear'd sincere to Church and Commonweal Kind to their Kindred faithful to their Friends clear in their Lives and cheerful at their Ends.
they both were dear to them whose good Intent makes them both live in this one Monument
So dear is cordial Love, tho' th'outward part turn dust; it holds Impression in the Heart.

ADDITIONAL NOTES

[The references are to page and note.]

* * Where in the earlier part of the book there is a reference to Additional Notes and no note is found here it may be taken for granted that further research has failed to throw any light on the subject.

Page 1, note 3. So the life in D. N. B. His monumental inscription says the 24th.

5. A Godmother is mentioned in XVIII, p. 28, but no name is given.

4, 1. During this visit to Oxford Barbara Fletcher seems to have taken music lessons. At least there is now in the library at Rydal Hall a lesson-book in MS. containing songs such as 'Sacke & Sugar,' 'Duke of Richmonds gigg,' 'The Water Man,' 'Psalm tunes,' 'Sarabande,' 'A Voluntarye,' etc. with a MS. letter in front of the book

'Most vertuous M<sup>rs</sup> Barbara

I humbly beseech you to play thes Lessons in the Order sett downe Constantly once a day, if you haue health and leasure. Play not, without turninge the Lesson in your Booke before you & keepe your eye (as much as you can) in your Booke. If you Chance to miss goe not from the Lesson, till you haue perfected it. Aboue all, Play not too fast. Thes few rules obserued you will gaine your selfe much Honnour & some Credit to your master, whose better title is 25 March : 1652.

Your most humble servant

ED: LOWE.'

This was the month in which the ladies left Oxford and the book and letter may have been Lowe's parting with his pupil. He was of Salisbury, master of the Choristers and Organist of Christ Church. He was out of his place during the Protectorate and practised as a music-master in Oxford. He was restored to his place at the Restoration and shortly after made Professor of Music. He died 1682, having been twice married.

8, 6. Lord Coleraine's wife's Christian name was Lucy, not Alice.

10, 3. I was misled by West who says (Furness, ed. Close, p. 265) that John Ambrose, who married Dorothy Fleming, was succeeded by his son John, the parson. It appears however from Dugdale's Visitation of 1664 that the former John died about 1637, and was succeeded by his eldest son William, who died a bachelor, aged 73, in 1666, when parson John succeeded.

10, 3. See n. 15, p. 486, where it appears that Dorothy Sands lived till 1677 and was buried 20 Nov. in that year at Grasmere. See also n. 4, p. 206.

6. See Additional Note, p. 10, n. 3.

18, 2. There is in the library at Rydal Hall a copy of the second edition of Epistolae Ho-eliae, 1650, on the fly-leaf of which is written in D. F.'s hand Daniel Fleminge's Booke 1650.

20, 3. The Roger Kirkby who married Jane Rigby was father not brother of Alice, who married William Fleming, D. F.'s father.

27, 2. For 'Stockbridge,' read 'Sockbridge' twice.

29, 2. There is also a copy of Jermy Taylor's funeral sermon on Sir George Dalston in the library at Rydal in a volume labelled 'Sermons.' It is A Sermon preached at the Funerall of that worthy Knight Sr. George Dalston of Dalston in Cumberland, September 28. 1657. By J. T. D. D. London, Printed for John Martin, James Allestrye, and Thomas Dieas. 1658 (4°.).

4. Frances married William Fletcher of Moresby. See n. 6, p. 149.

37, 3. There were too many Dixons in Kendal at this time for it to be possible to identify with any degree of certainty the Dixon whose wife or widow is here mentioned. There is no Innkeeper of the name mentioned in the 'Boke of Recorde.' Perhaps John Dixon, a glover, who was sworn as freeman 27 Oct. 1625 is the most likely man (l.c. p. 70).

5. D. F. continued his taste for Quarles. In the Rydal library with his name on the fly-leaf is the third edition of The School of the Heart, published in 1676. sm. 8°.

40, 1. In the Rydal library there is a copy of the first part of the Institutes, 4th edition, published in 1639, but it does not seem to have belonged to D. F. There is however also a copy, which did belong to him, of the same edition, and which is probably the copy referred to in the text. It has Payne's portrait of Coke with the motto Prudens qui Patiens and the date 1629 and 'The true portraiture of Iudge Littleton the famous English Lawyer,' with 'Vng Dieu et Vng Roy' proceeding out of his mouth, by Vaughan.

2. The book bought by D. F. is probably an octavo volume now in the Library at Rydal of which the title is Les Termes de la Ley: or Certaine difficult and obscure Words and Termes of the Common Lawes and Statutes of this Realme now in vse expounded and explained. Newly imprinted, and much enlarged and augmented. With a new Addition of about two hundred and fifty words. London, Printed by the Assignes of John More Esquire, 1636. The heading of each pair of pages is The Exposition of Termes of the Law. The French and English are in parallel columns on each page.

41, 2. Perhaps Feild is an abbreviation for Feilding, in which case the person meant may be William Feilding of Starforth (near Barnard Castle) in the county of York, who would now be about 27 years of age. His third brother Basil is perhaps the 'cosin Bazil Feilding' who was lieutenant Governour of Carlisle Castle under Sir Christopher Musgrave, to whose servants D. F. gave 00 07 06 on the 6th August, 1687. Basil was an Alderman of Carlisle in the same year (R. P. 3177), and storekeeper in the previous year (R. P. 3081). He was a correspondent from London of Bishop Thomas Smith (R. P. 3004) in 1686, and writes an official letter about assessments to D. F., 18 Feb. 167 $\frac{7}{8}$  (R. P. 1960). A letter of William Feilding to R. M., an unknown correspondent, as to the disorders in Dumfriesshire in 1666 is quoted n. 1, p. 161. The cousinship was probably through the Musgraves as William's and Basil's mother was Frances, daughter and coheire of Simon Musgrave of Plumpton in the county of Cumberland. (Dugdale's Visitation of Yorkshire, Surtees Society, 36, p. 60.)

44, 1. But the book in the Rydal library is:—'Synopsis Or, An Exact Abridgement Of The Lord Cokes Commentaries upon Littleton: Being A briefe explanation of the Grounds of the Common Law. Composed By that Famous and Learned Lawyer, Sir IImphrey Davenport, Knight, heretofore Reader of that Honourable Society of Graye's Inne, and afterwards Lord Chicfe Barron of the Honourable Court of Exchequer, at Westminster. With A perfect Table poynting out the most remarkable things therein contained. . . . London, Printed by E. G. for Matthew Walbancke at Grayes Inne Gate and Henry Twyford in Vine-Court, Middle Temple. 1652.'

45, 4. Probably the Dick Harrison referred to p. 433, where see n. 9, whose death 1 July, 1668, is on p. 439.

46, 3. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903. There is also in the Rydal library :—'The Preacher Or The Art and Method of Preaching : Shewing The most ample Directions and Rules for Invention, Method, Expression, and Books whereby a Minister may be furnished with such helps as may make him a Usefnl Laborer in the Lords Vineyard. By William Chappell Bishop of Cork, sometime Fellow of Christs College in Cambridge. . . . London, Printed for Edw. Farnham, and are to be sold at his shop in Popes-head Palace near Corn-hill, 1656.' This must have been purchased later.

49, 3. The copy here bought by D. F. is in the Rydal library with his name on the fly-leaf and the price 1<sup>s</sup> - 4<sup>d</sup> on the cover.

53, 3. On the title-page of the 1652 edition, which was identified in the Rydal library in 1903, 'Printed for Mathew Walbancke, at Grayes-Inne Gate, in Holborne, 1652.' The following comes after 'Officers and Ministers of the Courts' :—'Most part of which was Composed and Collected by G. T. of Staple Inne, and T. P. of Barnards Inne, with some new Additions to the same, formerly Licensed and Printed for Mathew Walbancke, under the Title of The Attorney of the Common Pleas, and The Book of Fees, &c.'

4. In the library at Rydal is a copy of the third edition of Guillim's Display of Heraldrie, 1638, a frontispiece to which has been drawn in colours representing the Fleming fret with the nowed serpent as crest and Pax Copia Sapientia as the motto. It is on a large scale, rather roughly but artistically done in the proper heraldic colours with 'Daniel Fleming' at the bottom. It is probably to this drawing that the reference in the text refers. Throughout the book the arms have been coloured by hand. There is also in the Rydal library a copy of the 1611 edition, and a copy of the edition of 1679 referred to in the note on p. 53.

54, 4. The pamphlet referred to is probably A Declaration of the Lord Generall and his Councell of Officers; shewing the Grounds and Reasons for the Dissolution of the late Parliament. London, Printed by Hen. Hilles and Tho: Brewster, Printers to the Army and are to bee sold at the signe of Sir John Oldcastles in Pye-Corner, and at the three Bibles at the West-end of Pauls. 1653. The pamphlet is dated at the end Whitehall, 22 April, 1653. The Long Parliament had been dissolved on the 20th.

5. Compare p. 32 under date 5 Jan. 1653.

7. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

8. The two parts of Bate's book in Latin are in the library at Rydal, bound together. The date on the title-page of the first part is 1661, and of the second part, 1663. These must have been bought later. The little English book is also in the library with D. F.'s name on the fly-leaf.

55, 3. This is too early a mention for the John Mill who was afterwards Principal of St. Edmund Hall, who would have been at this time only eight years old. It may possibly be the John Mill mentioned p. 399.

56, 4. Mary Fleming was, of course, sister to D. F.'s grandfather, not to his grandmother.

57, 4. In the library at Rydal Hall is 'Essex Dove Presenting the World with a taste of her Olive Branches : Or, A taste of the Workes of that Reverend, Faithfull, Iudicious, Learned, and holy Minister of the Word, M<sup>r</sup>. John Smith, late Preacher of the Word at Clavering in Essex, and sometime Fellow of S. Iohns Colledge in Oxford. Delivered in three severall Treatises, viz. 1 His Grounds of Religion. 2 An Exposition on the Lords Prayer. 3. A Treatise of Repentance. Vprightnesse hath boldnesse. The Third Edition, corrected and amended. . . . London, Printed by George Miller for Andrew Croke, Iohn Croke, and Richard Serger, and are to be sould at their shop at the signe of the Greyhound in Paules-Church-yard, 1637.'

57, 8. See n. 2, p. 46. Mr. C. L. Stainer has kindly supplied a copy of the title-page of the first edition of Playford's book:—The English Dancing Master: or Plaine and easie Rules for the Dancing of Country Dances, with the Tune to each Dance. London, Printed by Thomas Harper, and are to be sold by John Playford, at his Shop in the Inner Temple neere the Church doore. 1651. Though the second edition was out before this purchase, from D. F.'s calling it the English-Dancing-Maister it looks as though he had got hold of a second copy of the first edition. The second edition drops the epithet English.

58, 4. The book was published in 1647.

5. The Dutch Fortnne-Teller, discovering XXXVI several Questions which old and young, married men and women, bachelors and maids delight to be resolved on, woodcut on title, sm. folio, Printed and sold at the Printing-Office in Aldermary Chnrch Yard, no date; is ascribed to John Booker in B. Dobell's Catalogue, No. 99, and a fine copy, calf extra, gilt edges, is there priced £1 12s. Dr. Garnett in D. N. B., vol. 5, says 'The Dutch Fortune-Teller' and 'The History of Dreams' published under Booker's name after his death are probably spurious, but Booker did not die till 1667.

7. The copy bought by D. F. is in the Rydal library with his name on fly-leaf and title, and the price on the cover. It was 'written in Latine by John Cowel, Doctor of the Civill Law, and Regius Professor in the University of Cambridge, and translated into English, according to Act of Parliament for the benefit of all by W. G. Esquire.'

59, 9. Wotton, Antony. Trial of the Romish Clergies Title to the Church, by way of answer to a Popish Pamphlet by one A. D. entitled a Treatise of Faith, wherein is briefly and plainly shewed a direct way by which euery man may resolute and settle his mind in all doubts questions and controuersies concerning matters of faith, 420 pp. 4°. boards. 12 Sh. 1608. (Bull & Auvache Catalogne, no. 207, 1903, p. 33 b.)

60, 2. In the Rydal library with D. F.'s name on the title-page is Montrose Redivivus, or the Portraiture of James late Marquess of Montrose, Earl of Kincardine, &c. 1. In his Actions in the years 1644, 1645, and 1646, for Charles the First. 2. In his Passions, in the years 1649, 1650, for Charles the Second K. of Scots. London, Printed for Jo. Ridley, at the Castle in Fleet-street, near Ram-alley, 1652. The half-title at the beginning of the text of the book is The Affairs of the King in Scotland, under the Conduct of the most Honourable James Marquesse of Montrose Earl of Kinkardin, &c. And Generall Governour for his Majesty in that Kingdome. In the years 1644, 1645, 1646, 49, & 50. It is a small 8° of 202 pages. On page 167, after the twenty-one chapters presumably of the original book, begins The Continuation of Montrose's Historie, and on page 189 A true and perfect Relation of all the passages concerning the Examination, Tryall and Death of the Most Honourable James Marquesse of Montrose, Earl of Kincardin, Lord Græme, Baron of Montdieu, &c. Knight of the most Honourable Order of St. George, Licutenant Governour, and Captain Generall for his Majestie in the Kingdome of Scotland. A portrait is prefixed with a French inscription. On the fly-leaves D. F. has transcribed On the death of the Noble and Valiant Marquess of Montross by T. F. beginning Nor shall he sleep, nor can his Valour lie, and Vpon the death of King Charles the ffirst, written with y<sup>e</sup> point of his sword, signed Montross, and beginning Great! Good! and Just! could I but rate.

63, 7. In the library at Rydal is the second impression of Ireland's Abridgment dated 1651. That this is the book referred to in the text is clear from the price, 2. 2. being marked on the inside of the cover and on the fly-leaf.

64, 3. The Copy in the Rydal library is:—'By Henry Swinburne, sometime Judge of the Prerogative Court of Yorke. Newly Corrected and Augmented, with necessary Tables. . . . London, Printed by I. L. for the Company of Stationers. 1640.' There is also a copy in the Rydal library of the 4<sup>o</sup> edition of 1611, but it does not seem to have belonged to D. F.

66, 5. Perhaps the Jack Trooper who was coachman, first to Lady Fletcher and afterwards to Sir George, to whom 8 Nov. 1656 Mrs. Fleming gave at Cockermonth 00-02-06, and of whom we find mention pp. 401, 402, 425.

73, 1. This book was identified in the Rydal library in 1903.

2. The copy bought by D. F. is in the Rydal library and has D. F.'s name on fly-leaf and title-page, and the price 3-0 on the title-page. It contains only Daniel's part of the work and ends with the reign of Edward III. It was 'waranted perfect by me Ellis Morgan and all Danyells Chronicle.' In 1636 it had belonged to M. Edward Collins.

3. Col. John Lowther predeceased his father and was never baronet. The second baronet was his son for whom see n. 8, p. 434.

9. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

74, 1 and 2. These books were identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

3. In the Rydal library is:—'Annales The True and Royall History of the famous Empresse Elizabeth Queene of England France and Ireland &c. True faiths defendresse of Diuine renowne and happy Memory. Wherein all such memorahle things as happened during hir blessed raigne, with such acts and Treaties as past hetwixt hir Ma<sup>ty</sup> and Scotland, France, Spaine, Italy, Germany, Poland, Sweden, Denmark, Rnssia, and the Netherlands, are exactly described. London printed for Benjamin Fisher, and are to be sould at the Talhott in Pater Noster Rowe 1625.' Also the following:—'Tomus Alter & Jdem: Or The Historie Of The Life And Reigne Of That Famous Princesse, Elizabeth: . . . London: Printed by Tho. Harper, and are to be sold by William Web Booke-seller in Oxford. Anno Dom. 1629.' D. F.'s copy was of the first edition.

There is also in the Rydal library in folio:—'Annales Rerum Anglicarum Et Hibernicarum, Regnante Elizabetha, Ad Annum Salvit M.D.LXXXIX. Gvilielmo Camdeno Avthore. Loudini. Typis Guilielmi Stansbij, Impensis Simonis Watersoni, ad insigne Coronæ in Cœmeterio Pavlino. M.DC.XV.' There is a copy of the fourth edition in English of 1688 in the library at Rydal but it did not belong to D. F.

75, 1. In the Rydal library is a copy of the 3rd Edition, 'Whereunto is now added a very usefull and necessary Table. London, Printed by R. T. and R. H. and are sold by R. Meighen neere the Inner-Temple gate Anno Domini 1641.' It has Daniel Fleming's name on the fly-leaf and title-page, and the price he gave for it on the cover and the fly-leaf.

75, 3. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

5. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

6. There is a copy in the Rydal library of, 'The Young Clerks Guide: or An Exact Collection of choice English Presidents according to the best Forms now used. For all sorts of Indentures, Letters of Attorney, Releases, Conditions, &c. Very useful and necessary for all, but chiefly for those that intend to follow the Attorney's Practice. Compiled by Sir R. H. Counsellor: And Revised by an Able Practitioner. The Tenth Impression. London, Printed by E. M. for Humphrey Tuckey, and are to be sold at his Shop at the Black-spread-Eagle in Fleet street, over against St. Dunstons Church. 1659.' The date shows that this was not the actual book purchased.

9. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

76, 1. The book bought by D. F. and now in the library at Rydal has added to it 'the retorne of writts by John Kitchin Esq; Now all published in English. London, Printed for W. Lee, D. Pakeman, R. Best, and G. Bedell, and are to be sold at their shopps in Fleetstreet and Grayes In-Gate, 1651.' D. F.'s name is on fly-leaf and title-page, and the price on title-page and cover.

2. This book seems to be a second part of the 'Compleat Attorney' for which see n. 3, p. 53. Its title is given in Wm. London's Catalogue 1658 as The Laymans Lawyer revised and enlarged, being a second part of the practice of the Law, relating to the punishment of offenders against the publick pceace; the forms of process, indictments and proceedings to judgment in all manner of crimes concerning death, and corporall and pecuniary punishments; also a discourse of pardons, the office and duty of a Goaler, Constable and other assistants for the preservation of the peace. 8°.

4. The book bought by D. F. is in the Rydal library with his name on fly-leaf and title-page, and the price 1-4 on title-page and cover. It is of the first edition and D. F. has indexed the letters upon the fly-leaf at the end.

77, 1. In the Rydal library is The Transactions of the High Court of Chancery, Both by Practice and President, With the Fees thereunto belonging. And all speciall Orders in extraordinary cases, which are to be found in the Registers Office as they are quoted by Tearmes Yeares & Bookes. Collected by that famous Lawyer William Tothill Esq; late one of the 6 Clearks, And since Reveiwed by Sir Ro: Holborne, Benchor of Lincolns-Inne. London, Printed by T. W. for R. Best and I. Place, and are to be sold at Grays-Inne-Gate. 1649. It has D. F.'s name on the fly-leaf and the price 1-0 on the cover.

3. In the Rydal library is:—'Christophori Helvici, V.C. Theatrum Historicvm Et Chronologicvm, Æqualibvs Denariorvm, Quinquagenariorum & Centenariorum intervallis; Cum Assignatione Imperiorvm, Regnorvm, Dynastiarvm, Regvm, Aliorvmqve Virorvm Celebrivm, Prophetarvm, Theologorum, Iureconsultorum, Medicorvm, Philosophorum, Oratorum, Historicorum, Poetarum, Hæreticorum, Rahbinorum, Conciliorum, Synodorum, Academiarum, &c. itēque usitatarum Epocharum, ita digestum, ut Vnivera Temporum Et Historiarvm Series à primo Mundi exordio ad Annum M.DC.L. quasi in speculo videri possit. Hall, Impensis Ioseph: Godwin, Ioh: Adams, & Edvard: Forrest. M.DC.LI.'

6. This is a copy of a later edition of the book bought in 1652, p. 47, where see n. 4. It was identified in the Rydal library in 1903, and is The English Physitian Enlarged: With Threc Hundred, Sixty, and Ninc Medicines, made of English Herbs that were not in any Impression until this: The Epistle will Inform you how to know This Impression from any other. Being an Astrologo-Physical Discourse of the Vulgar Herbs of this Nation: Containing a Compleat Method of Physick, wherby a man may preserve his Bo— in Health; or Cure himself, being Sick, for three pence Charge, with such things only as grow in England, they being most fit for English Bodies. Herein is also shewed these Seven Things: viz. 1 The Way of making Plaisters, Oyntments, Oyls, Pultisses, Syrups, Decoctions, Juleps, or Waters, of al sorts of Physical Herhs, That you may have them ready for your use at al times of the year. 2 What Planet Governeth every Herh or Tree (used in Physick) that groweth in England. 3 The Time of gathering al Herhs, both Vulgarly, and Astrologically. 4 The Way of Drying and Keeping the Herhs al the year. 5 The Way of Keeping their Juyces ready for use at al times. 6 The Way of Making and keeping al kind of usefnl Compounds made of Herbs. 7 The Way of mixing Medicines according to Cause and Mixture of the Disease, and Part of the Body Afflicted. By Nich Culpeper, Gent. Student in Physick and Astrology: London: Printed by Peter Cole, at the sign of the Printing press in Cornbil, neer the Royal Exchange. 1656.

77, 8. The copy of Verstegan bought by D. F. is now in the library at Rydal. It has his name on the fly-leaf and title-page, and the price 2-6 on title-page and cover. Its title is Restitution of Decayed Intelligence, in Antiquities, concerning the most noble, and renowned English Nation. By the study, and travel of R. U. Dedicated unto the Kings most excellent Majesty. London, Printed by T. Newcomb for Josuah Kirton, at the King's Arms in St. Paul's church-yard. 1653.

78, 3. 'For Mr Watsons warrant.' This is probably a document in connexion with Andrew Huddleston's action against Sisson and Anthony Watson, for which see XXV, p. 51.

4. The Copy bought by D. F. is in the Rydal library with his name and the price 2-0 on title-page and fly-leaf. On the fly-leaf he has written 'Writt by D. Peter Heylyn. vid. his Certamen Epistolare, pag. 329.'

6. The carrier referred to would be more probably one of the direct carriers between Kendal and London, for whom see Index, tban Burnyeat, who would go round through Oxford.

7. This Mr. Fleming is almost certainly the chancery clerk called Henry p. 394, and John p. 422, where see n. 5. He is not to be identified with D. F.'s uncle John Fleming.

79, 5. A flat silver plate with a hole through it, fastened on with a band, used to keep an issue active and open.

8. In the library at Rydal is:—'The Compleat Copy-Holder, Wherein Is contained a Learned Discourse of the Antiquity and Nature of Mannors and Copy-holds: Being a Guide and Direction For Surrenders. Presentments. Admittances. Forfeitures Customes, &c. By Sir Edward Coke Knight. Whereunto is newly added The Relation between the Lord of a Mannor and the Copy-holder his Tenant: By that Worthy Lawyer Charles Calthrop of Lincolnes-Inne Esquire. F.*’s initials on the title-page, his name on the fly-leaf and the price 3-6 on the cover.

81, 10. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

83, 2. There is in the Rydal library a copy exactly corresponding to the one described in the note as in Queen’s College Library, except that each of the three titles is dated 1639.

4. In the Rydal library the edition is that of 1655.

84, 7. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

85, 2. In the library at Rydal is a copy of the fourth edition of Taylor’s Holy Living bound up with the third edition of his Holy Dying lettered on each side I. F. This may have belonged to his uncle John Fleming who may have asked D. F. to get it lettered for him.

5. The edition in the Rydal library is that of 1650 in folio.

6. The Golden Grove, or, a Manuall of Daily Prayers and Letanies, Fitted to the dayes of the Week. Containing a short Summary of What is to be Believed, Practised, Desired. Also Festival Hymns, According to the manner of The Ancient Church, Composed for the Use of the Devout, especia<sup>l</sup>l of Younger Persons; By the Author of The Great Exemplar. London, Printed by J. F. for E. Royston, at the Angel in Ivi-lane. 1655. 12°. The well-thumbed copy in the Rydal library has been specially bonnd and labelled B. F. on both covers. The copy ‘for myse<sup>l</sup>f’ probably went eventually to his wife.

86, 3. The copy bought by D. F. is now in the library at Rydal; it is the third edition, his name being on the title-page, and fly-leaf, and the price on the cover and title-page.

5. The Brit. Mus. Cat. omits in its description of the book that it was 'made by Andrew Horne' and that it was 'Imprinted at London for Matthew Walbancke at Graies Inne gate.' The book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

86, 6. This Copy of the History of Independency which is in Rydal library and has D. F.'s name on the fly-leaf and the price 9-0 on the title-page has a third part The High Court of Justice; or Cromwells New Slaughter House in England, With the Authority that constituted and ordained it. Arraigned, Convicted and Condemned. For Usurpation, Treason, Tiranny, Theft and Murdr. Being the III. Part of the History of Independency, written by the same Author. Printed Anno Domini 1651, In the second Yeare of the States Liberty and the Peoples Slavery. There is a note in D. F.'s hand on the title-page, 'This Book was writ by Master Walker; J L. 751,' and apparently in George Fleming's hand 'Athenæ Oxonienses, vol: 2, p. 77, 78.'

7. The book bought by D. F. is in the Rydal library with the price 5-0 on the title-page, and his name on title-page and fly-leaf.

87, 1. There is a copy of Topicks in the Laws of England in the Rydal library, doubtless the book bought by D. F. It has his name on fly-leaf and title-page and the price 1-0 on fly-leaf and cover. Its imprint is London, Printed by R. L. for William Leake, and are to be sold at his Shop at the signe of the Crown in Fleetstreet, between the two Temple Gates. 1647.

4. The book bought by D. F. for 11. 0 is more probably the following, which is in the library at Rydal with that price inside the cover, 'The Second Part of the Institutes Of the Lawes of England. Containing The Exposition of many ancient, and other Statutes; Whereof you may see the particulars in a Table following. . . . Authore Edw. Coke Milite. I. C. . . . London, Printed for M. Flesher, and R. Yonng, for E. D. R. M. W. L. and D. P. 1642.'

5. The copy in the library at Rydal is 'London, Printed by the Assignes of Iohn More Esquire. MDCXXXVI.' Daniel Fleming's name is written on the title-page.

8. Evelyn has in his diary under date 14 Feb. 1653-4: 'I saw a tame lion play familiarly with a lamb; he was a huge beast, and I thrust my hand into his mouth and found his tongue rough like a cat's; a sheepe also with 6 leggs, wch made use of 5 of them to walke; a goose that had 4 leggs, 2 crops, and as many vents.'

9. The edition in the library at Rydal is that of 1653:—'And now Published by W: Hughes of Grays-Inne Esquire. With two Tables, one of the Cases, the other of the Principall Matter therein contain'd. . . . London, Printed by T. N. for W. Lee, D. Pakeman, and G. Bedell, MDC LIII.'

88, 1. The Copy in the library at Rydal has D. F.'s name on the title-page, and the price 1-6 on title-page and cover.

2. From the price 1. 6. which is on the cover it appears that the book bought by D. F. was:—'An Exact Abridgment in English of The Commentaries, or Reports of the learned and famous Lawyer, Edmond Plowden, An Apprentice of the Common Law. Concerning diverse Cases and Matters in Law, and the Arguments thereupon; in the times of the Reignes of King Edward the Sixth, Queen Mary, King Philip, and Queen Mary, and Queen Elizabeth, with the Exceptions to the Pleadings, and Answers thereunto; the Resolutions of the Matters in Law, and all other principall Matters arising upon the same. By F. H. of the Inner Temple London, Esq; . . . London, Printed by R. White, and T. Roycroft, for Henry Twyford, and are to be sold at his Shop in Vine Court in the Middle Temple, 1650.'

88, 4. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903. There is also in the Rydal library a copy of the 1644 edition of the third part of the Institutes, but it does not seem to have belonged to D. F.

5. The copy bought by D. F. is now in the Rydal library with his name on fly-leaf and title-page and the price 1-6 on title-page and cover. It is a small 8°. Newly corrected and Imprinted with new Additions. Printed by the Assignes of John Morc, Esquirc. 1638.

6. The copy in Rydal library is dated 1648.

89, 6. The copy bought by D. F. is in the Rydal library with his name on the fly-leaf and title-page, and the price 3. 9. on the cover and title-page. The title runs :—'The Commentaries upon Original Writs. Where most of the cases in Bracton, Book of Entries, the Year or Term-Books, from King Edward the second to these Times. With the Plaints, Counts, Pleadings, Issues, Demurrers in matters of Law; the Debates, Opinions, Rules of Court, and Resolutions of the Judges therein: Are reduced to the Originall Writs, under severall Heads or Sections, for the better understanding of the Cases and Poynts of Law. Collected, abridged, and taken out of the Books themselves; By William Hughes of Grays Inne, Esq; The First Part. . . London, Printed by Tho: Roycroft, for Henry Twyford, and John Place, and are to be sold in Vine-Court, Middle Temple, and at Furnivals Inne-Gate in Holborn, 1655.'

7. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

8. In the library at Rydal is :—'A General Table To All The Severall Books Of The Reports Of The late most Reverend Judge Sir Edvvard Coke, heretofore chief Justice of the King's Bench, By Which All the Matters and Cases in them contained, may casily be found. With Two Alphabetically Catalogues, One of the principall Cases, The other of all the General Titles naturally rising out of the matter of the said Reports. Composed by Tho: Ashe of Graies-Inne. London, Printed by I. Flesher, for W. Lee, D. Pakeman, and G. Bedel, in Fleetstreet, 1652.'

9. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

90, 1. The book with Daniel Fleming's name on title-page and fly-leaf and the price 6/6 on cover and title-page is in the library at Rydal. It is the fourth edition, 'London, Printed for Tho. Downes and Geo. Badger, and are to be sold by John Williams and Francis Eglesfield in S<sup>t</sup> Pauls Church-yard 1653.'

2. In the library at Rydal is a copy of the fourth edition published in 1667, but this could not of course have been the copy now purchased by D. F.

4. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

5. In the Rydal library is :—'Declarations And Pleadings In English: Being the most Authentique Forme of Proceeding in Courts of Law; In Actions Reall, Personall, and Mixt; Usefull for all Practicers and Studients of the Law, of what Degre soever. Collected by Richard Brownlow Esq; Late Prothonotary of the Court of Common Pleas. Whereto Are Added Choice Presidents in the Upper Bench, by some others of good Note. Published in Order to the Act of Parliament, and for the good of the Common-wealth. With an exact Table, wherein may be found the Principall Matters contained in this Book. The second Edition, corrected and amended. London, Printed by Tho: Roycroft, for Henry Twyford, and are to be sold at his Shop in Vine-Court, Middle Temple 1653.

91, 7. The book meant is probably that which occurs in D. F.'s list of his books as follows: 'Thecophania; or several modern histories represented by way of Romance 4°. Lond. 1655 . . . 00-03-06.

8. The copy in the Rydal library is dated 1655, 'Written originally in Spanish, By Matheo Aleman, Servant to his Catholike Majestie; And from the same Epitomiz'd into English hy A. S. Gent.' D. F.'s name is on the fly-leaf and title-page, and the price 2. 0 on the cover.

92, 2. The copy of this hook in the Rydal library which was the one D. F. bought is London, Printed by T. C. and are to be sold hy John Wright at the Kings head in the Old-baily. 1655. It has D. F.'s name on fly-leaf and title-page, and the price 1 - 0 on the cover.

4. The hook in the Rydal library has two title-pages. The first title-page, which is engraved, reads:—'The Conveyancers Light or Exact Presidents for all manner of Instruments and Conveyances As they hane occasionally heene Composed by the advice of many Eminent Lawyers Both Antient & Moderne With A Concordance of yeares from R: 3<sup>d</sup> vntill these present tymes very Vse full. London Printed for H: Twyford: N: Brookes, and John Place. An<sup>o</sup> Dom: 1655.' The second title-page, which is printed, reads:—'The Compleat Clark, And Scriveners Guide. Containing exact Draughts and Presidents Of all manner of Assurances and Instruments now in use: As they were penned and perfected by divers Learned Judges, Eminent Lawyers, and Great Conveyancers, both Ancient and Modern. Whereunto is also added A Concordance of yeares, from the time of King Richard the third nntill this present; very usefull for Conveyancers and others. With an exact Alphabeticall Tahle, whereby any of the said Presidents may he easily found out. London, Printed by T. R. for H. Twyford, and are to be sold at his Shop in Vine-Court Middle Temple, N. Brookes at the Angell in Cornhill, J. Place at Furnivals Inne Gate in Holborne, and R. Wingate, at the Golden Hind in Chancery-Lane, 1655.'

5. In the Rydal library is:—'An exact Collection of choice Declarations, with Pleas, Replications, Rejoynders, Demurrers, Assignement of Errours: and The Entries of Judgments thereupon affirmed. Collected by VV. S. one of the Clerks of the Upper Bench Office: In the Reignes of Queene Elizabeth, King James, and the late King Charles. Diligently Perused, and Translated into English for the benefit and helpe of young Clerkes. With an exact Table, wherein may be found the Principall matters contained in the whole Book. London, Printed by T. W. and T. R. for John Place, and are to be sold at his Shop at Furnivalls Inne Gate in Holhorne, 1653.' D. F. seems to have written N. S. hy mistake for W. S.

7. In the Rydal library is:—'Judgements As they were upon Solemne Arguments given In The Upper-Bench And Common-Pleas, Upon the most difficult Points in All Manner Of Actions: Together with the Terms and Numher-Rolls, In which the same are Entred. As also other speciall Judiciall proceedings in Order thereunto; taken out of the Records of the same Court, very usefull for all Clerks, Attorneys, and others. With an exact Alphahetical Table, wherein may he found the principall matters threain contained. Printed by Thomas Roycroft, and are to be sold at most Stationers Shops in London, 1655.'

8. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

93, 1. The Imprint of the Rydal copy is 'London, Printed by John Field, Printer to the Parliament of England, And arc to be sold hy W: Lce, D: Pakeman, and G: Bedell, at their shops in Fleet-strect. 1653.'

3. The copy in the Rydal library has D. F.'s name on fly-leaf and title-page and the price 1 - 0 on covcr and title-page.

5 and 6. These books were identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

7. The copy hought hy D. F. is in the library at Rydal with his name upon the fly-leaf, and the price 1 - 0 upon cover and title-page.

94, 3. In the library at Rydal Hall is A Collection of sundry Statutes, frequent in use, With Notes in the Margent and References to the Bookeases and Books of Entries and Registers, where they be treated of. Together with an Abridgement of the residue which be expired, repealed, altered, and worn out of use, or doe concern private Persons, Places, or Things, and not the whole Commonwealth. Also a necessary Table, or Kalender, is annexed herennto, expressing in Titles the most materiall Branches of those Statutes in use, and practice. By Ferdinando Pulton of Lincolnes Inne, Esquire. And Now in this last Impression the faults in the Table exactly corrected and amended. London, Printed by M. Flesher and R. Young, Assignes of I. More Esquire, 1640. Cnm Privilegio. There is also in the Rydal library a copy of the edition of 1632, but it does not seem to have belonged to D. F. See pages 101, 102, from which it is to be inferred that 50 here should be 40.

94, 4. The copy here bought is in the Rydal library with D. F.'s name on the fly-leaf and title-page, and the price 11/ on the cover and title-page.

5 and 11. These books were identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

95, 1. The title of the copy in the library at Rydal corresponds with the description in London's catalogue, and adds 'By William Shepard Esquire. London, Printed by Tho. Maxey, for William Lee, Daniel Pakeman, and Gabriel Bedell and are to be sold at their Shops in Fleet-street. 1654.' It is bound up with The Complete Justice, 1637, printed anon.; a book of the same size.

3. The book described in London's Catalogne is in the library at Rydal, and its title-page is:—'Amieus Reipublicæ. The Common-Wealths Friend. Or An Exaet and Speedie Course to Justice and Right, and for Preventing and Determining of Tedious Law-Suits. With many other things very considerable for the good of the Publick. All which are fully Controverted and Debated in Law. By John March of Grayes-Inne, Barister. . . . London, Printed by Will. Bentley, for Franeis Eglesfield, at the Marygold in S. Pauls Church-yard. 1651.'

5. Perhaps the second wife of Edward Lowe, or Loe, then a music-master at Oxford, afterwards Professor of Music, who had been instructor to Barbara Fletcher, to whom D. F. was married later in the year. See Additional Note on p. 4, n. 1.

9. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

10. The copy D. F. here bought is in the library at Rydal with his name on the fly-leaf and the price on the cover. It is dated in manuscript 1638. The title reads:—'Of The Lawes of Ecclesiastical Politie. Eight Bookes By Richard Hooker. London Printed by Richard Bishop, and are to be sold by George Latham.' With this book are bound 'Certain Divine Tractates and other Godly Sermons. By Riehard Hooker . . . London, Printed by R. Bishop. 1639,' and 'Five Learned Sermons Written By Richard Hooker . . . London, Printed by R. Bishop. 1639.'

96, 1. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

3. From the copy at Rydal, which has D. F.'s name on the fly-leaf and the price 0-8 on the cover, it appears that the title should be amended as follows. 'Politick maxims and observations written by the most learned H. Grotius. Translated for the case and benefit of the English States-men by H. C. S. T. B.' Id est B. D.

4. Steps of Ascension unto God, or a Ladder of Heaven, containing Prayers and Meditations for every day of the week and for all other tymes and occasions, by E. G. D.D. London Printed for Rich. Meighen, 1636. Engraved title by Marshall. (In Pickering and Chatto's Book Lovers leaflet, No. 133, 1903.)

5. The book here referred to is in the Rydal library with Daniel Fleming's name on the fly-leaf and title-page, and with the price 9. 0. on cover and title-page. It is the second edition 'London, Printed for Iohn Clark, and are to be sold at his shop under S. Peters Church in Cornhill. Anno Salutis MDCXXXVIII.'

96, 7. This George may have been the eighth child of Gawen Brathwaite of Ambleside the brother of D. F.'s grandmother.

8. The book bought by D. F. is in the library at Rydal with D. F.'s name on fly-leaf and title-page and the price 8-0 on title-page and cover. It is A Relation of the Conference betweene William Lawd, Then, Lrd Bishop of S<sup>t</sup> Davids; Now, Lord Arch-Bishop of Canterhury: And M<sup>r</sup> Fisher the Jesnite, hy the Command of King James of ever Blessed Memorie. With an Answer to such Exceptions as A. C. takes against it. By the sayd Most Reverend Father in God, William, Lord Arch-Bishop of Canterhury. London, Printed hy Richard Badger, Printer to the Prince His Highnes. MDCXXXIX. folio.

97, 1. In the copy of Cleopatra which is now in the library at Rydal and is contained in four volumes, the first which is all that D. F. bought on this occasion contains the first three parts only. Of these from the title-page the first and second were published in 1654, and the third in 1655. The fourth part, which in the title-page is said to be translated by J. C., published in 1656, and the fifth by the same translator published in the same year form the second volume: the sixth part, also translated by J. C. and published in 1658, forms a volume by itself. The fourth volume contains the seventh part, translated by J. C. and published in 1658, and the eighth part translated by J. W. and published in the same year. Each part has a separate title, and the first and fourth have also a frontispiece. All these are in small octavo. The ninth and tenth parts seem to have been issued in folio. In the copy in the Rydal library the two parts are in one volume with a title-page to the two dated 1659, but the tenth part has a separate title dated 1658. The translator of both is J. D., and we learn from the dedications that he was John Davies. The eleventh and twelfth parts were similarly issued together in 1659 with a common title-page, and also a separate title-page to the twelfth part, both being dated 1659.

98, 2. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

6. In the Rydal library is:—'The First Part Of Simholeography. . . . London, Printed for the Companie of Stationers. 1622.'

99, 1. The copy of L'Estrange's King Charles I in the library at Rydal has the imprint:—'London, Printed by E. C. for Edward Dod, and Henry Seile the younger, and are to be sold at the Gun in Ivie-Lane, and over against St. Dunstons Church in Fleet-street, 1655.'

3. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

4. In the Rydal library is:—'The History Of Philosophy. By Thomas Stanley. Containing those on whom the Attribute of VVise was conferred. London, Printed for Humphrey Moseley, and Thomas Dring, and are to be sold at their shops at the Princcs Armes in St. Pauls Church-yard, and at the George in Fleetstreet neere Cliffords Inne. 1655.'

100, 1. Humphrey Robinson took up the freedom of the Stationers' Company 30 June, 1623 (Arber's Transcripts, iii. 685). The first book he entered was Bishop Carleton's A thankfull remembrance of God's mercye, which he entered along with Robert Milborne 1 May, 1624 (ib. iv. 116). Among the books entered or assigned to him between then and 1640 are Rawley's edition of the Miscellany Works of Lord Bacon, 2 May, 1629 (ib. 210), Wotton's Ad Regem è Scotici (? Scotia) Reducem Plausus et vota, 21 Nov. 1633 (ib. iv. 309). He was Master of the Stationers' Company in 1661 and 1667 as Bookseller, son of Bernard

Robinson of Carlisle, Clerk (V. lxxv). His father was fellow of Queen's College 1582, vicar of Burford, Oxon, 1593, and of Torpenhow, Cumberland 1613-32, canon of Carlisle 1612-34, to which he was appointed by Henry Robinson, bishop of Carlisle, who was his contemporary, and may have been his brother. One of the books he published is in the library at Rydall Hall, viz. 'Sermons Preached upon Severall Occasions, By Lancelot Dawcs, D.D. Now Minister of Barton in Westmorland, and sometimes fellow of Queens Colledge in Oxford. . . . London. Printed for Humphrey Robinson, at the Three Pigeons in St. Pauls Church-yard, MDCLII.'

102, 4. In the Rydal library is a duodecimo A Synopsis of Heraldry, London, Printed for L. Curtis, neer Fleetbridge, and T. Simmons at the Princes Arms in Ludgate Street. 1682. It is made up of a number of pamphlets paged continuously, one of which containing pages 7 to 36 is A Catalogue of the Nobility of England with an Exact List of all the Knights of the Garter. It is perhaps an earlier edition of such a volume to which Smith refers.

103, 1. The two books of Heylyn's mentioned in this note are in the Rydal library. The title of the first is:—'Observations On The Historie Of the Reign of King Charles: Published by H. L. Esq. For Illustration of the Story, and Rectifying some Mistakes and Errors in the Course thereof. . . . London, Printed for John Clarke, at his shop under S. Peters-Church in Cornhill, 1656.

2. Heylyn's Reply is also in the Rydal library. Its title is: Respondet Petrus: or, The Answer of Peter Heylyn D.D. To so much of Dr. Bernard's Book Entituled, The Judgement of the late Primate of Ireland, &c. As he is made a Party to by the said Lord Primate in the Point of the Sabbath, And by the said Doctor in some others. To which is added An Appendix In Answer to certain Passages in M<sup>r</sup> Sandersons History of the Life and Reign of K. Charles, Relating to The Lord Primate, The Articles of Ireland, And the Earl of Strafford, In which the Respondent is concerned. London, Printed for R. Royston at the Angel in Ivy-Lane, and R. Marriot in S. Dunstons Church-yard, Fleet-street. MDCLVIII.

113, 2. The 'Uncle' referred to seems to be Daniel, fifth son of Daniel Fleming of Skirwith, and brother to Henry Brougham's correspondent. The Inscription on his tomb in Barton Church gives the date of his death as 23 Jan. 1657, and his age as about 37 years. (Nicolson's Miscellany Accounts of the Diocese of Carlisle, p. 125.) The Fleming Pedigree says he died unmarried.

114, 1. See also Appendix I.

127, 3. In the library at Rydal is a copy of Hughes' translation, London, 1659.

5. There is also in the Rydal library another book by the same author:—'A Snre Guide; or The Best and Nearest Way to Physick and Chyrurgery: . . . London: . . . 1657.' fol.

6. In the Rydal library is Panthalia: or the Royal Romance. A Discourse Stored with infinite variety in relation to State-Government And Passages of matchless affection gracefully intervined, And presented on a Theatre of Tragical and Comical State, in a suecssive continuation to these Times. Faithfully and ingenuously rendred. . . . London, Printed by J. G. and are to be sold by Anthony Williamson at the Queens-Armes in St. Pauls Church-yard. 1659.

131, 2. Old Hum. is of course Humphrey Robinson, for whom sec n. 1, p. 100, and the Additional Note thereto. Mr. C. R. Rivington, the Clerk to the Stationers' Company, kindly informs me that 'When Queen Elizabeth, and subsequently her suecessors, entered the City, the custom was for the Lord Mayor to be attended by Representatives of the Livery Companies, and the Stationers' Company was usually represented by the "Master and Wardens and six of the comeliest personages of the Livery on horseback in velvet coats with Chains of Gold and Staff torches." Warden Robinson would have been one of the Representatives of the Company adorned with chains of gold to welcome the King.'

147, 2. In one of the bound volumes of quarto pamphlets in the library at Rydal is A Reply of Sir George Downing Knight and Baronet, Envoy extraordinary from His Majesty of Great-Britain &c. to the Remarks of the Deputies of the Estates-General upon his Memorial of December 20, 1664, Old Style. London, Printed Anno Dom. 1665. This is apparently the English official version of these transactions, and has D. F.'s name written on the title-page. The volume of pamphlets is labelled Miscellaneous Matters.

149, 1. The Mr. Brathwait of the text is more likely Thomas of Ambleside, for whom see n. 4, p. 206. One dwelling at Ambleside would be more a 'neighbor' than one dwelling at Burneshead.

150, 5. John was the fourth son and sixth child. See n. 6, p. 416.

153, 4. In the library at Rydal there is an earlier copy. In the title-page after 'the late King' it runs And now published by the Right Reverend Father in God Robert Sanderson Lord Bishop of Lincoln. London, Printed by R. Norton for Timothy Garthwait in St. Paul's Church-yard, 1661. The Frontispiece is the Episcopal Arms of Lincoln. The Epistle Dedicatory is dated London, August 10, MDCLXI, which the later printer misread MDCXLI. Sanderson's renunciation and disownment would therefore not apply to this book.

163, 3. Bishop Ware writes:—Henry Marshall M.A. became V. of Curthwaite in 1661 (Bishop Nicolson's MS. list of Incumbents) and held it till his death, not vacating it when he received other preferments. It appears from the roll-call of the Cathedral that he was a prebendary June 23, 1666 (his predecessor George Buchanan was still prebendary June 23, 1665), and the mandate to instal Jeremy Nelson his successor is dated June 4, 1667. At the visitation of the Cathedral Sept. 5, 1666, the reply was given that the number of Canons was not full for Mr. Marshall was lately dead—so that he held his prebend a very short time. He was also Vicar of Stanwix 1666; succeeding George Buchanan at Stanwix, as in the prebend, in that year. He was also appointed Chancellor 1666. Thus for about a year he held all four offices. Nicolson and Burn (vol. ii. p. 307) give the story of his death as a murder, 'at his own door.' Ferguson's Diocesan history, p. 209, says 'at the door of his vicarage'; but I think he is only quoting Nicolson and Burn incorrectly. It is more likely that he lived in Carlisle, as some of his successors at Stanwix certainly did.

5. Bishop Ware also writes:—At the visitation Sept. 5, 1666, after stating that the number of Canons was not full, it is added 'neither yet the Minor Canons, for Mr. Wargent Lecturer and Minor Canon is dead also.' Mr. Wargent was on the roll-call as a Minor Canon June 23, 1666, but not on Nov. 23, 1661. After 1661, no roll-call for the next four years is preserved. His name does not appear in Bishop Nicolson's MS. List of Incumbents (from 1660) as holding any living. The Lecturer or Prælector was a Cathedral Officer, but was sometimes also called Lecturer of St. Mary's. St. Mary's was a parish Church within the Cathedral, the nave being a parish Church, as was usual with Augustinian Canons.

6. Lady Curwen made her will 24 Dec. 1666, and died in the following month. (J. F. Curwen's Curwen Pedigree, p. 51.)

169, 1. In the London Gazette, Numb. 151, from Thursday, April 25, to Monday, April 29, 1667, it is reported from Venice under date April 22. That 'Letters lately arrived from Dalmatia, assure us, that a great part of Dalmatia has extreamly suffered by a terrible Earthquake, which hapned to them on Holy Thursday last, which threw down a great many houses in Cattaro, with a considerable part of the Wall towards the Sca, involving at the least 600 persons in the ruines. . . . Besides these, Rhaguse is more then half destroyed, with the death of 5 or 6000 of the Inhabitants. . . . Some Haidukes of Cattaro being then abroad upon a party to seek after prey, saw some Mountains in the Turkish Borders, that in the time of the Earthquake seemed to open, out of which, issued some fire with abundance of smoak.'

173, 1. Joseph Wright (English Dialect Dictionary, s.v.) says that Petties was used as a term of contempt for the lower scholars at Cartmel School.

174, 3. D. F.'s copy, which is now in the Rydal library, is dated 1665, 'Wherevnto is added, The Reign of King Charles the First, with a Continuation of the Chronicle, in this Fourth Edition To the Coronation of His Sacred Majesty King Charles the Second That now Reigneth. In which are many Material Affairs of State never before Published; and likewise the most Remarkable Occurences relating to His Majesties most Happy and Wonderful Restavration, by the Prudent Conduct, under God, of General Monck, now Duke of Albermarle, and Captain General of all His Majesties Armies: As they were Extracted out of His Excellencies own Papers, and the Journals and Memorials of those imploy'd in the most Important and Secret Transactions of that time. London, Printed for Nathaniel Ranew and Jonathan Robinson; and are to be sold at their Shop at the Signe of the Angel in St. Pauls Church-yard, M.DC.LXV.'

182, 2. Petty Sessions, no quarter sessions were held at Penrith.

183, 3. In the library at Rydal is:—'The History of the Royal-Society of London, For the Improving of Natural Knowledge. By Tho. Sprat. London, Printed by T. R. for J. Martyn at the Bell without Temple-bar, and J. Allestry at the Rose and Crown in Duck-lane, Printers to the Royal Society. MDCLXVII.'

206, 4. In the MSS. of Mr. George Browne of Troutbeck (Historical MSS. Commission Tenth Report, Appendix, Part IV. p. 356) appears The Will of Thomas Braithwaite, of Ambleside, Esquire, A.D. 1674. He desires that all his ancient medals and Roman antiquities of gold, silver, brass, and copper, be presented by his friend Dr. Barlow, Provost of Queen's College, to whom he has given them by a deed of trust, to the University of Oxford. The will gives many genealogical details. The will is also printed at length in A Booke off Recorde of Kirkbickendall, pp. 242-7.

216, 3. The person referred to is probably William, for whom see n. 6, p. 176. I have been unable to trace any relationship to Machell, who was about four years senior to him in College. Blennerhasset was sheriff of Cumberland for the two years 1678 and 1679.

221, 3. In the Rydal library is A Sermon Preached in the Savoy, July 11, 1675 by Mr. De Luzancy, Licentiat in Divinity, On the Day of his Abjuration. English'd. The Second Edition. London, Printed by W. Godbid, and are to be sold by Moses Pitt, at the Angel over against the Little North-door of St. Paul's Church. 1676. Where you may have the same Sermon in French, as it was Preached. 4°. It is bound with some other pamphlets, in a volume labelled Jesuits Intrigues, &c.

235, 5. The practice continued for at least sixty years after this, as in 'Shepilinda's Memoirs,' a MS. belonging to the Rev. Egerton Leigh, Vicar of Kirkstall, Yorkshire, dated 7 Jan. 1737-8, we read: 'the Fellows that dine at the high Table

Sit at the High Table sit all with their Backs against the Wall, & the poor Children, or Tabiters that wait on them, Stand with their Faces towards them, & their 2 thnbs across upon the table; which custom has been ever since one of them Stab'd a person in the time of Diner or Super, I don't know which, but my Memory won't let me tell you, who it was, how it was, nor when it was, but thus much I believe that true it was.'

237, 1. Henry Fletcher had become eldest son by the death of his brother George. See n. 2, p. 358.

239, 5. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903. D. F. had also by this time acquired the copy of the original edition of the Whole Duty of Man. 'London, Printed for Tim. Garthwait in Little St. Bartholomews-Hospital, neer Smithfield, 1668,' which is in the Rydal library.

249, 3. Lining is the spelling of 'linen' on p. 333.

253, 4. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

5. The copy in Rydal library is The Third Edition Corrected and Enlarged. To which is added, A Meditation for every Day in the Week. London: Printed for Christopher Wilkinson, at the Black-Boy over against St. Dunstons Church in Fleet-street, MDCLXXVII. 12mo. In the library at Rydal there is also a copy of the seventh edition, published in 1682.

254, 2. There is also in the Rydal library with D. F.'s name on the fly-leaf 'ΤΙΠΟΤΥΠΩΣΙΣ ὙΓΙΑΙΝΟΝΤΩΝ ΔΟΤΩΝ A Form of Sound Words: or, a Scripture-Catechism; shewing what a Christian is to Believe and Practise, in order to Salvation. Very usefull for Persons of all Ages and Capacities as well as Children. Composed by the Pious and Learned John Worthington, D.D. Deceased. London, Printed for R. Royston, Bookseller to His most Sacred Majesty. MDCLXXIII. The short title and the heading of the pages is A Scripture-Catechism. It is 12°. The library has also a copy of the book described in the note on p. 254. The length of the description given in the text seems to be due to the attempt to distinguish it from the other book.

3. In the library at Rydal there is a copy of the Westminster Greek Grammar printed in London 1613. It was apparently used by Fletcher Fleming, who has put the date 1692 and 1694 on the fly-leaf. In the same volume 'A short Introduction of Grammar, generally to be vsed: . . . 1613,' and 'Brevissima Institutio . . . 1613' are included.

4, l. 10. For Brevissimæ read Brevissima.

5. In the library at Rydal are two copies of An Essay to facilitate the Education of Youth, by Bringing down the Rudiments of Grammar to the sense of Seeing, which ought to be improv'd by Sincrisis. Fitted to Children's Capacities, for the learning, especially of the English, Latin and Greek tongues; bnt may be as a General Grammar, and a Foundation to any Tongue: in Three Parts, An Accidence, a Middle-Grammar, and a Critical or Idiomatical Grammar. By M. Lewis of Tottenham. London, Printed for Thomas Parkhurst, at the sign of the Bible and Three Crowns, at the lower end of Cheapside, near Mercers Chappel, 1674. 8°. There is also in the Rydal library:—'Vestibulum Technicum: Or, An Artificial Vestibulum Wherein the sense of Janua Linguarum is contained, and most of the leading words Chapter by Chapter, are compiled into plain, and short Sentences, fit for the initiation of Children. Each Part of Speech is distinguished by the Character it is Printed in, (a Method never used before) and a sufficient Grammar is brought down to the sense of Scceing, in regard of the thing signified, contained in two Pages. It will very much ease the Master, and exceedingly promote the expeditious progress of the Scholar. By M. Lewis.

London, Printed for Thomas Parkhurst, at the Sign of the Bible and Three Crowns, at the lower end of Cheap-side, near Mercers Chappel, 1675.'

269, 2. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

3. In the library at Rydal Hall are two copies of: Of Education, Especially of Young Gentlemen. In two Parts. The Third Impression with Additions. Printed at the Theater in Oxford, and are to be had there, and at Simon Millers Bookseller at the Star at the west end of S. Pauls Churchyard. Ann. 1677. 12°. D. F. has written across the title-page 'By Mr Obadiah Walker now Master of University College Oxon.'

271, 3. Dorothy Kirkby who married the first of the three Edward Wilsons was niece, not sister of D. F.'s mother, being daughter of Roger, Alice Fleming's brother. The third Edward was grandson of the second, being son of Daniel the second Edward's third son, the eldest who survived him. Two Edwards who were older than this Daniel died before their father. Daniel Wilson married Elizabeth, daughter of William Crowle of Hull, son of George who married Eleanor Kirkby, younger sister of the first Edward's second wife.

273, 4. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

277, 4. The living was that of Monk Sherborne in Hampshire which was vacated by the death of John Dobson on 4 Dec. 1678 (College Entrance Book). Skelton seems to have taken the living (see p. 279) which he held it would seem (see n. 1, p. 223) with two and eventually with three livings in Lincolnshire. He seems to have resigned it on his presentation to Walgrave in Northants as William Simpson seems to have succeeded him at Monk Sherborne in 1682.

281, 2. This book was identified in the library at Rydal Hall in 1903.

3. D. F. obtained a copy of Oates's sermon, which is now in the library at Rydal Hall with D. F.'s name on the title-page, bound up in a volume labelled Sermons.

287, 4. The 1674 edition of the Parecbolæ is in the Rydal library. In this the Statuta Carolina are followed by the Thirty-nine Articles and the oaths of fidelity and supremacy. There is also in the Rydal Library a copy of the 1682 edition in which written across the title-page are the words 'Geo: Fleming Julij 10<sup>mo</sup> 1688.' probably the copy given him at his matriculation.

291, 2. The book referred to by Mr. Clark is A brief Historical Relation of State Affairs from September 1678 to April 1714, by Narcissus Luttrell. In Six Volumes, Oxford, 1857. 1674 is a misprint for 1679.

296, 2. In the Rydal library is:—'Romanæ Historiæ Anthologia Recognita Et Avcta. An English Exposition of the Roman Antiquities, wherein many Roman & English offices are paralleld and divers obscure phrases explained. For the use of Abingdon Schoolc. Newly revised and enlarged by the Author. Oxford, Printed by Leonard Lichfield for Henry Cripps. A. Dom. M.DC.XLII.' The preface is signed by Tho. Godwin. In the same volume is bound 'Moses and Aaron. Civil And Ecclesiastical Rites Used By The ancient Hebrewes; . . . By Thomas Godwyn, B.D. . . . London . . . 1641.'

3. The Antiquity & Excellency of Globes. What a Globe is, and of the Circles without the Globe, what the Horizon is with the things described thereon, also what the Meridian is, the Poles, Axes, Hore circle and. Index. Moreover of the Circles which are described on the superficies of the Globes; of the Equinoctial Circle, Zodiack, and Eccliptick, of the Tropicks, what the Artic and Antartick Circles are; of the Vertical Circles, and Quadrant of Latitnde, of the Zones and their numbers of Climates and Paralcls. All which are proper to the Celestiall and Terrestrial Globes, with their uses, profitable for all that would be instructed in Geography. He stretcheth out the North over the Empty place, and hangeth the Earth upon nothing, Job 26. 7. London, Printed by M. S. and are to be sold by Tho. Jenner at the South-entrance of the Old Exchange, 1652. 4<sup>o</sup>, title and 26 pages. (In the library at Tabley House.)

297, 3. Robert Lowther, for whom see n. 1, p. 285, and n. 1, p. 480.

6. William Lowther, for whom see n. 1, p. 285.

299, 3. There is in the Rydal library:—(1) Behemoth, The History of the Civil Wars of England from the year 1640 to 1660, by T. H. of Malmsbury. Purged from the Errours of former Editions. Printed in the year 1680. 8<sup>o</sup>. (2) Mr. Hobbs's State of Nature Considered, In a Dialogue between Philautus and Timothy. To which are added Letters from the Author of the Grounds and Occasions of the Contempt of the Clergy. London, Printed by E. T. and R. H. for Nath. Brooke, at the Sign of the Angel in Cornhill, near the Royal Exchange, 1652. 8<sup>o</sup>. (3) Some opinions of Mr. Hobbs considered in a Second Dialogue between Philautus and Timothy. By the same Author. London, Printed by J. Macock, for Walter Kettibly, at the Sign of the Bishops-head in St. Paul's Church-yard, 1673. 8<sup>o</sup>.

301, 2. The copy of the book in the library at Rydal belongs to the 8<sup>o</sup> edition. D. F. seems to have been interested in this controversy. In the Library at Rydal are (1) A Discourse of the Peerage and Jurisdiction of the Lords Spiritual in Parliament Proving from the Fundamental Laws of the Land, the Testimony of the most Renowned Authors, and the Practice of all Ages. That They have no right in claiming any Jurisdiction in Capital Matters. London, Printed in the year MDCLXXIX. folio. (2) That the Bishops in England May and Ought to Vote in Cases of Blood Written in the Late Times upon occasion of the Earl of Straffords Case. By a Learned Pen. With some Answers to the Objections of the then Bishop of Lincoln, against Bishops Voting in Parliament. London, Printed for Walter Davis, 1680. folio. (3) The Rights of the Bishops To Judge in Capital Cases in Parliament cleared. Being a Full Answer to Two Books lately published; The First Entitled, A Letter from a Gentleman to his Friend, &c. The other, A Discourse of the Peerage and Jurisdiction of the Lords Spiritual in Parliament: Endeavouring to shew the contrary. London, Printed by Tho. Braddyll, for Robert Clavel, at the Peacock in St. Paul's Church-Yard, 1680.

308, CLXXVIII. These were Daniel and George's accounts at Kendal, not at Sedbergh School. Daniel was at Kendal school from June, 1672, to May, 1680. He would then be nearly 20 years of age (see n. 13, p. 402), and now finished his education. George remained by himself at Kendal till December, 1680. He then seems to have been taught at home for six months with the three brothers next younger than himself by a Mr. Thwaites. George, Michael, Richard, and Roger went to Hawkshead school to be under Mr. Sadler in August, 1681, and stayed there till December, 1685. In the following January George and Richard went to Sedbergh to be under Posthumus Wharton.

321, 4. See Additional Note on p. 296, n. 2.

380, 1. Perhaps William Lancaster, for whom see n. 3, p. 244.

401, 11. Dr. J. F. Payne thinks Richman must have been a 'Touch-doctor,' who treated diseases by rubbing and stroking, much in the same way as some moderns, the masseurs, and partisans of the Swedish or Kellgren treatment, which is widely popular. The best known of these in the seventeenth century was the notorious Valentine Greatrakes, patronised by Boyle, but there were several others, all unlearned men and of course not recognised as general practitioners. Another explanation of the phrase is that it has to do with the fish, 'the tench, the physician of fishes' as Isaac Walton calls it (The Complete Angler, chapter 11), who ascribes healing power to 'two little stones in every Tench's head,' and to 'applying a Tench to the feet,' and says that 'the Pike, being either sick or hurt, is cured by the touch of the Tench.'

408, 4. Clavi Trabales; or, Nailles Fastned by some Great Masters of Assemblyes. Confirming The Kings Supremacy. The Subjects Duty. Church Government by Bishops. The Particulars of which are as followeth I. Two Speeches of the late Lord Primate Ushers. The one of the Kings Supremacy, The other of the Duty of Subjects to supply the Kings Necessities. II. His Judgment and Practice in Point of Loyalty, Episcopacy, Liturgy and Constitutions of the Church of England, III. Mr. Hookers Judgment of the Kings Power in matters of Religion, advancement of Bishops &c. IV. Bishop Andrews of Church Government &c. both confirmed and enlarged by the said Primate. V. A Letter of Dr. Hadrianus Saravia of the like Subjects, Unto which is added a Sermon of Regal Power, and the Novelty of the Doctrine of Resistance, Also a Preface by the Right Reverend Father in God, the Lord Bishop of Lincoln, Published by Nicholas Bernard, Doctor of Divinity, and Rector of Whit-church in Shropshire. London, Printed by R. Hodgkinson, and are to be sold by R. Marriot, at his Shop in St. Dunstons Church-yard in Fleetstreet. 1661. Small 4°. It is in the library at Rydal Hall, and also in the Bodleian is Bp. Barlow's copy, who has noted on the title-page that the sermon is by Nic. Bernard, and the Preface by Bp. Sanderson.

409, 6. Penna Volans: or The Young Man's Accomplishment. A Copy-Book, wherein The Rules of Arithmetick are exquisitely Written In all the Usual Hands. viz. The New Mixed Secretary, Set Hand, Text, Roman, Court and Chancery. Also, Such plain and ample Rules and Directions for the writing of all those Hands, as that one of a mean Capacity may learn them without a Teacher. And that nothing may be wanting to the full Attainment of both those Arts, the Author hath published a Book of Arithmetick, entituled, The Complete Arithmetitian. Both to be sold by Matt. Collings at the Three Black-Birds in Canon-Street, and Will. Rumbold at the Princes-Arms in St. Laurence-lane. These Arts are taught in the best manuer on the South side of St. Paul's Church over against Paul's Chain betwixt the Signs of the Sugar-Loaf and Naked Boy, By the Author hercof Edward Cocker. There is an address to the Reader and a second title made up of flourishes enclosing the title itself as follows, with a Crown above and the Lion and Unicorn on each side: Penna Volans or The young mans Accomplishment being The quintessence of those curious Arts Writing & Arithmetick Whereby ingenious Youths may soone be made For Cleark-ship fit, or management of Trade Invented Written & Engraven By Edward Cocker 1661. (In the Finch Library at the Taylor Buildings, Oxford.) It is not in the Bodleian; the copy in the British Museum has lost its title-page.

411, 2. The Bodleian has Le Jeu de L'Hombre. Comme on le joue presentement à la cour, & à Paris. Avec les Pertintailles. Enrichy de Cartes figurées, qui représentent les Jeux qui se jolient. Cinquieme Edition. A Paris Chez la Veuve de Claude Barbin, au Palais, sur le second Perron de la Sainte Chapelle. M.DCCV. Avec Privilege Du Roy. 12°. It has also of the same size the seventh edition of the same book, published 1713. D. F. may have purchased an earlier edition.

414, 2. In the second-hand catalogue of Mr. Hitchman of Birmingham, No. 407, Easter 1904, is offered for sale Wingate's Remains, or The Clerk's Tutor to Arithmetick and Writing, with a Copy-Book of Mr. Cockers, consisting of the most necessary hands, with plates of handwriting, 12mo, half calf, 7/6. 1676.

415, 7. William Molines (fl. 1680) has a few lines given to him by Dr. J. F. Payne in D. N. B., s. v. Molines James. He is mentioned in the Records of the Barber-Surgeons as engaged in the anatomical dissections at their hall in 1648, and wrote Myotomia, or the Anatomical Administration of all the muscles of an Humane Body (London, 1680, sm. 8°). He probably belonged to a medical family, which included the other persons of the same name mentioned in the same article. See also the introduction to James Molins' Anatomical and Practical Observations, ed. J. F. Payne, reprinted from St. Thomas' Hospital Reports, vol. XXIII. London, 1896.

418, 5. Probably the Emplastrum Stipticum Paracelsi, which is recommended by Woodall in 'The Surgeon's Mate' (1639) as one of the first requisites in the Surgeon's chest. Woodall does not give the composition, but there are several prescriptions for plasters in 'Paracelsus's Surgery' ('Die grosse Wundartzney,' Ulm, 1536, folio). That which the author praises most was composed of bees-wax, colophony, and cobbler's wax, with which were blended gum ammoniacum, bdellium, amber, and powdered magnet (magnetic iron ore). This was so powerful, it could draw an arrow-head out of a wound! Another receipt for Paracelsus's plaster, in 'Schroder's Dispensatory' (London, 1669), gives besides gums, &c., mummy, loadstone, white and red coral, with a number of other ingredients. (J. F. Payne in Molins' Anatomical and Practical Observations, London, 1896, p. 12.) Dr. Payne kindly wrote to me: 'It was not recognized in the Pharmacopoeia Londinensis, the official formulary, but was apparently widely used. Originally it seems to have been meant to be magnetic in its effects.'

8. D. F. seems at any rate to have kept the school at Rydal in repair, see p. 453, entry under 13 Nov. 1669.

419, 9. See also n. 4, p. 61.

421, 3. Master also bought a copy, see p. 389, May 4. I have not been able to identify the book.

432, July 8. For Dorothy Sands, see n. 4, p. 206, and n. 15, p. 486.

435, 2. Life (the) of Donna Olimpia Maldachini, who governed the Church during the time of Innocent the X. which was from the year 1644, to the year 1655. Written in Italian by Abbot Gualdi [Gregorio Lati]: and faithfully rendered into English [by Henry Compton, Bishop of London]. London, M.DC.LXVII. Octavo. Pp. 214. [Wood, Athen. Oxon., iv. 576.] (Halkett and Laing, ii. 1473.)

444, 4. Grace was sister, not daughter, to Sir Richard Sandford. Their father Richard was not a knight. (Nicolson and Burn, ii. 376.) The facts are correctly stated in n. 3, p. 84.

449, 6. Enter into thy Closet: or, a Method and Order for Private Devotion. With an Appendix Concerning the Frequent and Holy Use of the Lords Supper. The Fourth Edition. Is not this a brand pluckt out of the fire. Zech. 3. 2. London, Printed for John Martyn, and are to be sold at the Bell in St. Paul's Churchyard. 1672. (Bodl. sm. 8°.) In the Bodleian Catalogue it is ascribed to Edward Wetenhall (1636-1713) bishop of Kilmore and Ardagh.

461, 6. Polygraphice: or The Art of Drawing, Engraving, Etching, Limning, Painting, Washing, Varnishing, Colouring and Dying. In Threc Books. I. Shews the Drawing, of Men, and other Animal Creatures, Landskips, Countries, and Figures of Various Forms. II. The way of Engraving, Etching and Limning, with all their Requisites and Ornaments. III. The way of Painting, Washing, Varnishing, Colouring, and Dying, according to the Method of the best Authors now Extant. Exemplified in the Painting of the Antients, Washing of Maps, Globes, or Pictures; Dying of Cloth, Silks, Bones, Wood, Glass, Stones, and Metals: together with the way of Varnishing thereof according to any Purpose or Intent. The Like never yet Extant. By W. S. a Lover of Art. London, Printed by E. T. and R. H. for Richard Jones at the Golden Lion in Little-Brittain. 1652. (Bodl. sm. 8°.) The Dedication to Peter Stanley of Alderly is signed W. Salmon.

462, 15. Galingale, the aromatic root of certain East Indian plants of the genera Alpinia and Kämpferia, formerly much used in medicine and cookery. Lindley, Nat. Syst. Bot. 267. The warm and pungent roots of the greater and lesser Galangale are . . . used by the Indian doctors in cases of dyspepsia. (Murray, s.v.) D. F. should have put a comma between this word and the next. Cubebs, the berries of a climbing shrub Piper cubeba or Cubeba officinalis, a native of Java and the adjacent islands; it resembles a grain of pepper, and has a pungent spicy flavour, and is used in medicine and cookery. Langham, Gard. Health, Cubebs strengthen a weak and windy stomach. (Murray, s.v.)

16. Cardamom, a spice consisting of the seed capsules of various species of Anomum and Elettaria (N.O. Zingiberaceæ), natives of the East Indies and China, used in medicine as a stomachic, and also for flavouring sauces and curries. (Murray, s.v.)

17. See n. 6, p. 475. Melilotus. Lat. melilotos; Gr. μέλιλωτος, so called from the quantity of honey which it contains. Bot. Melilot is a genus of papilionaceous plants, sub-tribe Trifolicæ. It is found in the warmer parts of the Old World. Known species, ten. Two are wild in Britain, Melilotus officinalis and M. alba. A third, M. arvensis, is an escape. A decoction of the first is emollient, and sometimes used on the Continent in lotions and enemas. The second produces swelling in the belly of cattle which graze upon it. (The Encyclopædic Dictionary, 1885, s. v.)

475, 5. At Kendal. John, son of William Foster of Kirkland, was apprenticed in 1645 to Reginald Liekbarrow, mereer. He (or another) was sworn one of the twenty burgesses 13 August, 1657, and as a mercer freeman in the following year. (Boke off Recorde, pp. 273, 27, 61.) This may have been his wife.

477, 12. The discovery of the regularity of the vibration of the pendulum was made by Galileo. The first pendulum clock is said to have been made by Richard Harris for St. Paul's, Covent Garden. J. W. Benson (Time and Time-Tellers, p. 55) has a picture of a watch of the date of 1580, to which a pendulum was added in 1670. It of course made it useless for the special purposes of a watch, turning it in fact into a clock.

494, 5. R. P. 1517 is a letter from John Sadler to D. F., dated 11 May, 1674, on the merits of Lewis's and other Latin Grammars. He refers to Danesiuss, Vossius, Mr. ffarnaby, and Dr. Busby. R. P. 1567 is the draft of a letter from D. F. to Mr. Mark Lewis, commending his 'Accidence and Middle-Grammar, and expressing a desire to see his 'Criticall-Grammar' soon published.

535, Appendix K. For Provost Barlow see n. 4, p. 197; for Sir John Lowther see n. 2, p. 455; and for the Grand-child n. 8, p. 434.

536, l. 22. For 'seruiter' see n. 3, p. 107.

537, l. 7. Barlow's letter was prophetic; 'that boy' was William Lancaster for whom see n. 3, p. 244, who became provost of the College.

537, l. 24. Henry Denton entered Queen's College, 27 March in Easter Term, and matriculated 24 June, 1653. His elder brother Thomas had entered in the previous October. They were both pauperes pueri. The College Register makes Thomas elected Fellow 1 March, 1659, but this seems to be a mistake for Henry, who occurs rightly in the list of Fellows in the Entrance Book. He proceeded B.A. 21 March, 1657, and M.A. 25 June, 1659. He was chaplain to the English factory at Aleppo, and according to Wood (Fasti, ii. 219) to the English ambassador at Constantinople, and published a translation of Georgirines' Description of Samos, 1678. He was rector of Bletchington from 1673 till his death in 1681.

Last line but 2. For Scriuener see n. 5, p. 56.

538, last line but 2. Bridget, daughter of Sir William Norris of Speake in Lancashire, was married as her first husband to Sir Thomas Bold of Bold in Lancashire, and as her second husband and his second wife to John Fleming of Rydal, elder brother of Daniel, D. F.'s grandfather.

A full description of the Society's work and objects can be obtained by application to any of the Committee residing at Oxford (ROBERT S. RAIT, Esq., New College (Hon. Treasurer); FALCONER MADAN, Esq., 94 Banbury Road; the Rev. the PROVOST OF QUEEN'S COLLEGE (Dr. MAGRATH); the Rev. H. RASHDALL, New College; and Dr. SHADWELL, Frewin Hall, Oxford). The annual subscription is one guinea, and the published volumes as a set can be obtained by new members at one-fourth the published price (i.e. 10s. 6d. a year). Life Composition for new members (not being Institutions) is twelve guineas: after five years of subscription it is ten guineas; after ten years, eight; after fifteen, six; after twenty, four. The Society counts compositions among its liabilities (in case it ceased its work), deducting one guinea a year from each sum paid as composition, from the date of effecting it.
